Shanghai (Tuesday), Oct. 19.—Japanese forces today were carving a huge strip through Chinese rear defenses at Shanghai in the face of "suicide regiments" who had sworn to die rather than retreat.

One detachment of 1,400 Chinese reportedly was wiped out to the last man as they fought to stem the powerful Japanese flanking movement cutting its way with machine gun and artillery fire toward Tazang in an effort to trap nearly 200,000 Chinese in a huge net behind Shanghai.

Foreign military observers said late last night the Japanese had hacked their way to the outskirts of Tazang, vital sector northwest of Shanghai that controls the Lotien-Liuhang front.

Tanks Aid Drive.

With tanks and armored cars smashing through in the vanguard, Japanese columns struck southward from the Woosung Creek sector toward Tazang. This has been one of the most bitterly contested salients in the Shanghai war, and Chinese repeatedly had driven the Japanese back to the north side of the creek.

With airplanes and tanks clearing the way, the column drove over the creek in a sudden mass offensive, centering at the village of Kechiapailao, on the Shanghai side of the creek.

A Chinese regiment blocked their path for hours. Wave after wave poured over their intrenchments, cutting down the defenders until, on

British Slay Many When Syrians Try To Enter Palestine

Jerusalem, Oct. 18 (AP).—Heavy casualties were inflicted on a large band of Syrians attempting to cross the Palestine frontier today, unconfirmed reports said, as the government of British-mandated Palestine retaliated for recent outrages.

Military sappers blew up homes of Arabs involved in raiding a derailed train Friday, the reports stated, and at the same time blasted two houses in Lydda in punishment for the burning of new airport buildings there Saturday.

Lydda inhabitants were allowed to leave their homes only two hours daily to buy food and graze their animals.

Kilted Scottish soldiery deployed southwest of Jerusalem in pursuit of Arabs who had raided a police arsenal almost under the noses of native constables.

U.S. Order Bars All Transfers of Utility Assets

Commission Acts Hastily Against Move Laid to Holding Companies.

By William V. Nessly.

In an unprecedented order, the Federal Power Commission last night decreed that all public utility companies in the country retain in their own custody, pending further orders, "all bonds, stocks, notes and other securities of every description forming part of their assets."

The order, virtually impounding all such assets of ulities, it was learned, was made effective immediately in order to forestall holding companies reported to have directed operating units under their control to transfer parts of their assets to depositaries in New York, where, in the language of the commission, "they may be hypothecated or otherwise put beyond control" of the utilities.

At the same time the commission ordered a thorough examination into the extent to which such transfers had been called for, and the extent to which the transfers would affect the utilities' ability to provide proper service, and impede or prevent commission examination of their books and accounts.

Hasty Meeting Called.

The action, announced by Acting Chairman Clyde L. Seavey, was taken at a hastily called special meeting attended by all four members of the commission. It followed receipt of word by the commission that some holding companies had ordered transfer of some assets of their affiliated operating companies "in such manner and to such extent as to affect the ability of said utilities to render adequate service and to impede or prevent proper examination by the commission or its agents of the accounts, books, records and properties" of the utilities.

It was apparent that the commission had been taken by surprise in the proposed removal of assets, "cus-

Salt Lake City, Oct. 18.—Searching parties fought their way tonight through a driving snowstorm toward the isolated peak high in the Uinta Mountains, where lay the wreckage of a United Airlines sky giant which crashed last night with 19 persons aboard.

With slippery mountain roads made almost impassable by the blizzard, the ground crews made slow progress, and airline officials estimated it might be 24 hours before the first searchers reached the scene.

There was scant hope that any of the 15 men and four women who were aboard the plane when it shot into the mountain peak would be found alive. Among the passengers were a Washington man and woman.

"I don't see how anyone could be alive there," said Wesley Meyers,

Straus to Head $526,000,000 Housing Setup

President Picks New York Man to Direct Vast Slum Clearance Program.

By the Associated Press.

Hyde Park, N. Y., Oct. 18.—President Roosevelt set in motion the Federal Government's vast new low-cost housing and slum-clearance program by appointing Nathan Straus, of New York City, as administrator.

The youngish Straus, long a student of housing problem in the New York metropolitan area, will take over his new $10,000 post Wednesday after a conference at the White House with the President and Secretary Ickes.

His title will be Administrator of the United States Housing Authority, a division created in the Wagner-Steagall act under Ickes' Interior Department.

He will have control of a $526,000,000 long-range program aimed at elimination of big-city slums and provision of low-rent homes and apartments for the poorer classes.

The appointment was announced after Straus emerged from a long conference with the President at the temporary White House.

Stocks Suffer Worst Collapse In Four Years

1,014 Issues—Most of Any Day on Record—Traded in Plunge.

By the Associated Press.

New York, Oct. 18.—Weakened by a steady retreat since mid-August, the stock market went down before a selling whirlwind today into the worst crash in more than four years.

Losses in some leading industrial issues mounted to $10 a share and more before the closing gong interrupted the destruction of quoted values. Prices were beaten down to the lowest since July 6, 1935, measured by the Associated Press average price of 60 stocks.

The average of 60 dropped $3.80 to $45.10, the sharpest decline since July 20, 1933, when the first big upswing in speculative markets under New Deal price-raising moves culminated in a thumping fall.

Bewildered by the intensity of the selling impact, Wall Street experts failed to lay a finger immediately on any single sore spot in the

Janitor Scolded For DrinkingEnds Life for His Lapse

Every man around the Tenth Precinct police station knew Archie took his work and their opinion seriously, but how seriously they didn't learn until yesterday.

For the first time in the 20 years Archie W. Wingate, 42, station janitor, had worked there he showed up late and his superior took him to task for drinking. A little later, Archie said good-by to Station Clerks E. C. Rhue and L. A. Grabbin and walked out.

When he didn't return, Capt. Sheetz sent a squad car to his home, but before it was well started a telephone call came in from one of Archie's neighbors. There'd been a shot at Archie's place.

Officer C. C. Niblock got there in the squad car and found Archie dead, a bullet hole through his head. There was a note there, too, and it smacked somewhat of legalistic formality:

"To whom it may concern . . ."

Duke Consults Ickes on Plans As First Lady Invites Wallis

Secretary Ickes was asked yesterday to suggest an itinerary for the Duke and Duchess of Windsor during their visit to the United States and Mrs. Roosevelt revealed she had asked the Duchess of Windsor to be her guest the night of December 11, should the Duke attend the Gridiron Club banquet that night.

The request for a suggested itinerary was sent by Charles E. Bedeaux, a friend of the former king. It informed the Interior Department the duke would appreciate any suggestions concerning housing, reclamation or CCC developments which he should see.

Following their arrival in Washington, probably on November 15, the duke and his American wife, the one-time Wallis Simpson, are expected to visit a half dozen American cities, as yet undetermined.

One route under consideration would take them to California by way of the northern route from Chicago into the Far Northwest and the State of Washington, then down the West Coast.

The duke stressed his role as a "private, unofficial" visitor in a statement distributed in England today which said Bedaux, New York industrial engineer and the Windsors' wedding host at Monts, France, would make the tour arrangements. Mr. and Mrs. Bedaux will accompany the duke and duchess.

Indications were that the royal couple and their friends will spend

New Deal Foe Sent to Senate By Arkansas

Rep. Miller's Election Seen as Definite Rebuff to Administration.

Gov. Bailey, '100 Pct. Roosevelt Man,' Concedes Defeat.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Little Rock, Ark., Oct. 18.—Arkansas today elected Representative John E. Miller to the Senate seat vacated by the death of Joseph T. Robinson last July 14, in what was seen as a definite rebuff to the Roosevelt Administration.

Gov. Carl E. Bailey, nominee of the Democratic State Committee against Miller, who ran as an independent, conceded his defeat as returns from 1,667 of the 1,923 precincts in the State gave:

Miller, 59,896 votes.

Bailey, 37,491.

"I concede the election of Congressman Miller to succeed Senator Robinson," the Governor said in a statement. "I will continue to serve the people as Governor to the best of my ability."

Bailey had made the New Deal the issue, and Administration leaders backed him in it. The 43-year-old Chief Executive of the State, a former railroad worker, called Miller "anti-Roosevelt," said his opponent had Liberty League backing, and declared that a Miller victory would be "a slap in the face" of President Roosevelt.

Miller was accused of helping to doom the President's court reorganization plan in the House Judiciary Committee.

For himself, Bailey said he was "100 per cent for Roosevelt."

Three members of the President's cabinet wrote letter sof indorsement to Bailey, which the Governor published in advertisements throughout the State to show he was the Administration's choice. Postmaster General James A. Farley, Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins, Secretary of Agriculture Henry Wallace and WPA Administrator Harry Hopkins all wrote such letters.

Miller has at times opposed the Administration in Congress. In the campaign he said that he admired the President's "humanitarian aims" but could not support him on all questions. He pointed out that he had voted against the Chief Executive on payment of the soldiers bonus, had differed with him on some farm legislation and was opposed to the Administration wages and hours bill.

D. C. Flier's Stunts Stun Hyattsville, Land Him in Jail

Harry T. Stumpf, of 2675 Rhode Island avenue northeast, was released from the Hyattsville cooler last night on $500 bond after "doing everything in the book and some things that weren't" with a rented airplane over the town and finally stumpfing his aerial toe in a field near the Laurel police station.

John K. Hinson, owner of the Capitol Airport, said he rented a plane to Stumpf for an hour, saw him make a couple of practice landings and then disappear into the horizon. It wasn't long before Hinson began receiving complaints from residents of Northeast Washington that one of his planes was "coming within 15 feet of their houses," and wouldn't Hinson do something about it.

Hinson took off in another plane, and a third pilot left the field. They finally located the exuberant Stumpf over the Brookland section.

Efforts to induce Stumpf to land failed, and Hinson and the other pilot returned to the airport, where they received a telephone call—their plane had crashed near Laurel police station.

$895,245,000 Deficit Forecast by Roosevelt; Exceeds April Estimate

Surplus, Excluding Debt Retirement, Seen Last January.

Expected Revenue Falls 643 Million

Deficiency Lowest Since 1931; National Debt to Hit 37 Billion.

By Sidney Olson.

The Nation's Budget will be written in red ink for the eighth successive year, President Roosevelt revealed last night as he revised his estimates for the 1938 fiscal year to show an expected total deficit of $5,245,000.

Last January the President cautiously but optimistically predicted a "layman's balance" for this fiscal year. He indicated that this estimate, which showed a modest net surplus of $37,000,000, exclusive of statutory debt retirement, would hold only if Congress did not increase the costs of running the Nation.

Yesterday, while avoiding the placing of particular blame on the Congress, he noted that the enactment of the new railroad retirement act, the continuance of reduced interest rates on Federal Land Bank loans—over his veto—the pledged cotton loans to Southern farmers and other measures had zoomed the national expenses far above his estimates.

Revenue Forecast Falls.

He noted also that tax receipts, which he had estimated last January at $7,293,000,000, now are only expected to reach $6,650,000,000.

The President's new estimate of the deficit for the year ending next June 30 is $277,000,000 more than his April estimate and $732,000,000 more than his figure for last January.

The total estimated deficit of $895,245,000 includes $200,000,000 for the statutory debt requirement. The net deficit thus is $695,245,000 according to the estimates which Acting Budget Director Daniel W. Bell released last night.

This is the smallest deficit since the fiscal year 1931, when the Treasury began using red ink after 11 years in the black.

Budgets for the past four years show:

1934	Deficit	$3,989,496,000
1935	"	3,575,357,000
1936	"	4,763,841,000
1937	"	2,811,318,000

The deficit for 1938 therefore will be the first below $1,000,000,000 since 1931.

The public debt, which touched $36,940,977,683 last week, rising steadily from the June 30 figure of $36,424,613,372, is now expected to top all previous high marks by soaring well above $37,000,000,000.

While the President significantly made no budget-balancing promises yesterday to supplement those iter-

Nine persons were hurt yesterday when a runaway street car, crowded with homeward-bound workers, crashed into the rear of another loading passengers at Fifteenth street and Pennsylvania avenue northwest.

Heroism of the maverick's motorman, K. M. Saylor, alone prevented possible great loss of life, passengers said. They were unanimous in praising his presence of mind in shouting to them to seek safety at the rear while he remained at his post vainly endeavoring to halt the onrushing trolley.

It was reported the brakes failed when Saylor attempted to halt the car on New York avenue at the intersection of Fifteenth street. Out of control, the trolley careened around the turn into Fifteenth, gathered momentum on the Treasury hill, dashed through a red light at Fifteenth and F streets and brought up with a crash against the car standing at the loading zone.

Roosevelt Says More Charity Is Urgent Need

Urges Citizens to Assume Burdens U. S. Drops With Recovery.

By the Associated Press.

Hyde Park, N. Y., Oct. 18.—President Roosevelt declared tonight that local and private relief activities "must be increased" as Federal help for the needy is curtailed in an effort to balance the budget and avoid higher taxes.

In a Nation-wide radio appeal from his Hyde Park home for "generous" support by the people in the annual Community Chest relief fund drive, he said the Nation must not become "blinded by the welcome light of returning prosperity to the very real need that still exists for a considerable part of our population."

"The Federal Government, with the return of prosperity," he added, "must more and more narrow the circle of its relief activities and reduce the amount of Federal revenue to be expended in the amelioration of human want and distress in the various communities of our land.

"I say this because we all agree that unless Federal taxes are to be greatly increased, the expenditures have to be brought within the existing tax receipts.

"Although Federal Government relief activities have to be curtailed, there must needs be no abatement of State, local and individual relief work. Indeed, local and private activities must be increased."

The President spoke on a program of the community Mobilization for Human Needs.

Hermit Found Dead at 82 in Fortified Home Where He Lived in Mystery for Two Decades

By Edward Fenton.

They found "old Mr. Walker" dead yesterday in a coffin-shaped box in the labyrinthine house of darkness and mystery that he had built with his own hands and where he had lived for the last 20 years.

Littleton W. Walker, 82, was found by one of his benefactors, Hyman Posin, who had come to bring the old man food.

Posin, after breaking through the gate at 4840 Reservoir road northwest, spent two and a half hours groping through the weird maze that Walker called home before he found the body.

Walker was lying in a box that was of his "invention." He had designed it to keep himself warm during the unheated, sub-zero nights that he spent barricaded from the world.

So the "invention" of the old man, intended to serve both as a bed and a house, became at last his coffin.

Little is known about Walker or about the strange mental quirk that drove him to erect a house that is like a fortress, guarded on the outside by an 8-foot wire fence, topped with barbs, and fashioned inside with apparent deliberate intent to confuse any possible intruder.

But when they found Walker lying dead in the penthouse-like structrue on top of his one-story brick dwelling, they found a photograph of a beautiful women, dressed in the style of long ago. And they found, pinned to the wall, a faded newspaper clipping, cut from some advice lovelorn column. The figure of a woman was sketched in an illustration in that column. Beside the figure was a large question mark. The caption was "Shall She Tell About that Blot Upon Her Post?"

Until yesterday only one man besides Walker had been known to have entered the eerie house of mystery. He was Abraham Posin, proprietor of a meat stand in the Arcade Market. He had been Walker's benefactor for years. But even he had been unable to penetrate the secret of the old man's past.

"He used to cry when I questioned him," Posin said last night. "So I left him alone. I knew he didn't want to tell me."

Posin first met the recluse about four years ago, when he asked for work at the market. Taking pity on him, Posin gave him small tasks

Supreme Court Upholds SEC In Wire Seizure

Firms May Protest Ruling on Ground Senator Black Fought for Subpena.

By Robert C. Albright.

With Justice Hugo L. Black apparently participating in the action, the Supreme Court yesterday in effect upheld Securities and Exchange Commission seizure of telegrams by refusing to review a lower court ruling.

Possibility of a challenge was raised last night because Black, while a member of the Senate, insisted on the right of the Senate Lobby Committee to subpena private telegrams.

The Supreme Court invariably discloses any failure of a justice to participate in consideration or action on a case, but no such announcement was made in the SEC ruling.

The appeal was brought by three Florida companies, who obtained from a Federal judge an injunction against the SEC telegram seizures. The Circuit Court reversed this verdict and the companies appealed to the Supreme Court.

New Black Attack Possible.

Speculation turned on whether the Florida concerns would protest that their case had been injured by Black's participation. Black's right to sit on the court already has been unsuccessfully challenged on Constitutional technicalities, but no protest has been entered against his sitting with the court on cases involving laws and questions at issue in the Senate while he was a member.

Frank J. Ryan and the Ryan Florida Corporation, and the Texas Oil Co. contended the securities act of 1933 and 1934 were unconstitutional and particularly protested the SEC telegram subpenas constituted "unlawful search and seizure."

Western Union officials at Tampa and Postal Telegraph officers at St. Petersburg were directed by subpenas in March to produce the messages. A District judge ruled the subpenas violated constitutional guarantees, but the circuit court upheld the right of the SEC to require production of telegrams sent and received by persons suspected of obtaining money and property by means of false and fraudulent representations, in the issuance, offer and sale of securities.

Black in the Senate insisted throughout on the right of that body to subpena private telegrams. In the resulting lawsuits, William Randolph Hearst was denied an injunction in the District of Columbia District Court. In the United States Court of Appeals for the District, Justice Groner upheld the lower court. But he condemned the Federal Communications Commission for seizing telegrams and submitting them to the Senate committee.

Still another appeal involving a New Deal law was denied by the Supreme Court, when the Jefferey-Dewitt Insulator Co., of Kenova, W. Va., lost its challenge of a National Labor Relations Board order charging unfair labor practices. Black also apparently participated in consideration of this petition.

The Jefferey-Dewitt case grew out of a strike called at the plant June 15, 1935, by the United Brick and Clay Workers of America, an A. F. of L. affiliate. Demands of the union were not met and some four months later a union committee filed charges with the Labor Board.

Collective Bargaining Ordered.

The board ruled the company violated the Wagner act by refusing to bargain collectively a month after the strike began. The company was ordered to bargain collectively and to restore certain workers, and its action was affirmed by the Circuit Court of Appeals.

Appealing to the Supreme Court, the company claimed union members were not employes of the concern when the alleged unfair practices occurred, and so not entitled to protection of the act.

Without any formal opinions, and disposing of these New Deal law appeals with the word "denied," the high court proceeded to refuse a review of the New York State ban on heart-balm suits because no "substantial Federal question" was presented.

Seeking $30,000 for alienation of affections, Lawrence Hanfgarn, of Floral Park, Long Island, assailed constitutionality of the New York State law in an appeal from a lower court ruling.

The law prohibits suits for alienation of affections, seduction and breach of promise to marry. Hanfgarn brought suit against George Mark, of Elmont, Long Island, charging alienation of affections of his wife, Jennie Hanfgarn.

The New York court ruling, sustained in effect by Supreme Court refusal to hear an appeal, declared the marriage relationship may be regulated and rights growing out of it may be modified or abolished by the State Legislature without violating either Federal or State constitution. The New York court held a wife is no longer the property of the husband in the eyes of the law.

May Seek Reconsideration.

Tampa, Fla., Oct. 18 (AP).—Attorneys who appealed to the United States Supreme Court a suit attacking the Federal Securities Commission said they may ask the court to reconsider its denial today of a review of the case on the ground Justice Hugo Black was disqualified to sit in the case.

N. Y. Town Sticks to Its Gun; Yorktown Fete Is Cannonless

Patriotic exercises to celebrate the victory at Yorktown will go ahead there today, but they must do without an ancient cannon that banged away from the British lines there until the surrender silenced it 156 years ago.

This cannon should be in a State of rather battered pride by now, considering the way citizens, of Watervliet, N. Y., and the National Park Service have been squabbling over it. Known as "Lafayette's Cannon," the old weapon is said by Watervliet legend to have been presented after the Yorktown surrender to Gen. Peter Gansevoort by Lafayette and then to have been given by Gansevoort to the Watervliet arsenal.

But, counters the Park Service, all British ordinance captured at the battle of Yorktown became the property of the Continental Army.

Anyway, while the Yorktown celebration goes on today and the cannon remains in Watervliet, research groups from both sides were delving into historical records.

Citizens of the New York town claim that Gen. Lafayette saw two captured British cannons at the arsenal during a visit in 1824 and identified one, by a large dent on the barrel, as the gun he presented to Gen. Gansevoort. But, said B. F. Flickinger, superintendent of the park at Yorktown, yesterday, "considering the hundreds of cannons seen by Gen. Lafayette, it seems highly improbable for him to have singled out one gun 43 years later."

Watervliet citizens, headed by Mrs. Sarah H. Kenman, rose in protest when the Park Service attempted to transfer the relic to Yorktown.

Today's celebration at Yorktown is sponsored by the Virginia Daughters of the National Society, Daughters of the American Revolution. It will be featured by dedication of a tablet in honor of Mrs. George Durbin Chenoweth, regent of Comte de Grasse Chapter, presentation being made by Mrs. Arthur Rowbotham, State regent. The tablet will be unveiled by Mrs. Charles B. Keesee, national corresponding secretary-general, and accepted by Mrs. E. C. Madison, first vice regent, Comte de Grasse Chapter.

The principal address will be made by Dr. Fitzgerald K. Flournoy, of the department of English, Washington and Lee University. His subject will be "Thomas Paine, the Patriot."

The gun came into the picture casually enough when it was transferred by the War Department to the Interior Department for use in the National Park Service's rehabilitation of the Yorktown Battlefield. The Interior Department struck a snag when it tried to get the gun from Watervliet.

A. E. Demaray, associate director of the National Park Service, last night said Watervliet citizens would be given about a month to submit proof of their contention that the gun was a gift of Lafayette to Gansevoort.

Mountaineers In Shenandoah Begin New Life

Resettlement on Modern Farms Supplied by U. S. Starts Today.

By the Associated Press.

Elkton, Va., Oct. 18 (AP).—Resettlement of families from the Shenandoah National Park in homestead areas constructed by the Government in Page and Madison Counties will begin tomorrow.

Although the scant possessions of the mountain folk will be transferred scarcely a stone's throw in most cases from their homes in the Blue Ridge, they will enter into a new life.

Where he tilled "patches" before, using only a hoe, the farmer now will make use of machinery and must learn to cultivate his land by modern methods.

Where before his children attended school occasionally, or not at all, they must now go every day.

Some of them who never saw an electric light now will possess them.

The weary work of "water-toting" will be ended with water in the house. Kitchens are equipped with modern improvements.

Each unit contains a house of from three to five rooms, a barn, poultry house, hog stall, smoke house, and some have vegetable storage houses.

School facilities are to be provided by the counties and a two-room building has been erected at the Ida Valley site by the Page school board. Six families are to be moved there tomorrow with six others to go to the Madison tract.

James S. Wills, director of the Shenandoah homesteads, said that by the last of January 175 homesteads in five counties adjoining the park will have been filled.

All of those selected were given physical tests. They will occupy the homes for one year at a nominal rental, Wills said, after which they will probably be permitted to purchase their tracts.

Body of Col. Thompson Is Interred at Arlington

Interment services for Lieut. Col. Warren R. Thompson were held yesterday at Arlington National Cemetery.

Col. Thompson was on duty with the 109th Engineers in the World War. Mrs. Thompson, Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Burger, Mr. and Mrs. George Johnson, Harry D. Smith and John A. Strozier were in Washington for the ceremonies.

Bank Official Testifies In Hahn Poison Case

Cincinnati, Oct. 18 (AP).—Mrs. Anna Hahn, on trial on a charge she fatally poisoned Jacob Wagner, 78, heard testimony today concerning a State contention she attempted to exchange her own bankbook for Wagner's, seeking to benefit by thousands of dollars.

Arthur J. Schmidt, assistant vice president of a bank where Wagner held his account, testified Mrs. Hahn had admitted to him that she signed Wagner's name to an order of withdrawal for $1,000—after Wagner died.

First Lady Attends Rites For Grenville T. Emmet

New York, Oct. 18 (AP).—Funeral services for Grenville Temple Emmet, United States Minister to Austria who died in Vienna September 26, were held today at St. Thomas Protestant Episcopal Church on Fifth avenue.

Notables at the services included Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, James W. Gerard, former Ambassador to Germany, and G. T. Summerlin, of the State Department. Burial will be at Bedford.

Match Blamed for Blast Which Killed 34 Miners

Birmingham, Ala., Oct. 18 (AP).—A match used to light a safety lamp was blamed today by a State mine inspector for the explosion which killed 34 men in Mulga Coal Mine Saturday.

Inspector W. B. Hillhouse said the lamp, found at the scene of the blast, apparently was ignited by a match instead of by the mechnical device provided for that purpose.

Supreme Court Bar Admits Boston Woman Attorney, 29

Miss Jeanne Brody Already Practices Before State's High Tribunal.

Miss Jeanne S. B. Brody, 29-year-old attorney of Boston, Mass., was admitted to practice before the Supreme Court of the United States yesterday.

Miss Brody, third woman from Massachusetts to receive the certificate of admission to the court, has conducted her own practice for the last three years. A graduate of Northeastern University School of Law in 1930, she worked in the firm of Prombain and Brooks before establishing her own practice.

A native of Boston, Miss Brody has been practicing before the Supreme Court of Massachusetts. She is a member of the Boston Bar Association, the American Bar Association and the Massachusetts Association of Women Lawyers.

A specialist in probate law, Miss Brody said her membership in the Supreme Court bar would make it possible for her to handle many cases she formerly has delegated to other lawyers.

Members of the Supreme Court bar who sponsored Miss Brody's admission were A. Max Ammerman and Louis Ottenberg. Her application was supported by letters from David H. Lasker and Edward Cronin, attorneys of Boston.

Club President Assails Slash in Welfare Grants

Monday Evening Members Hear Denunciation of 'False Economy.'

Curtailment of District expenditures for welfare work was condemned last night by William A. Roberts, speaking before several hundred members of the Monday Evening Club at the first meeting of the season.

Roberts, newly elected president of the group, spoke on the topic, "True Civic Economy Must Conserve Human Values."

"No one is more concerned than our membership in the importance of reducing the cost of government," he said.

"But I hope that we can distinguish between the true economy which consists of using well our wealth and natural resources and the false economy which reduces the efficiency of institutions and organizations and transfers burdens increased in geometric proportions to the shoulders of those least able to bear them," he continued.

With a population growth in the last several years of about 100,000 under what he termed abnormal and unhealthy conditions, the District of Columbia had thrust upon it obligations which inevitably demanded greater expenditures, Roberts said.

"The only surprising thing about public reaction to this problem," he said, "lies in the fallacious assumption that the requirements for welfare and relief purposes could be fitted within a budget, unscientifically made in the first place and persistently diminished by arbitrary paring since 1932."

Hal Roach Store Robbed of Gems Worth $150,000

Hollywood, Oct. 18.—The jewelry store of Hal Roach, movie producer, and L. H. Driver, patronized by many film notables, was robbed of jewels valued at $150,000 today.

Two men entered the store, trussed Driver and two clerks with adhesive tape and forced them into a vault. The robbers were looting the store when a postman entered. At pistol point he was forced into the safe. The men fled in an automobile which was found abandoned several miles away.

A boy standing across the street from the store saw the robbery and notified police, who released Driver, Miss Mary Freeman and Gerald Todd, clerks, and the postman.

Driver said the robbers wore silk gloves and were well dressed.

Altitude Record Set On Stephens' Flight

Syracuse, N. Y., Oct. 18 (AP).—Capt. Albert Stevens set a world altitude record of 72,183 feet in his 1935 stratosphere flight, according to official calculations of Prof. Earl Church, announced today at the College of Applied Science, Syracuse University.

The flight was sponsored by the United States Army and the American Geographic Society.

Autoist Reveals Aid to Davidson Slaying Suspect

Driver Who Gave Ride to 'Thin Man' Took Him to Baltimore Bus.

The long awaited break in the murder of Elmer J. Davidson came yesterday when police learned the identity of the man believed to have given the murderer a ride out of Triangle, Va., shortly after the crime.

The man who unknowingly helped the murderer to escape was reported to have talked with a filling attendant late Sunday night, giving information which may help police to trace the killer to Baltimore.

Sergeant E. J. McDermott, of the Virginia State Police, moved last night to contact the man, driver of the escape car, in the hope of obtaining first positive description of the murderer.

Although the man's name was known to police, they were confident his connection with the murder was purely accidental.

He told the filling station attendant that he was returning from Fredericksburg, Va., the night of the murder. Davidson's car passed him south of Triangle, Va., skidding dangerously on the wet pavement.

A few minutes later he saw the same car in the ditch half a mile north of Triangle. He saw the driver of the damaged car standing beside the road, signalling with his flashlight.

The man stopped further up the road, and picked up the driver of Davidson's car, believed to be the murderer. The alleged murderer rode with him to Frederick, Md., and from there took a bus bound for Baltimore.

The driver of the car said his passenger told him he was returning from a visit to his brother at Quantico, Va., and planned to visit his mother at Bel Air, Md.

The passenger was described as a tall, thin man. He was carrying a quantity of money. Throughout the ride he appeared nervous. He indicated that at one time he had lived in Winston Salem, N. C.

Killer's Route Traced.

Sergt. McDermott centered investigation last night on Frederick, Md., to establish what route Davidson's killer might have taken.

Although McDermott, with Patrolman R. A. Sims, of the Virginia State police, emphasized the theory that the murderer doubled back into Washington they investigated two other possible routes, to Baltimore and Point of Rocks, Md.

The killer might have taken a bus to either Baltimore or Washington Monday morning, October 4, at 2:25 a. m. or 8 a. m. Another bus leaves Frederick at 5:20 a. m. for Point of Rocks, where Baltimore & Ohio trains to Washington, Baltimore or points west are available.

May Have Gone to Lynchburg.

Sergt. McDermott planned to question the bus drivers who covered these routes on October 4. He also questioned Frederick taxi drivers to check the possibility that the man might have remained there for some time.

Sergt. McDermott said last night he would remain at Frederick until he obtained some new trace of the killer's route beyond Frederick.

Possibility that the search might extend to Lynchburg, Va., was seen when the driver of the Frederick-Baltimore bus told police their suspect might be the man who left his coat on the bus either October 3 or 4.

The bus driver described his man as tall and thin, with brown hair. The man boarded the bus at 2:25 a. m. in Frederick, and when he left the bus at Baltimore he forgot his dark gray overcoat.

Later he wrote to the bus company and asked that the coat be forwarded to Lynchburg, Va. The forwarding address and the name given in the letter were not immediately learned.

A bizarre touch was given when the bus driver recalled the man's name as Davis or Davidson.

Chautemps Calls Parley Over Unions' Demands

Paris, Oct. 18 (AP).—Premier Camille Chautemps, backed by evidence of provincial support in yesterday's cantonal elections, set about today to quiet rumblings of labor unrest in the cities and to stabilize his "People's Front" government. The Premier called the council of ministers for tomorrow to consider union demands for increased salaries to compensate for a 50 per cent devaluation of the franc.

Children Jubilant as 90 Schools Resume Free Lunch Service; Attendance Picks Up

S. J. Bowen School, Thirteenth and K streets southwest, was a scene of jubilation yesterday as 113 children sat down to the first hot lunch they had had in some time. The occurrence was typical of those which took place in 89 other district schools which have been provided with free lunches by generosity of Washington citizens.

"Most of them drank their half-pint of milk before they had time to sit down at the tables," said Mrs. John Boyle, jr., organizer of the lunch drive, who, with Mrs. Mary Steele, of the District WPA, was a guest at the luncheon.

"There was much rattling of spoons as they finished up the last drop of soup," she added. The main dish was macaroni and cheese but it might have been a Thanksgiving turkey as far as the children were concerned.

According to Miss Alys H. Ewers, principal of the school, two WPA workers arrived at the building at 8 a. m. yesterday to make preparations. Tables had to be scoured and dishes sterilized. The food was delivered by truck about 10:30 o'clock and reheated.

Mrs. Boyle and Mrs. Steele were greeted with loud applause by the children. Some of the older ones volunteered to clear the tables at conclusion of the meal, which was only the first of those to be served throughout the entire year if sufficient funds can be raised.

Announcement of beginning of the lunch project produced an unexpected result at Bowen. Miss Ewers said a number of new enrollees appeared at the school. "All were of kindergarten or first grade age, but were younger than the legal minimum," she explained. "Their mothers sent them to school just as soon as the news came out that they would be fed."

Two $100 checks arrived at the drive's Mayflower Hotel headquarters yesterday. One was from George D. Horning and the other from the Washington Hebrew Congregation. Another contribution was received from a resident of Atlantic City who formerly lived in Washington.

A benefit dance and show will be presented tonight at Murray Casino, 920 U street southwest. Music will be by Fletcher Henderson. Shep Allen, manager of the Howard Theater, will act as master of ceremonies. The event, proceeds of which will go to the fund, is sponsored by the Phi Delta Kappa Sorority, the Washington Tribune and the Howard Theater.

3 Think Hot Lunch Is Better Than Apples.

The hot lunch served in the District schools yesterday for the first time this year looked pretty good to at least three children. They had been living for five days on apples and sweet potatoes.

The children attend the S. J. Bowen School. Last week their mother, who had been trying to feed an unemployed husband and five children on nothing flat, came to the school for help. She was sent to a relief station, where the only food available was a substantial quantity of sweet potatoes and apples.

Their situation is far from unique among residents of the section about one-third of the school's total enrollment filed requests for free lunches. Although the principal, Miss Alys H. Ewers, has not had time to investigate each case as yet, she is convinced that 90 per cent of the requests are based on actual need. She will know for certain at the end of the week and will remove from the lunch list those she thinks are fed sufficiently at home.

Another family which benefited from yesterday's lunch was one of four children whose father is a shell-shocked war veteran. Their mother works two and a half hours a day in a cafeteria and receives 50 cents a day with which to support her family.

Time and again, teachers reported, Bowen pupils have returned weeping at the end of the lunch hour, saying they had been home but could find nothing to eat. In such cases their instructors have bought food themselves or given them left-overs from the lunch served the nursery school children in the same building.

Venereal Disease 'Cure' Kills 8 of 10 Patients in Oklahoma

Sulfanilamide, Hailed as Remedy, Used in Fatal Preparation; Doctors Blame Other Drug; Firm Seeks to Recover 375 Cases on Market.

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, Oct. 18.—The American Medical Association announced today that eight of ten patients treated with a new preparation, an elixir of sulfanilamide, have died at Tulsa, Okla.

Sulfanilamide itself, a new drug found valuable in treatment of streptococcus infections, meningitis and gonorrhea, has been hailed in some circles as almost a possible panacea, although the medical association's journal has warned repeatedly the preparation has not been tested sufficiently and that ill-effects occasionally have occurred from its use.

The association reported that a Tennessee firm manufactured the elixir used at Tulsa and that the company was attempting to recall 375 shipments of the medicine.

Incomplete tests in the medical association's laboratory, the journal will say Thursday, indicate that diethylene glycol used in the elixir as a solvent for the sulfanilamide was responsible for the deaths, and not the sulfanilamide itself.

Dr. Morris Fishbein, editor of the journal, declared sulfanilamide itself can have dangerous effects when used in improper quantities and without a doctor's advice. Many medical supply houses distribute the drug, usually in tablet form, he said. It is sold in drugstores, with or without a physician's prescription, he explained.

He said the association had learned of widespread purchases in one city by youths attempting to treat themselves for venereal disease.

(Value of the drug as a remedy for venereal disease was made public recently at a medical convention.)

"The possibilities are unlimited," the journal will say, "because we are here concerned with a preparation not standardized by any reliable agency, semisecret in composition and apparently hastily rushed into the market to meet an overenthusiastic reception of a new remedy.

"This tragic experience should be a final warning to physicians relative to the prescribing and administration of this type of preparation."

Harriman Speech Opens Broadcast Series Today

Jo V. Morgan Forecasts New Business Levy

D. C. Tax in Present Form Stirs Much Criticism, Official Says.

Following is the third in a series of articles by members of the District tax committee on the local tax problem. Morgan's article deals with the present business privilege tax.

By Jo V. Morgan,
Special Assistant Corporation Counsel in Charge of Taxation.

No piece of tax legislation affecting the District of Columbia in recent years has caused so much comment, or provoked as much criticism as Title VI of the District of Columbia revenue act of 1937, approved August 17, 1937. Such tax consciousness has been recognized as one of the most effective political limitations upon the taxable capacity of a State or Nation, and if it were in one of our States, it would be very helpful. In the voteless District of Columbia, however, such political check or limitation upon the taxable capacity of the District is ineffective, except in the degree that the congress is responsive to the wishes and desires of the people of the District in enacting fiscal legislation.

Title VI of the act is purely a revenue measure, and contains no element of social or economic control, as do so many of the recent enactments of tax legislation, both State and Federal. On its face, it is temporary, and will expire by its own terms on June 30, 1938. Whether or not it will be re-enacted in its present or in an altered form is conjectural. After its effect and scope became appreciated, much hostility was displayed toward it—even by some of the members of the Congress; and it is reasonable to predict that some of its provisions will be changed or will be omitted entirely, if it should be re-enacted. It is safe to say, however, because of the urgent need of revenue by the government of the District of Columbia, that Title VI will be re-enacted in some form, unless another class of taxation of comparable revenue productivity is found to take its place.

It has been suggested that if Title VI of the act, providing for the business privilege tax, is re-enacted, that it be altered to the extent of classifying businesses in a manner as to avoid some of the present inequities, for instance to adopt the classification in the New York law which places in the class of brokers those persons who do not receive more than a 3 per cent gross profit from sales; in other words, to require such person to report and pay the tax upon such gross profits only.

Clarification of Scope.

It is also thought by many persons that it would be more satisfactory if the provisions of Title VI were redrafted with respect to several matters, including its scope, such as, for instance, those relating to sales to the Government, sales made out of the District but from or through a local office, and sales by nonresidents in the District.

Another proposal or suggestion which should be given consideration is that some method or machinery should be set up whereby refunds can be made promptly, for instance, from some fund set aside for such purpose, where it shall have been determined that the tax was invalid, without the necessity of a Congressional appropriation, or perhaps without court action, where the taxing officials are certain that there has been an error in the assessment, computation, or collection of the tax.

The provisions of Title VI divide themselves into three groups, namely: First, that which provides for a tax computed upon gross receipts for the period covered by the return or report of the taxpayer; second, that which requires a license to do business; and third, that which relates to the effect which the failure to pay the tax upon the right to retain the license to do business once it has been issued. Of course, there are provided, as in similar laws, penalties for failure to obey its provisions.

Affects Business Over $2,000.

Under the first group of provisions, and the administrative rulings thereon, every person who was engaged in business in the District of Columbia on August 17, 1937, whose gross receipts during the period covered by his return or report were in excess of $2,000, must file with the assessor, on or before October 16, 1937, a return or report of gross receipts for the calendar year 1936, if such person was so engaged for that period. If such person commenced business after January 1, but prior to August 17, 1936, he must report his gross receipts for the first year of his business; and if he commenced business after August 17, 1936, he must report as gross receipts an assumed or calculated amount equal to his actual gross receipts for the period in which he was engaged in business prior to August 17, 1937, divided by the number of days he was thus engaged, with the result multiplied by 365. Each taxpayer is entitled to an exemption of $2,000. A tax bill will be based upon the return or report and mailed to the taxpayer, and half of the amount of the tax is payable in November, 1937, and in March, 1938.

Several definitions are given in the act. A "person" is defined as "any individual, firm, copartnership, association, corporation (domestic or foreign), trust, estate, receiver, or any other group or combination acting as a unit, but shall not include railroad or railroad express companies which report to and are subject to regulation by the Interstate Commerce Commission under the provision of the interstate commerce act of 1887, as amended." It is interesting to observe that Congress excluded from the definition of the term "person," railroad and railroad express companies, without mentioning other interstate carriers, such as steamboat companies, bus lines, truck lines, radio telegraph companies, and the like, which leads one to inquire whether Congress intended other interstate carriers such as steamboat companies, bus lines, truck lines, radio, telegraph companies, and the like, to be subject to the provisions of Title VI.

"Business" is defined in the act as "the carrying on or exercising for gain or economic benefit, either direct or indirect, any trade, business, profession, vocation, or commercial activity . . . in the District of Columbia," not including however, labor or services rendered by any individual as an employe for wages, salary or commission." From the foregoing definition, it is apparent that nonprofit organizations, such as boards of trade, clubs, labor unions, hospitals, churches and the like, and all employes, are exempted from the provisions of Title VI.

The use of the term "commercial activity" has provoked a great deal of discussion as to its scope, but as litigation is now pending in our local court affecting the scope of the term "business" as defined in the act, with relation to interstate commerce, this writer, out of deference, does not herein express any view or opinion upon that matter.

The second group of provisions provides that no person shall engage in business in the District of Columbia after October 16, 1937, without having first obtained a license so to do. For such license, a license fee of $10 is exacted, unless the applicant has not received gross receipts from his business during the year immediately preceding the date of application in the sum of $2,000, if he has been engaged in business for that period of time. If he has been engaged in business for a period of less than one year prior to the date of his application, his gross receipts, for the purpose of determining whether or not he is required to pay a license fee, are computed in the same manner as is provided for with respect to the computation of tax.

Newsboys, whose sales are not made from a fixed location, and do not amount to an annual sum of $2,000, are not required to obtain a license.

The third group provides that the assessor, after hearing, may revoke any license issued under the provisions of Title VI for failure of the licensee to file a return or corrected return within the time required by that title, or to pay any installment of tax when due.

The penalties are several. If an installment of tax is not paid, a penalty of 1 per centum shall be added thereto for each month or portion thereof of such delinquency. If a person shall fail to file a return or corrected return within the time required, he shall be subject to a penalty of 10 per centum of the tax due, plus an additional tax of 5 per centum for each month of delay or fraction thereof. In addition to the penalties already mentioned, Section 12 of Title VI provides, in substance, that the failure to obtain a license or to file a return or report, as required, or to comply with the regulations of the Commissioners pertaining to Title VI, shall subject the offender to a maximum fine of $1,000 for each day of such failure or failures.

Figures Kept Secret.

Except in unusual cases, such as proceedings in court, or the request of the taxpayer, it is unlawful for the commissioners or any person having the administrative duty under Title VI, to divulge or make known, in any manner, the receipts of, or any other information relating to the business of a taxpayer, and the offending person in such case, upon conviction of the offense, will be subject to the same maximum fine of $1,000 as provided for in relation to other offenses under Title VI.

Regulations for the administration and enforcement of the provisions of Title VI have been adopted, and promulgated by the Commissioners, and are available, without charge, at the office of the assessor. A large number of requests for administrative rulings have been made by taxpayers, and others interested in the administration and enforcement of Title VI, and such requests, in every instance, have been complied with for the information and guidance of the taxpayer.

It is too early to predict the success of the act as a revenue measure. Such prediction must await at least until the close of the month of November, during which the first installment of tax must be paid, when a fair appraisal can be made of the value of Title VI as a measure for producing much-needed revenue for the government of the District of Columbia.

Tomorrow's article will discuss the sales tax. It will be written by Vernon E. West, principal assistant corporation counsel.

'Y' Reaches Half of Goal.

The Y. M. C. A. last night reached half of its goal of 800 new members which it seeks by October 26. Of these, 143 new members have been signed since Friday, it was reported at a membership campaign meeting. Three radio announcers, Art Brown, of WOL; Lee Everett, WMAL, and Gordon Hittenmark, WRC, were guests at the meeting.

Half-Finished Dwelling Where Aged Recluse Died

In this half-completed brick house, Littleton W. Walker, 76-year-old recluse, was found dead yesterday behind bolted doors and shuttered windows. The house is at 4840 Reservoir road northwest. Policeman G. D. McDonald stands guard.

Mystery Man, Long a Hermit, Is Found Dead

Littleton W. Walker, Once Contractor, Became Recluse After War.

about the place. In return he supplied him with food and a small amount of cash.

During those four years about all Posin learned about the old man's past was this:

Once Walker was a prosperous contractor. He spoke sometimes of bridges and buildings that he had worked on. He spoke sometimes of his son, who, he boasted, knew five languages.

Posin believes that the son is Jay Walker, American vice consul at Cairo, Egypt.

Walker had a daughter, too, he s diaonce. But Posin thinks that the daughter is dead. The man was vague in replying to questions about his wife.

Two years ago, when Walker had not appeared at the shop for several days, Posin filled two baskets with food and wen to the house on Reservoir road. There he found Walker, near death from starvation.

On that visit Posin saw for the first time the contrivance that Walker had designed as a sleeping quarters.

"It was shaped like a dog-house," he said. "It had a glass-paneled door at one end. The old man used to slide in feet first, then close the door at his head. He had air vents in the sides to provide ventilation."

Hyman Posin said that the old man had often told him of his invention and had boasted that it kept him warm on the coldest nights.

There were no lights in the house, neither electricity, kerosene lamps or candles. Downstairs, in a kind of subbasement, was a crude fireplace of stones over which Walker did his little coking.

Indicative of his background was found a complete set of "Encyclopedia Brittanica" and books on engineering.

As an explanation for the old man's desire to hide himself from the world, Hyman Posin suggested an episode that he had heard Walker recount. A house that Walker owned in Virginia was burned. Walker believed that it had been set on fire. He thought, maybe, that someone was trying "to get him." Young Posin also was unable to learn the nature of the domestic tragedy that made the old man cry when he was questioned about his wife.

Young Posin went to the house yesterday because the old man had again been absnt from work. He remembered that Walkr had asked on Thursday for someone to come to see him if he didn't get to the market. Posin thinks he had a premonition of death.

The interior of the house, Posin said, was "all cut up." Rooms were subdivided into other rooms and their entrances and exits twisted about bewilderingly. There were no stairs; only slattd planks leading precariously upward from the basement. Posin groped about for hours before he found the entrance to the cupola. Leaning against the door, he said, were cobwebbed boards and trash that looked as though they had been undisturbed for years.

Apparently Walker had attempted to disguise the entrance to his room and got in himself by pushing back the trash only far enough to squeeze in.

The elder Posin said that Walker was about 82 years old. "And he must have been a giant of a man once. He stood a head taller than me and when I first knew him he had a powerful handgrip. Yes sir, he must have been a giant of a man once."

A Three Days' Cough Is Your Danger Signal

Just a common cough, a chest cold, or a bronchial irritation of today may lead to serious trouble tomorrow. They may be relieved now with Creomulsion, an emulsified Creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a medicinal combination designed to aid nature in soothing and healing infected mucous membranes by allaying irritation and inflammation and by aiding in loosening and expelling the germ-laden phlegm.

The Medical Profession has for many years recognized the beneficial effect of Beechwood Creosote in the treatment of coughs, chest colds, and bronchial irritations. A special process was worked out by a chemist, for blending Creosote with other ingredients and now in Creomulsion you get a real dose of genuine Beechwood Creosote which is palatable and can even be taken frequently and continuously by both adults and children.

Creomulsion is one preparation that goes to the very seat of the trouble to help loosen and expel the germ-laden phlegm. When coughs, chest colds and bronchial troubles—due to common colds—hang on, get a bottle of Creomulsion from your druggist, use it as directed and if you are not satisfied with the relief obtained, the druggist is authorized to refund every cent of your money. Creomulsion is one word—not two, and it has no hyphen in it. Ask for it plainly, see that the name on the bottle is Creomulsion, and you'll get the genuine product and the relief that you want. Businessmen Unite to Fight Privilege Tax 25 Groups Form Tentative Organization to Guide D. C. Program.

Union of District business and professional associations to fight the business privilege tax was foreshadowed at a meeting of representatives of approximately 25 organizations last night at the Hotel Hamilton.

Under chairmanship of A. Julian Brylawski, of the Moving Picture Theater Owners Association, a committee was appointed to draw up tentative plans for formation of a "united front" to advise Congress on taxation needs of Washington as well as seek revison of the present tax system.

Although the majority of business, trade and professional leaders at the meeting agreed on desirability of united action, a discordant note was struck whin A. F. Collins, of the Central Business Mens Association, expressed emphatic opposition, urging his listeners "to tend to our own burdens."

Approving the proposed union, A. L. Suter, president of the District Pharamaceutical Association, nevertheless warned that "the only thing that is going to get attention in Congress is wiume."

Rufus Lusk, Washington Taxpayers Association, also expressed agreement with aims of the conference, but urged District business men to "go to the Budget Bureau and say that you don't want a budget of more than $46,000,000. The two men down there have more to do with what we're going to have to pay than anyone else in Washington."

The meeting, called by the Federation of Business Men's Associations, adjourned to November 1 when a drafting committee will report. Members of the committee, in addition to Brylawski and Lusk, are W. I. Cleveland, American Automobile Association; Dial Elkins, the Graphic Arts Association; Theodore S. Grape, president of the Federation of Business Men's Associations; Fairfax Oyster, New Center Market Dealers Association, and, conditionally, Mason Welsh, District Bar Association.

Among other organizations represented at last night's conference were: Board of Trade, Washington Automotive Association, Keystone Automobile Club, District Dental Society, Real Estate Board, Electric Institute, District Medical Society, Hote Association, Liquor Dealers Association, District Building and Loan League and the Portia Club.

Slayer of 2, Saved From a Mob, Dies

St. Petersburg, Fla., Oct. 18 (AP).—Death early today climaxed a grim manhunt for the colored slayer of two St. Petersburg policemen, after officials had saved him, through a ruse, from possible mob action.

Chief of Police D. D. Vaughn said the man was J. O. Moses, who was wounded and captured last night after he had been hunted since Saturday night for the slaying of Motorcycle Officer James A. Thornton and Patrolman William G. Newberry at a circus here.

Vaughan said Moses was shot while resisting arrest when discovered at a colored dwelling, and that he was carried in a mortuary basket through a crowd that quickly gathered at the house. The mob was told the man was dead. He was carried to an undertaking establishment where doctors worked for hours to save his life, but failed.

Army Plane Transports Paralyzed Girl in 'Lung'

Wichita Falls, Tex., Oct. 18 (AP).—Miss Dorothy Ruth Chastain, 16-year-old infantile paralysis victim, came home today in an Army freight plane placed at her disposal by President Roosevelt. The plane was fitted with an "iron lung" for the trip from Tulsa, Okla., where she had been in a hospital for five weeks.

Because of the necessity for a large plane to carry the respirator, the girl's father, J. H. Chastain, an oil field driller, and friends appealed to President Roosevelt for the loan of an Army plane. He granted the request.

Sultan for Tax On Incomes if Limited to D. C.

Commissioner Holds Levy on Business Privilege Must Be Revised If Kept.

Col. Dan I. Sultan, Engineer Commissioner, yesterday said he was favorable to a District income tax providing a law can be enacted that will be effective and applicable only to residents that don't pay State income levies.

The Commissioner emphasized, however, that he had not decided on which of the major taxes under consideration — business privilege, sales, or income—he would support and that he will maintain an open mind until the District tax committee makes its recommendations.

At the same time he indorsed The Washington Post referendum on taxes and said the Commissioners would welcome the choices of taxpayers as presented in the poll.

Col. Sultan, who in the past has leaned toward a sales tax, said he still would prefer "a good sales tax" to a "weak income tax."

Sultan's views on the income tax correspond rather closely with those of Commissioner George E. Allen. Commissioner Melvin C. Hazen, however, holds that the income tax should fall upon everyone who earns his income in the District regardless of where he maintains a legal residence.

The Engineer Commissioner said he would urge repeal of the intangible personal property tax, which he called "vicious," if an income tax were adopted.

The business privilege tax, if it be renewed, he said, must undergo severe revision. However, he opposed a suggestion that it be stripped of its gross receipts aspect and be limited to a graduated license for the privilege of doing business.

"That would mean that our return would be cut from several million dollars to a few thousand," he said.

Meanwhile, the business privilege tax section of the assessor's office was digging out from under a mass of last-minute returns. Allen F. Brooke, administrator, said it would require seveal days to determine how many business and professional men have complied with the law.

First Lady Sees Youth Bold as in Pioneer Days

New York, Oct. 18 (AP).—The youth of today, in the opinion of Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, is assuming its burdens with the same kind of courage shown by the youth of pioneer days, and the modern girl is meeting new problems with success. The First Lady expressed her views to the Women's League for Palestine, launching today a campaign to raise $150,000 for a new home for immigrant girls in Jerusalem.

Boy Actor Gets $98,000 And $1 Weekly for Self

Los Angeles, Oct. 18 (AP). — After three months of bickering between his aunt and Metro Goldwyn-Mayer studios, Freddie Bartholomew today got a $50,000-a-year pay increase—plus one dollar a week spending money. The new contract calls for $98,000 a year, Freddie said, "I made Mr. (Louis B.) Mayer sign a contract under which I am to receive $1 a week pocket money to spend myself."

Disease Is Rife in Poorhouses, Kennedy Tells Governor Nice Conditions in Maryland Institutions 'Public Disgrace,' State Senator Chargegs After Inspection; Warns of Lack of Medical Attention.

By the Associated Press.

Baltimore, Oct. 18.—State Senator Raymond E. Kennedy, of Baltimore, charged tonigh conditions prevailing at some of Maryland's 15 county almshouses constitute a "public disgrace" and amount to "criminal negligence."

In a report of a personal inspection of eight almshouses, submitted to Gov. Harry W. Nice, Kennedy asserted the "lack of care" given "a large number of unfortunates in the socalled 'poor-houses'" presented a "situation which surpasses belief."

He reported all of the eight institutions he inspected, located in Harford, Baltimore, St. Marys, Frederick, Washington, Carroll, Anne Arundel and Prince Georges, were "fire traps." Conditions at the St. Mary's County almshouse were "simply intolerable," he said.

In general, he wrote Gov. Nice, "I found men and women suffering from all sorts of chronic diseases, and in most cases medical attention was either absent or handled in a most slipshod manner."

"There is not a single complete medical history of any of the approximately 600 inmates of the almshouses," he continued. "In most of the institutions themselves, they have nothing more than the name of the inmate. Persons were found suffering from cancer, who were living under squalid conditions, sharing a room with another person.

"Two aged colored women were found locked in a bathroom in the Baltimore County almshouse at Texas. Both were mental cases."

Landon on Air Tonight Faces Mid-Term Split

Sen. Borah Advises Against Session; 5 Committeemen Are in Favor.

The address by former Gov. Landon may be heard over Station WMAL from 9:30 to 10 o'clock, Washington time, tonight.

Awaiting former Gov. Alf M. Landon's radio "mass meeting" tonight on "certain questions of the day," Republican lieutenants divided yesterday on the wisdom of a midterm national party convention to crystallize Republican objectives next year.

Senator William E. Borah, from his home in Boise, Idaho, opposed the conference proposal after a majority of national committeemen from the District and nearby States indorsed the plan following a regional conference with National Chairman John Hamilton.

Speculation here turned on whether Landon, who is said to have misgivings about the convention idea, would mention it in his broadcast tonight. Party leaders remained close mouthed on the questions to be discussed by the Kansan. Hamilton said the speech would be "of deep interest to every Republican and to other voters."

Advises Against Convention.

Associated Press dispatches quoted Borah last night as "strongly advising against" the conference proposal, objecting that the convention or gathering "would have no authority, no authenticity behind it."

But five out of six Republican national committeemen polled following the local regional conference here yesterday, declared in favor of the convention plan. A sixth was noncommittal.

Of Republican leaders from the District of Columbia, Virginia, Maryland and Delaware, the following national committeemen favored the conference suggestion to be laid before a November 5 meeting of the national committee in Chicago:

E. F. Colladay and Mrs. Virginia White Speel, for the District; Henry A. Wise and Mrs. Mary Boocock, for Virginia, and former Senator Daniel O. Hastings, for Delaware.

Mrs. Edmonia Lawson, national committeewoman for Maryland, declined to express an opinion pending further development of sentiment.

Hoover Favors Convention.

Former President Hoover has been backing the convention idea in conferences with party leaders. Landon, who has made no formal commitment, recently is said to have shared the views of Congressional Republican leaders, who have questioned the wisdom of the plan. Hamilton has announced he will put the proposal up to the national committee in Chicago.

"I think a midterm convention would be very valuable in affording an opportunity to the 17,000,000 Republicans or more to express themselves through their representatives and to stand up and be counted," Colladay commented following yesterday's regional meeting.

"I feel all elements and leaders would be represented at such a convention and any conflict of ideas would be ironed out."

Mrs. Speel said she was "very much in favor" of the proposed conference, and Mrs. Boocock said, "The Republican Party has to do something to formulate a statement of principles so that the country may know what we stand for and where we propose to go."

Wants Statement of Policies.

Saying he was in favor of a convention if it would make an affirmative statement of Republican principles and policies, former Senator Hastings said "we want to know what the party stands for." As a method of selecting delegates, Hastaings proposed that the national executive committee pick five members of the policy committee, with an additional five selected by representatives of State committees and Young Republican groups. These would pick five other outside Republicans. This group of 15 would pick delegates in addition to national committee members and chairmen and vice chairmen of State committees.

Borah last night in his Boise statement declared there would be no better way to stir discord than to start such a convention.

"A declaration of principles coming from a body of self-selected delegates would be nothing more than the views of those individuals," said the Idaho Republican. "Furthermore, if such views are put out as being party views, I believe a wide controversy would start at once."

Quiet on Other Reasons.

He said there were "other reasons why such a convention or gathering should not assume to speak for the party, but I do not care to state those reasons at this time."

Besides Colladay and Mrs. Speel, District Republican leaders attending yesterday's regional conference here included James C. Wilkes, chairman of the Republican State committee for the District; Mme. Julia Cantacuzene, president of the League of Republican Women; Perry K. Heath, finance chairman, Republican State Committee for the District; Paul E. Lesh, member executive committee, Republican State Committee for the District; Albert E. Conradis, president of Young Republicans of District; Mrs. Alberta Rhodes, Young Republican national committeewoman; Francis Wells, president Landon-Knox Campaign League of 1936; Mrs. Marie Madre Marshall, Republican State Committee for the District; Edgar C. Snyder, treasurer Republican State Committee for the District; William H. Mondell, Young Republican national committeeman; Clyde D. Garrett, secretary State Committee for the District.

AMERICA'S FINEST SILVER

SPECIALLY EXHIBITED THIS WEEK

For one week all of Washington will have an opportunity to see examples of the finest silver craftsmanship. Exquisite pieces in patterns of enduring beauty will be displayed by the leading manufacturers, including International, Reed and Barton, Gorham and Wallace. Complete tea services, graceful hollowware, and gleaming flat silver in both Sterling and plated silver in the collection.

You will see such beautiful services as: A Florenz design by Gorham in a complete tea service of coffee, cream, sugar, tea, waste, kettle, and 24-inch waiter, at $1,950. International will show a Sterling service of five pieces in the Fontainbleu pattern for $800. In addition, a water pitcher at $350, candlesticks at $275 a pair, and center pieces at $200 can be had in the same pattern. Reed and Barton will present a complete line of Sterling hollowware including salad bowls, center pieces, candlesticks, compotes, sandwich plates, cake plates, and tea services.

Glistening Flatware, over 110 patterns—A brilliant array of the old, of the new, in flatware, Sterling and plated silver. And there are unusual deviations, such as a table instead of a chest to hold your flatware. A 74-piece service of plated silver by Gorham in the Churchill pattern. Console buffet table in either mahogany veneer or walnut veneer.

This is one of the most unusual silver displays that has ever been held in Washington; as a collector, as a connoisseur, as a potential purchaser . . . you cannot afford to miss it.

Duce Says Only 40,000 of His Men Aid Franco

Britain and France Map Strategy on Eve of 'Volunteers' Parley.

By the Associated Press.

London, Oct. 18.—Great Britain and France drafted a plan of joint action today for tomorrow's crucial nonintervention meeting over which Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden will preside in an effort to drive through an agreement to withdraw foreign volunteers from Spain's civil war.

Eden conferred at length with Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain and French Ambassador Charles Corbin on Franco-British policy.

A semiofficial ssertion from Rome that only 40,000 Italian troops were fighting with the Spanish insurgent armies projected a new element of strife into the negotiations.

British and French authorities have expressed belief there are at least 100,000 Italians serving under Insurgent Generalissimo Franco, and have urged a "token" withdrawal on that basis as a guarantee of good faith.

The Spanish embassy, commenting on the Rome report, stated the Valencia government had information there are "110,000 Italians in Spain."

The publication of the Italian figures in an organ of the official Sefani News Agency was believed to show the basis on which Premier Mussolini wants to bargain in tomorrow's discussion of the actual number of withdrawals.

Informed quarters declared there was "no optimism" in regard to success of the conference.

Store Messenger Robbed of $2,000

William E. Matthews, 45-year-old colored messenger for the People's Drug Co., was robbed yesterday morning of $2,000 by another colored man who attacked him near the viaduct on Florida Avenue northeast.

The messenger was knocked from his bicycle by the assailant, who disappeared through the railroad yards. District police notified Maryland authorities immediately after the robbery when it was said the bandit hopped a north-bound freight train. Matthews told police he was on his way to the bank with the money when attacked.

Supreme Court Refuses Review Of Honor Slaying

John Francis Hunter, former Arlington, Va., railroad brakeman, lost in the Supreme Court yesterday an attempt to escape a 20-year prison term for the "honor" slaying of his wife, Anna Delmas Hunter, for which an Arlington County jury found him guilty of second-degree murder last February.

The high court refused to pass upon a judgment against Hunter by the Virginia Supreme Court.

Hunter was confined in the State Hospital, at Marion, Va., after the slaying, in 1934, of his wife and Henry E. Corcoran, Veterans' Administration attorney. He was returned to Arlington County for trial when Dr. George A. Wright, superintendent of the hospital, reported to Judge Walter McCarthy that the man was not then insane.

At the trial Hunter's attorneys told the jury the defendant had acted on an impulse to defend the "honor" of his wife in slaying her and Corcoran at the Hunter home in Virginia Highlands. His counsel cited "unwritten law" and attacked legality of his hospital confinement and of the "short form" indictment under which Hunter was brought to trial.

Drive on Disease In Resorts of Vice Brings Death Note

Chicago, Oct. 18 (AP).—A move to extend the city's antisyphilis campaign to vice resorts brought threats of death today to Dr. Herman N. Bundesen, president of the board of health.

He disclosed he had received a letter this morning which warned:

"You are going to get som (sic) lead pills and pineapples to digest.

"You won't nail any more signs up on doors in a hurry, you snak faced (sic) louse."

It was signed by "Bllacksman, Vultures of Chicago," and "Poison Pete."

Last Friday, Dr. Bundesen tacked a venereal disease quarantine placard on the door of a West Side brothel.

Paralysis Victim On Second Long Jaunt in 'Lung'

Chicago, Oct. 18 (AP).—Fred B. Snite, jr., headed into the south tonight on the second major journey during his 18 months' imprisonment in an "iron lung."

Smiling his gratitude for the well wishes of scores of friends who watched his transfer from Billings Memorial Hospital to a special train, the 27-year-old victim of infantile paralysis observed the carefully executed proceedings in a mirror above his head.

Snite was stricken in China while on a world tour with his family. He made the 9,300-mile trip from Peiping in the early summer, reaching Chicago June 22. His latest travel will take him 1,497 miles to Miami, Fla., and the Snite winter home.

Hosford Belabors Coal Rise Rumors

Chairman Charles F. Hosford, jr., of the National Bituminous Coal Commission, last night denounced "wold reports and unsupported predictions" that Federal regulation would increase soft coal prices.

In a radio address, Hosford said such predictions were resigned either to "build up false public antagonism" to the Guffy-Vinson coal control act, "or they are harbinger of a plan by chislers to impose undue prices upon the domestic consumer."

Asserting the commission had taken no action warranting either the predictions or actual price increases, Hosford said:

"The commission cannot govern retail prices of coal to domestic consumers, but certainly we will lend our moral support to every effort to maintain reasonable prices and fair trade practices among retail dealers."

2 Garrs Go on Trial For Denhardt Murder

Shelbyville, Ky., Oct. 18 (AP).—Roy and Jack Garr went on trial today charged with murdering Brig. Gen Henry H. Denhardt, whom they accused of killing their sister, but Dr. E. S. Garr, the third brother, remained in a sanitarium.

Moors, Italians Mass to Blast Aragon Front

Loyalists Drive at Zaragoza to Forestall Anticipated Major Offensive.

By the Associated Press.

Madrid, Oct. 18.—Spanish government dispatches tonight reported that the insurgent high command had massed large concentrations of Moorish and Italian troops and German artillery along the Aragon front. There were indications of an impending insurgent major offensive there.

On a semi-circular front around Zaragoza, 175 miles northeast of Madrid, government forces launched fierce artillery and infantry attacks, seeking to forestall the anticipated insurgent offensive.

The government reported that its entrenchments south of Zuera were blasted by German rapid-fire fieldpieces while large numbers of Italian troops prepared to attack.

Hendaye, Franco-Spanish Frontier, Oct. 18 (AP).—The Spanish government's dynamite-throwing Asturian troops, harassed by aircraft and artillery, stubbornly resisted today the insurgent advance toward Gijon, last important government stronghold on the northern coast of Spain.

The Asturians hastily dug new lines of fortifications as they were forced to fall back. Insurgent planes bombed Villaviciosa, their immediate objective, and raided the outskirts of Gijon. Villaviciosa is 25 miles east of Gijon.

Military dispatches said the insurgent troops had advanced beyond Colunga, 36 miles east of Gijon, and begun cleaning-up operations in recently occupied territory.

Academy of Sciences To Study Job Census

Dr. Stuart A. Rice, chairman of the Central Statistical Board, will address the Washington Academy of Sciences on the unemployment census in the Cosmos Club at 8:15 p. m. Thursday.

Masses Are Said Again In Rheims Cathedral

Rheims, France, Oct. 18 (AP).—Historic 700-year-old Rheims Cathedral, almost completely destroyed in the World War, was reconsecrated today. High dignitaries of the Catholic Church and humble worshipers thronged the restored nave of the famous edifice for the day-long ceremony.

Work of restoration, completed yesterday, covered a period of 20 years.

Crash Kills Bicyclist

HARRIET I. GROVES, 18-year-old Fairfax County girl, was killed almost instantly yesterday when a bicycle she was riding was in collision with a car in Clarendon.

Falls Church Girl Killed When Auto Smashes Bicycle

Harriett B. Groves, 18, of East Falls Church, Va., niece of Police Capt. Hugh Groves, was killed yesterday when she was knocked from her bicycle on Wilson boulevard in Arlington County.

Miss Groves' death came a short time after the death in Children's Hospital of 6-month-old Barbara Gasser, 2233 Fortieth place northwest, who was injured Sunday night in a crash south of Warrenton, Va.

The infant, the second victim of the accident which took the life of her aunt, Miss Pauline Marschalk, 60, of Cocoa, Fla., was riding with her father, Ernest E. Gasser. The car rolled down a 30-foot embankment after a three-way collision.

Police reported the Groves girl was struck by an automobile driven by Herman Kidan, 36, of Vienna, Va., who was released to appear in court later.

Meanwhile, 6-year-old Julia Dorsey, of Vienna, Va., was injured critically yesterday when she was struck by a car in front of her home. She was brought here to Children's Hospital.

Baby Gas Mask Fittings Are Slated in England

London, Oct. 18 (AP).—Home Office experts announced today they would conduct gas mask fitting trials on babies Wednesday at an infants' nursing home at Hawkhurst, Kent. The babies will serve as models for the rest of Great Britain's baby population in event of an air raid.

Warns Passengers to Rear; Runaway Car Smashes Another in Rush Hour.

Fifteenth and F streets without mishap.

In most serious condition of those injured, of whom seven were women, was Mrs. Connie Thompson, 647 Seventh street northeast, who was admitted to Emergency Hospital in an undetermined condition after being picked up unconscious from the loading platform. She had been hurled down by the impact just as she was boarding the standing car.

Others injured, treated for bruises, lacerations and shock and sent home, were Mrs. Sadie Waltz, 66, of 236 Massachusetts avenue northwest; Alpha Hamilton, 35, 3130 Alabama avenue southeast; Mrs. Ethlyn Rolff, of 1300 Locust street northwest; Cora Drake, 48, of 1507 M street northwest; Gladys Sanford, 30, of 4113 Third street northwest; Meyer Bell, of 411 Seward square southeast; Lavinia Wine, of 4109 Eighteenth street northwest, and Andrew Jackson, of 2244 Seventeenth street northwest.

With the exception of Mrs. Thompson, police reported, all of those injured were passengers on the two cars.

The rear of the standing car was demolished, the runaway escaping with comparatively little damage. Further complications developed when the wrecked car was being towed to the barn. Acetylene torches had to be used on it at almost every loading zone to permit the shattered wreckage to pass.

Company officials said the accident was traced to a broken brake bar.

Giant Mill Worker Accused of Hurling Boss Into Furnace

Mobile, Ala., Oct. 18 (AP).—A giant colored mill hand, jailed here, was accused today of hurling Chief Engineer Midd Draughn, of a veneer plant, shrieking to his death in a blazing furnace because the white man criticized his work.

Draughn died October 8. Police reports first described the incident as an accident.

4 Youths Arrested For Attack on Girl

Four youths, the oldest 20, were charged with assault with intent to rape last night in connection with an attack upon a 16-year-old girl.

Police arrested the boys, Sunday night and yesterday after the complaint of the girl who is the niece of a District policeman.

Police said the youths met the girl at a dance in Forestville, Md., Saturday night and agreed to take her with two girl friends into town.

According to affidavits, the youths took the other girls to their homes then rode to a secluded spot in Anacostia where the attack occurred. A fifth youth is sought.

Venezuelan Paintings Exhibited at Museum

About 20 small paintings based on the life and mythology of the Venezuelan Indians were put on display yesterday at the National Museum. The work of Gilberto Antolinez, young Venezuelan artist, they were brought to Washington by Senora Maria Luisa de Escobar Saluzzo, president of the Atheneum of Caracas.

Dr. Diogenes Escalante, the Venezuelan Minister; Senora de Escobar Saluzzo and Dr. Frank M. Seltzer, curator of the Department of Anthropology, were present at a ceremony at noon, opening the exhibition.

"I MADE A DEPOSIT"
"I WANT IT BACK"

While the Better Business Bureau of Washington, D. C., Inc., exists to combat misrepresentation and fraud, it cannot assist in the breaking of bona fide contracts.

A deposit made on a given article means that the merchant must withdraw it from sale pending payment in full by the customer. To ask him to return a deposit is both unreasonable and unfair. While many Washington retailers, as a matter of policy, return deposit payments, regardless, there is no way of compelling them to do so.

A deposit made on an article purchased "seals the contract." In the absence of misrepresentation or fraud, a contract is a "meeting of minds" on which both purchaser and seller have the right to rely.

Careful selection, due consideration before final purchase and a "fair deal" for the seller, are just as essential to good business as the "square deal" which the legitimate merchant, through the Better Business Bureau, offers to the public.

Contracts faithfully performed are the foundation of prosperity and confidence. And, in Washington, D. C.—"Public Confidence counts most."

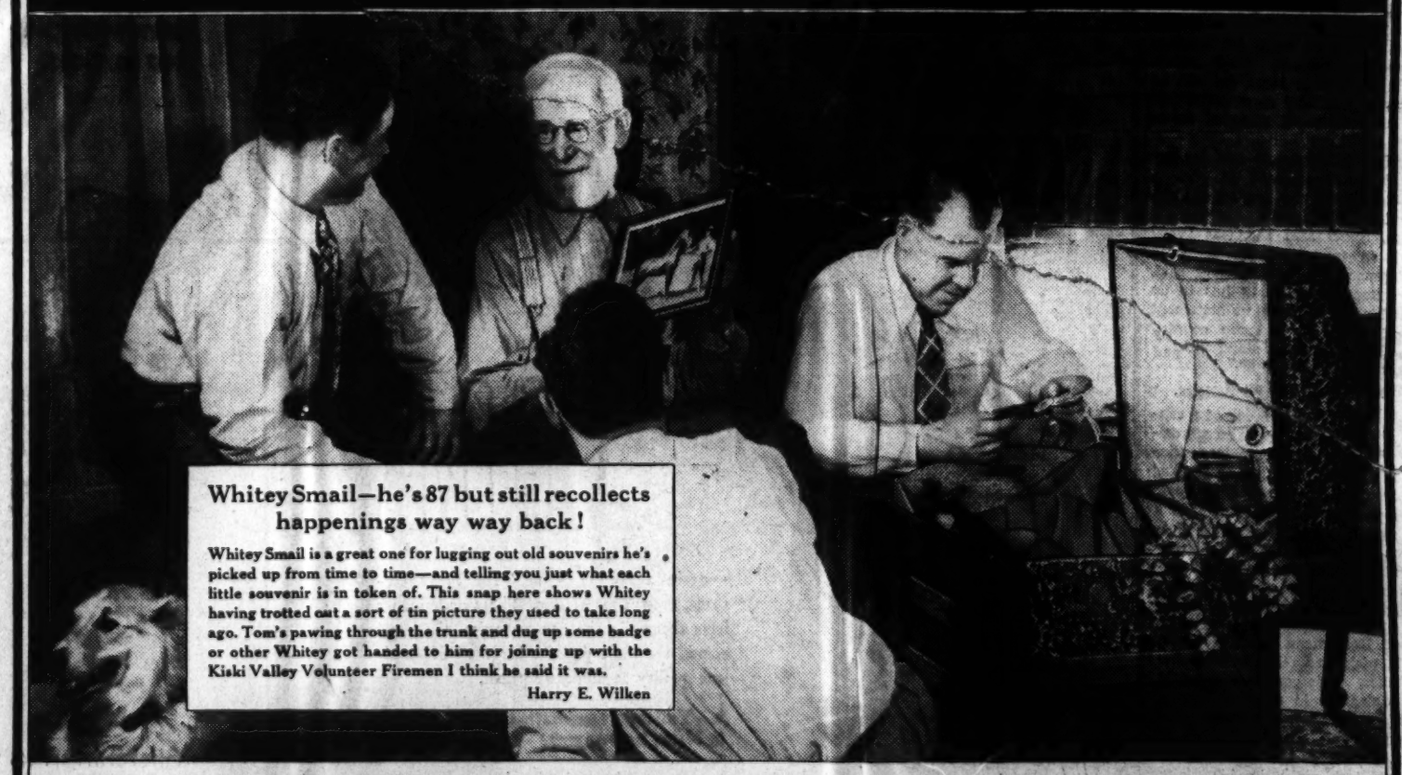
THE WILKEN FAMILY
BLENDED WHISKEY



Whitey Smail—he's 87 but still recollects happenings way way back!

Whitey Smail is a great one for lugging out old souvenirs he's picked up from time to time—and telling you just what each little souvenir is in token of. This snap here shows Whitey having trotted out a sort of tin picture they used to take long ago. Tom's pawing through the trunk and dug up some badge or other Whitey got handed to him for joining up with the Kiski Valley Volunteer Firemen I think he said it was.

Harry E. Wilken

and you're getting Our Family's own personal whiskey recipe!

So far I've never yet found a solitary person that isn't agreed concerning our own Family's Recipe being about the mildest and tastiest he ever took a swallow of. That is providing he's ever had a taste of it. Of course there's some that never yet got to try The Wilken Family Whiskey so you can't count them in.

But here's what a lot of folks just can't make out for the life of them. They can't figure how it should be that this whiskey that's selling so reasonable should be so extra mild and tasty. Well maybe they don't know there's 3 whole generations of experience back of that tastiness! Only the oldest inhabitant in our town can recollect back to when our family first started up distilling. I'd like awfully well for you to try it sometime soon!

Harry E. Wilken

It's Our Family's Whiskey, neighbor—and it's sure Tasty and Mild!

The Federal Diary

Reg. U. S. Patent Office.

By Scott Hart.

This week and the next, the last two weeks of the month, will offer some hot time entertainment for Government workers. Here are some samples, and you may take your choice.

The Public Works Recreational Association will throw a dance Friday night in the Shoreham Hotel ballroom. The hours are 10 to 1. Members and their friends will be welcomed.

On Thursday night the West Virginia State Society gives the first dance and reception of the season in the ballroom of the Raleigh Hotel. The officers are David S. Davidson, resident; John L. Bateman, recording secretary; Mrs. Sada C. Shinn, financial secretary; Col. J. William DeGrange, treasurer; Col. D. W. Gall, historian, and A. Hood Phillis, first vice president.

The New York State Society opens its winter season with a Halloween dance the evening of October 30 at the Shoreham Hotel. Those wishing to unite with the society should communicate with Maurice E. Sands, 410 Eleventh street northeast. The officers are Dr. Lamar Harris, Clarendon, president; C. M. Little, treasurer; Miss Pauline B. Parco, 208 Dupont Circle Apartments, secretary; Dr. W. J. Davis, historian, and vice presidents as follows: Walter D. Sutcliffe, Samuel J. Gomers and Miss Leona Decker.

A fancy costume ball is planned for Halloween eve by Local 10 (Social Security Board), United Federal Workers of America. The event will be held in the grand ballroom of the Willard Hotel, beginning at 10 and ending at 1 a. m. You may appear in costume or not, just as preferred.

The Interior Department Recreation Association pitches its Halloween dance on the 29th. They expect nearly 1,000 persons. The scene is the activities space in the new building, which will be decorated for the occasion.

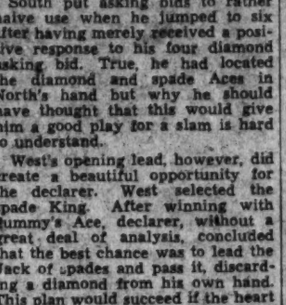
Choice of Plans.

It is not always easy to choose the best line of play from several alternative lines. Particularly when the various plans closely resemble each other, declarer does himself and his partner a great injustice unless he takes the time to consider the respective merits of each course. No player in the world is great enough to make these decisions instantaneously. Consider today's hand.

South, dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.



The bidding:

South	West	North	East
3 ♡	Pass	3 ♠	Pass
4 ◇	Pass	4 N T	Pass
6 ♡	Pass	Pass	Pass

South put asking bids to rather naive use when he jumped to six after having merely received a positive response to his four diamond asking bid. True, he had located the diamond and spade Aces in North's hand but why he should have thought that this would give him a good play for a slam is hard to understand.

West's opening lead, however, did create a beautiful opportunity for the declarer. West selected the spade King. After winning with dummy's Ace, declarer, without a great deal of analysis, concluded that the best chance was to lead the Jack of spades and pass it, discarding a diamond from his own hand. This plan would succeed if the heart suit were divided 2-2 so that the heart Jack would be an eventual entry to the long spades. West won the Queen and naturally shifted to the suit that declarer had discarded. The diamond Ace won and two rounds of hearts were led, ending in dummy. East, however, still had a spade stopper and a trump, and, although declarer was able to discard on the established ten of spades, he still had to take the club finesse, which lost.

Declarer had chosen a fair plan but not the best. It was possible to determine the break of hearts before making the final decision of how to go about spade establishment. After winning the spade Ace, declarer should have ruffed a low spade, then should have laid down the Ace and a low heart. Trumps not breaking, it would do no good to pass the Jack of spades, because West, on winning, would certainly return a diamond and remove dummy's entry while East still had a trump. Therefore, declarer would be forced to ruff another low spade. This ruff would knock out West's Queen so that, after drawing East's remaining trump, declarer could comfortably return to the diamond Ace, cash the Jack and ten of spades for two diamond discards, and then freely take the club finesse, not caring much whether or not it succeeded.

As Unemployment Declines.

Secretary Perkins' report that 239,596 persons were placed in private jobs by the United States Employment Service during September indicates that there are encouraging as well as disheartening factors in the present economic situation. Up to the end of last month, at any rate, the so called army of unemployed was rapidly diminishing.

The number of men finding jobs through the Employment Service last month represents an increase of about 43 per cent over September, 1936. That is one of the best records in the history of the service. To some extent it may reflect increased efficiency on the part of this agency. But far more important is the decline in the total number of persons seeking work.

At the end of September the Employment Service held 4,636,744 applications for jobs in its active file. This means a drop of 32 per cent in the number of persons thus seeking work during the last year. It is reasonable to assume that the great majority of idle men who are willing to work are registered with the service. And since this list includes both jobless applicants and employes eager for better jobs, there is considerable justification for an optimistic view of the unemployment problem as a whole.

It is well to realize, however, that the groups remaining longest on the unemployment list are likely to be the most difficult to absorb into the country's economic system. That fact gives particular point to the naming by Miss Perkins of a Federal Committee on Apprentice Training. Its task will be to provide proper training for young people in those skilled occupations offering the greatest employment possibilities, and to fix standards of apprenticeship through co-operation with employers and labor unions.

In other words, this is an important step in the movement to overcome shortages of skilled labor and facilitate an orderly flow of workers into industrial plants wherever opportunities may become available. With the unemployment problem gradually losing its emergency character, the Labor Department should be able to concentrate more and more upon industrial education for those who are not readily absorbed into the economic system. If the department is as successful in this undertaking as it has been in the placement of jobless men, its particular responsibility with respect to unemployment will have been creditably discharged.

A Matter Of Patronage.

The National Bituminous Coal Commission is embroiled in a controversy over jobs and patronage. Its minority members claim that the majority have made most of the appointments, and Commissioner Lewis has apparently won his fight to secure a list of the names, grades and salaries of majority appointees.

It is not necessary to possess inside information regarding conditions within this particular organization to point a moral. In greater or less degree the work of every board and department of Government is seriously handicapped by disputes over patronage, unless appointments are made under the merit system. It is, of course, a more serious situation when spoilsmen are in possession of the best positions and use their appointive powers to give more jobs to deserving politicians. But even the most efficient public officials—men who are eager to select competent subordinates—are harassed by the importunities of the jobseeker and his friends when appointments go by favor.

The public is made aware of the evils of the system when open conflicts occur, as in case of the Coal Commission. Few people, however, have any conception of the total cost to the country of Congress' refusal to extend the merit system to numerous new agencies of its creation. That cost cannot be measured solely in terms of salaries paid to incompetent employes. There are in addition losses to the public, incalculable but very large, due to inefficient functioning of agencies handicapped by dependence upon an untrained personnel demoralized by insecurity of tenure.

Conflicting Railway Policies.

When production costs increase and profits begin to shrink the average businessman tries to restore the balance between income and outgo by raising the prices of goods offered for sale. Of course, it may not always be "good business" to add the full amount of the additional costs to selling prices if customers are inclined to balk. Nevertheless the seller is free to decide what adjustments are likely to be most advantageous.

Industries subject to Government regulation, however, are unable to modify their charges thus freely to allow for increased operating costs. They are forced to apply for relief to the responsible control agencies, and if the decision is adverse, they suffer accordingly. Our railroads, for example, are today suffering from the effects of regulation that has failed to envisage the problems of the industry in a comprehensive, far-sighted way. Federal agencies have neglected to co-ordinate wage and rate policies. They have not been as solicitous to prevent costs of operation from mounting as to keep costs of the service rendered the public from rising. In short, regulatory measures applied to the railroads have not recognized the importance of establishing a relationship between income and outgo that would assure the roads a fair profit.

During the present year we have witnessed the unfortunate effects of a one-sided emphasis upon keeping rates down, while governmental price-raising policies have helped to increase operating costs. By refusing to extend the emergency surcharges into 1937 the ICC deprived the roads of substantial anticipated revenues at a time when they were paying more for supplies and materials, facing heavier taxes and demands for increased wages.

The National Mediation Board is undoubtedly deserving of credit for the skillful way in which it has prevented strikes by rail unions. But the fact remains that recent increases in railway wage rates established through its mediation have added about $135,000,000 per annum to operating costs.

The cumulative results of these unfavorable factors—loss of potential revenues and increased operating costs—are reflected in the August returns of Class 1 roads. Their net operating income was 22.2 per cent below the level of a year ago, while the return on property investment was lower than at any time since 1932, in spite of the great subsequent increase in the volume of traffic. Recent pay increases will further boost operating costs. And pending legislation limiting the length of freight trains threatens to place a still heavier burden on the country's distressed railroads.

In face of this showing the severe decline in railway shares and secondary bonds that has featured the general stock market collapse is easy to understand. Apprehension regarding the future of the railroads is fully justified. If they are to continue under private management, they obviously must be released from the combined pressure of immobile charges and mounting expenses of operation.

Applications for freight rate increases are now pending and, if granted, will bring some relief. But it is important to keep in mind that freight rates have to be adjusted to what the traffic will bear. If costs of operation rise too rapidly, it may not be feasible to advance rates correspondingly, either because of the adverse effect upon general business or the danger of diverting traffic to competing agencies.

An Ironical Crash.

The Rocky Mountains have snagged another airliner. That range is proving as much of an obstacle to transcontinental flying as it once was to transcontinental railroading. Tunneling will not solve the problem for planes. Engineering of some sort, nonetheless, must hold the solution.

That conclusion tends to emphasize the importance of the investigations which follow every crash. The hope is they will yield a clue for safer aeronautical designs. Unfortunately, the wreckage is often too completely mangled or burned to be of much service in this respect and too many investigators, finding no evidence of mechanical deficiencies, are prone to conclude that the accident was due to a "pilot's error." The frequency of such verdicts raises serious question as to whether the underlying causes of airplane crashes are being brought to light. Regardless of any shortcomings of pilots, every crash should represent a challenge to aeronautic engineers.

By cruel irony, the day before this latest crash the Bureau of Air Commerce published a new code of air safety regulations. It is the result of nearly two years of study. Even laymen can appreciate its wisdom.

The new rules should end the many differences between commercial and private fliers. The latter, loath to install expensive two-way radios in their craft, have run frequent risks of colliding with the bigger planes. Now a simple set of "rules of the road" has been established which should minimize this danger. A second improvement effected by the new code is a stricter regulation of blind flying. It is only reasonable that instrument flights—at best hazardous—should be hedged with every possible safeguard.

Perhaps, with the general code completed, air officials will now be able to concentrate on details of safe flying. In particular, Washington is anxiously awaiting a settlement of its airport question. There seems to be no possibility of improving the present landing field here. Pending settlement on a new site, Bolling Field appears to be the safest spot for landing planes. The field is available and several operators are ready to move over. Yet the risky Washington Airport continues in use. Will it take a ghastly accident here to force an end to this delay?

Diplomatic Game At London.

The game of diplomatic battledore and shuttlecock which has been played by the London nonintervention committee over a period of many months has been resumed in an atmosphere of discouragement.

It is much too early, however, to accept the view that the committee's efforts are certain to meet with complete failure. That is a very real possibility. The gaps between the Italian, the Anglo-French and the Russian points of view may prove far too broad to bridge by any conceivable compromise. But even if they merely force a showdown, the committee's present deliberations should serve a useful purpose.

It was at Mussolini's behest that the London and Paris governments, which had been pressing the Duce to withdraw his legions from Spain, reluctantly consented to turn back the Spanish problem to the London committee. But the uneasiness of France over this retreat by the democratic powers, and Anthony Eden's warning to the Fascist states that there is a limit beyond which Great Britain will not be pushed, indicate that a policy of delay is certain to meet with strong opposition.

The British government, said Mr. Eden, is "not indifferent to the maintenance of the territorial integrity of Spain" nor to "the foreign policy of any future Spanish government" nor "to the complications which may arise in the Mediterranean as the outgrowth of the intervention of others in Spain." And, he added:

> This, of course, does not mean that we are prepared to acquiesce in dilatory tactics. The next few days will show whether or not the nations are prepared to make a sincere effort to deal with the Spanish problem in a spirit of real international collaboration.

Great Britain has certainly displayed remarkable patience of late. But that patience is not inexhaustible. The possibility remains that if those "few days" that Mr. Eden referred to lead to no constructive development regarding the Spanish problem Great Britain and France will again, as at Nyon, take the bit into their teeth. The fact that Italy has resumed its pro-Arab campaign with the clear purpose of embarrassing the British will not make London more amenable to Italian wishes. It may, on the contrary, stiffen the British attitude.

At London Italy has advanced the utterly unacceptable proposal that an equal number of foreign volunteers be withdrawn from the insurgent and loyalist armies after which belligerent rights would be accorded both sides. Since the Italian expeditionary force in Spain is alone believed to number six or seven times the total number of volunteers fighting for the Valencia government the Italian plan is too absurd for serious consideration. The French are entirely correct in demanding that any withdrawal of foreign volunteers from Spain be in proportion to the numbers serving on both sides.

Very likely the Italian plan was advanced for bargaining purposes only. But in the long run nothing will be accomplished at London without a strong and determined stand by Great Britain and France. Fortunately this can no longer be ruled out as a possibility despite the cautious effort of both governments to localize the Spanish crisis.

The state of Honduras is trying to sell a volcano, but if you are inclined to be nervous, perhaps you'd better not buy it.

A District Lottery?

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The District government appears to be in a quandary on how to raise the revenues that will be necessary for the ensuing year. My suggestion is for a District lottery, for the specific purposes of relief and public welfare. These two purposes would tend to minimize the usual objections made to lotteries — in other words, it would be a case of the end justifies the means.

Moreover, it would only be a case of history repeating itself, for a certain lottery figured in the early history of Washington.

It seems impossible or impracticable to prevent the sale in the District of foreign lottery tickets, genuine or counterfeit, and to suppress many forms of gambling in which the patrons have not a fair or an honest chance. Why, therefore, should there not be an official lottery which would give its patrons a fair run for their money, and especially when for such laudable purposes as relief and public welfare?

It also seems impossible or impracticable to get Congress to contribute to the support of the District that share of the cost which practically all residents of the District and many in Congress feel it should contribute. There would be a large sale of District lottery tickets to many of the thousands of visitors from all parts of the country, thus, in a measure, making the national contribution that the Congress now denies. More Disgust.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: "Disgusted Democrat's" letter "With Landon in Office" is up my alley. In the early days of the "Deal" I'd have taken violent exception to it. Now I'd like to supplement it.

I think Landon would have had courage to risk unpopularity living up to pledges; would not have let a session of Congress degenerate into acrimonious debate upon an issue deleted from campaign mention; would have urged it to devote its time to the Nation's business.

While no tender overtures would have been made to industrial royalists, large or small, on the other hand he wouldn't senselessly revile them to curry favor with the large unthinking minority. Business could proceed with reasonable confidence, whereof the chief beneficiary would be today's dupe and goat, whose bewildered brain blinds him to facts—Forgotten Man.

A vast crowd of the spoilsmen would have taken it on the lam, except the natural chameleons who change political spots on demand, but the load would be lighter. For this, of course, the hands-out crew would be reviling him with their best adjectives.

If afflicted by his predecessor's itch for fireside chats, the radio would not be a court of last resort to put over some wild pet scheme. He would have something definite to report, like inroads made into the Roosevelt national debt; not just a new set of promises to present, of which in time even the dupes grow weary. G. A. FARSON.

Sharecropper Loans.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: One can hardly believe in this day and time there lives such a man who signed himself "Anti-New Dealer" in a letter to The Post opposing the President's plan to spend $10,000,000 in small loans to tenant farmers and sharecroppers.

This plantation owner is loud in his praise of the homes and conditions of tenant farmers and sharecroppers in his section. He sneers at their intelligence and business ability. Well, when a whole family must work from sun-up till sundown, one doesn't have much ambition to study.

Those who would deprive the poor sharecropper and tenant farmer of a small Government loan to take them off relief and make them self-supporting citizens were outvoted last election.

Halloween Protection.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The thirty-first of this month (Sunday) is technically Halloween. When this yearly event is to be celebrated, on Sunday or on Monday, or whether the community is to have the celebration inflicted on it for two nights I am not yet aware.

From a harmless night previously observed by neighborhood parties and a few innocent pranks among themselves on the part of the very young the night has now become one of positive unrestrained and unpunished lawlessness and vandalism directed solely to the destruction and defilement of the property of others.

Matters have certainly become definitely worse since the adoption of the ill-advised plan of having public parades and carnivals on that night, requiring the presence downtown of practically the entire police force and leaving absolutely unprotected the residence section of the city, including particularly the suburban areas.

From year to year the night has become just a little worse—destruction of hedges, lawn benches, flower urns, bird baths, fences, garage doors, flower gardens, windows, etc. I have found it useless to complain to the police—a very fine set of public servants. They are helpless, considering the insufficient force to cope with the overwhelming odds of a city gone mad for the night. To protest to the perpetrators accomplishes nothing except impertinence and increased vandalism. In the case of elderly and ill persons, not accustomed to dealing with such lawlessness, the prospect is certainly not pleasant.

I would very much like to know just what are the rights of the property owner with respect to the protection of his property when the authorized police guardians are manifestly unable to afford such protection. Is such a home owner, in the event of invasion and trespass with a view to defilement and vandalism, entitled to defend his premises by very drastic means—and I allude to buckshot—on Halloween the same as on any other of the 364 nights of the year?

I would be willing, for one, to hire a properly authorized private watchman supplied by the Police Department for that time and would not consider it under the circumstances in the same category as paying tribute to a racket.

The FCC Example

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Three cheers for Chairman Frank R. McNinch and his "weeding out" program in the Federal Communications Commission! There are plenty of commissions here that could stand a little of the same, honeycombed as they are with soft snaps paying huge salaries. That is where the high cost of government lies, in the $7,500 jobs, and not among the $1,440 personnel.

At one stroke Mr. McNinch lopped off three $7,500 positions, along with three $2,500 secretarial positions. That is indeed a beginning and I note from the newspaper descriptions of the three gentlemen in question they were all either friends or relatives of those in power.

Economy is being talked up again in the Federal service, but let it be applied as above, and not by cutting the smaller positions, or by refusing to raise them because Mr. Roosevelt has asked for budget reductions.

The little fellow need have no fear of Mr. Roosevelt's reorganization program, as clerical personnel will still be needed to carry on the work. It is only the "friendship" jobs paying up in the thousands who have to fear the axe.

Lament From The South.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Control of cotton crop surpluses in realistic language means reducing the yield to an ever dwindling demand as the export market be lost as a result of the high tariff wall which denies the users of cotton abroad a normal opportunity to obtain dollars with which to pay for United States produced cotton, and which denies the farmers, who must sell at world prices, an opportunity to buy their supplies in a reasonable market.

Minimum wages and maximum hours for industry will mean that the low cost of living in the South will not be able to develop labor employing industries. The South is already handicapped in developing industry by the capital gains tax and the super tax on undistributed profits.

Thus harassed, the South will continue to demand cash benefits from the Government for its cotton farmers, and relief for its idle labor.

A beautiful prospect, indeed!

Lower the tariff wall and the South will soon solve its own economic problems without the benefit of bonuses and relief.

For G. O. P. Convention.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I am young and impetuous and I am getting plenty tired of stacking just on forlorn hope against the might of the Morgenthau-Roosevelt-Farley machine (reading from intake through the advertising to the distributing department). That one hope is that if, given enough rope these gentlemen will hang themselves. That is wishful thinking, but it is all I have.

Then is the Republican Party going to give us what we want? When is it going to consider those of us who think of the future and not of the past? When is it going to do anything at all. Silence may defeat court packing, but it raises no enthusiasm. One constructive suggestion has been made: Mr. Hoover suggests a national convention, "representative of youth as well as maturity, of women as well as men, to declare a conviction of constructive national principles, and to declare it with intellectual and moral integrity, with human sympathy, with idealism and emotion."

This sounds dull on paper, I will admit. But it sounds dull because one gets a mental picture of a portly mossback orating fervently about dictatorship and communism in the approved old guard manner, and even a fireside talk beats that. Perhaps this is what Mr. Landon is thinking of in disapproving of the convention. But it would not be dull if the convention should be the expression of the enthusiasm, the hopes, the progressive viewpoints and enlightened vision of those Republicans, young and old, who believe the party has a mission to perform, which can be performed only by ridding itself of its deadwood and adapting itself to conditions of 1937.

It could not be dull if it should be the occasion for casting off the reticence and furtiveness, the ingrowing sense of shame which Republicans seem still to feel, though the smear campaign which caused it be five years past. What if the convention should make the party a target again If we have the morale which will come from rebirth, from going forward under new leadership in a cause we believe is vital, in short, if we can again be proud we are Republicans, we will find the New Deal ammunition pretty weak. Let's have the convention, and soon!

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In The Post of October 12, page 13, column 2, is the following statement: "A Cabaret de la Vache Enragee," otherwise "Cabaret of the Mad Bull."

"Vache enragee" is a common French expression and translated into English is "enraged cow." No wonder she is enraged!

Monickers.

THE Federal Bureau of Investigation maintains a nickname or monicker file which contains the alias nicknames of individuals whose fingerprint cards have been submitted to the FBI. Frequently after the arrest of a person or the incarceration of that individual in a penitentiary, he is given a nickname or monicker which thereafter is applied to him in underworld or criminal circles.

This file now includes approximately 116,800 nickname cards and is of value in establishing the identity of criminals who are known to law enforcement agencies only according to an alias nickname. A few of these nicknames are: Ace High, Aggravating Papa, Airbrake Smith, Alibi Good Kid, Alimony Bandit, Am I Blue, Ammunition Shorty, Ant Eater, Bad Eggs, Banjo Eyes, Barber Shop Fats, Beef Stake Bob, Big Lip Louie, Black Bottom, Blue Shirt Slim, Box Car Casey, Brief Case Kid, Bughouse Bill, Cake Eater, Calamity Zim, Carbolic Kid, Charlie Kick the Door In, Chew Tobacco Lewie, Chicken Stealing Shorty, Clothes Line Slim, Cotton Patch Molly, Cream Puffs, Crying Shame, Dill Pickle, Diptheria Jack, Ex Ray Kid, Fog Horn Kelly, Garbage Can Johnnie, Gip the Blood, Gold-Tooth Frenchy, Human Pin Cushion, International Slim, Izzy the Eel, Jelly Roll Blues, Painless Paul, Pompadour Bandit, Rooster Face, Schuffle Dirty, Silk Hat Harry, Sixth Street Dirty Red, Slow Town Blackie, Soup House Pete, Spare Ribs, Stick in the Mud, The Fighting Butcher, The Funereal Burglar, Tickle Breeches, Babbling Bess, Bowlegged Bessie, Cantaloupe Queen, Cigar Kate.

"Coastline," "West Coast" and "East Coast Line" are the nicknames of an individual whose criminal activity extends over several years. His criminal record reflects that he was arrested on May 1, 1928, by the Los Angeles, Calif., Police Department for suspicion of theft of an auto. These nicknames will adhere to him and in the future, should a crime be committed and the information be secured that it was committed by "Coast Line," the FBI would have the complete record of this individual which would aid in apprehending him and bringing him to justice.

Another case is that of a person known as "Titanic Blackie" and "Titanic Dan." His criminal record reflects that he was arrested March 3, 1919, by the St. Louis Police Department. He was again arrested by the St. Louis Police Department January 1, 1921, for suspicion of murder. He was arrested the third time May 10, 1926, by the State Police at Jefferson City, Mo., for robbery and was given five years. His last arrest was Februray 25, 1937, for investigation, by the chief special agent, St. Louis-San Francisco Railway Co. at St. Louis, Mo. This is another individual whose nickname will cling to him and will be of assistance in apprehending him in the event he continues his criminal activities.

An individual by the name of "Kentucky Red" had been reported to the officers as selling narcotic drugs in New York City. Accordingly, narcotic officers, through an informant, purchased a small amount of narcotics from this subject, but he was successful in escaping arrest. Although he was well known to the police in that district he had not been located and a description and the alias of "Kentucky Red" was about all of the information that the narcotic officers had on which to search for him. A request was made that this nickname or "monicker" be searched through the nickname files of the Identification Division of the FBI. This search disclosed an extensive record on one Noah Stone, who had been known under the nickname of "Kentucky Red." It showed, furthermore, that as Noah Stone he had been received at the New York County Penitentiary, Welfare Island, New York City, on July 18, 1935, to serve an indeterminate sentence for violation of the drug laws.

"Gate Mouth" is one of the names appearing in the special nickname file maintained by the Federal Bureau of Investigation in its Identification Division. It was listed there when a fingerprint card, received February 15, 1929, from the sheriff's office at West Palm Beach, Fla., indicated "Gate Mouth" as the nickname of a person who had been arrested for breaking and entering.

His earliest arrest known to the bureau was by the Police Department in Seattle, Wash., where he was charged with being a disorderly person. Subsequently, arrests for vagrancy were made at Maryville, Calif., and Phoenix, Ariz. He was received at the State Farm, Raiford, Fla., in March, 1929, to serve three years for receiving stolen property. Additional arrests were made at Orlando, Fla., and Galveston, Tex.

Information was received by the FBI that a person known as "Gate Mouth" was wanted for robbery by the Police Department of Sacramento, Calif. A search of the nickname file of the Federal Bureau of Investigation revealed the real name of the person known as "Gate Mouth" as Walter Hampton. The description of "Gate Mouth" was forwarded by the FBI to the interested police agency who stated positively Hampton was the subject wanted.

The Once Over

By H. I. Phillips

Mr. Twitchell Tries to Settle a Bill.

Dear Sir: I wish you would not keep bringing up the fact that I owe you money and that my budget is unbalanced and everything. I know I am head over heels in debt, that I am not doing anything about getting out of it and that I am still failing to make both ends meet, but the trouble with you is that you do not take a broad view of such things. You have got to think nationally.

* * * *

Suppose I took a pad and pencil, got down to brass tacks, found out just what my financial situation is and right away began cutting down my expenditures, retrenching a lot and paying off some of the dough I owe you? A lot of people might say that would be the thing to do. Many people would tell us that it would be only fair. But they are enemies of democracy.

* * * *

You see the trouble about you in asking me to pay my bills as I go is that you do not do any long-range planning. You think only of today. We have got to think in terms of future generations. It is not what you and I may do about these debts but what our children and their children may do. I am surprised that you do not see all this clearly, and I guess it must be because you do not listen to fireside chats much.

* * * *

I could pull in my horns, do some correct bookkeeping and pay you something now and then but that would be only temporary. You must be careful about instability. What you and I want is permanent happiness. And how can we be permanently happy doing simple arithmetic? What the world wants is peace. If you keep sending me reminders that I owe you money and I keep turning you down, is that going to be any real contribution to peace? You talk like a foe of free government. I wouldn't be a bit surprised if you were a dirty Tory.

* * * *

You and I have got to quit talking about finances and talk about humanity. It may be important that you balance your books and that I balance my books but you are crazy if you think it is as important as that we get together and balance the human budget. You crudely say that I owe you $7,500, that I have never paid you a dime, that I keep running into debt and just ignore all your dunning letters, but you see there you go thinking in terms of money again. If you could get a long-range view you would say, "Listen, Elmer, don't let that $7,500 worry you. Just pay me a couple of good intentions down and about five best wishes a week."

* * * *

Details and figures are unimportant so long as we are on the right road. And we should shake hands and get real human and forget about it. A thousand years from now it would make no difference to us whether I paid you or not.

* * * *

Well, anyhow, I hope you see how it is, so don't worry and be a big enemy of democracy any more. Wishing you plenty of green pastures, cheaper electricity and crop control, I am.

Yours truly,

ELMER TWITCHELL.

Tragedy.

She loved the hushed bird notes at dawn;
Saw beauty in a dewdrop on a blade of grass;
Found peace in watching quietly
A flaming sunset that too soon would pass.

She went through life with wondering eyes;
Her spirit soared on silver wings,
With eager and yet tender hands
She garnered in her heart all lovely things.

He never knew the ecstasy,
The rapturous joy of living she had found.
He walked this earth indifferently,
Immune to loveliness of sight and sound.

They lived their lives together here.
He loved her dearly; and yet never knew
Her soul dwelt in a world apart—
The gate of which he never once passed through!

That Child.

(On being appealed to by the nurse to assert my authority on a child of 6.)

Monkeys and angels at her birth attended
With numerous gifts. One gave her curly hair—
One gave her longer legs than I'd intended—
One made her stubborn, and one made her fair.

No past or future casts its heavy haze
In those clear eyes. I could not let her go
For India's rubies, though on rainy days
I'd gladly wring her neck, she irks me so!

She has such tenderness for flies and flowers
As stops the heart that watches. In her bed
She sings and fabricates through evening hours
Tales that would make an ogre scream with dread.

All in a silver voice. Oh, purer far
Even than Giotto's little virgins are . . .
Is this my daughter? Why then should I fetter
The candid cry, "Hell's bells! I hate my sweater!"

Retreat From Publicity.

From the Montgomery Advertiser.

The Duke and Duchess of Windsor were flaming headlines a few months ago. Now their familiar profiles find comfortable resting place far from the accounts of important events in our daily lives. It is some kind of commentary, but what kind is hard to tell, that public interest is easily aroused, but more easily dissipated. The accounts of the famous couple have dwindled down to a description of their habits that makes their existence seem like any upper middle class in any part of the globe. The Duke, indulging in active sports, is like a host of other men with forced or preferred leisure. The Duchess, arranging flowers and planning menus in her remote mountain retreat, furnishes a duplicate of myriads of other women who prefer the quiet life while an irrepressibly energetic husband roams the great outdoors.

Of course, despite the description of this rather unexciting existence, the Duke must remain the ruler of his people at heart, else he would not persist in hoping that sooner or later the politicians of England will allow the Duchess to be accepted in the bosom of his family. And since the Duchess is a member of the inscrutable sex, it would be impossible to tell from her exemplary conduct in and around the domestic hearth just what she is thinking and planning in her mind during the wee small hours of the morning. Their position is like that of other public figures that have once enjoyed great acclaim and adulation and tasted success. The ashes must be bitter and the going a trifle difficult after the music and fanfare that was their lot at one time.

Jersey Politics

Gubernatorial Race To Turn Largely On Whether Pastor Clee's Sincerity Can Beat Senator Moore's Handsome Looks.

By Eugene Pharo,
Special Correspondence of The Post.

Trenton.

AT PRESENT WRITING the stage is all set in New Jersey for an election that will determine whether the State government shall be carried on for the next year under the Republican or Democratic banner; or whether it will, in any real sense, be carried on at all. And the chief issue before the electorate is whether the Rev. Lester H. Clee, pastor of the Second Presbyterian Church, Newark, and a State Senator from Essex County, or the Hon. A. Harry Moore, senior United States Senator from New Jersey, has the greater personal charm. Although there are other factors.

The question whether the State government shall be carried on in an effective manner is raised by a possibility that the new administration will consist of a stalemate between a governor of one party and a legislature too largely of another. This was the case this year. And the question of personal charm is raised by the fact that both Clee and Moore, respectively carrying the gubernatorial nominations of the Reupblican and Democratic parties, are making an appeal to the electorate of both parties; and each is backed by a platform that in most particulars does nothing to mark his party off from the other.

Two Parties Present Almost Identical Offers.

FOR EXAMPLE, both Democrats and Republicans say they will reorganize the State government in the interest of economy; both promise adequate care for the unemployed and those needing relief, and both declare they will not stand for any new taxes; both assert that they will see that employers and workers shall be given fair treatment, and each says that the other party has not given any evidence of real accomplishment along any of these lines.

The Democrats, it is true, add that President Roosevelt is a great President, and the Republicans, in a resolution adopted separately from their State platform, have denounced "the efforts of President Roosevelt to tamper with the personnel of the Supreme Court and to render that great judicial body subservient to his will," and have objected to his appointment of Justice Black to sit on a court that "should be free from intolerance and class and racial prejudices." Yet national issues do not play an important part in the State contest; and the Democrats, this time, are not trying to use the "President's coattails" as a magic carpet to carry them to victory.

What the Democrats really are depending upon provides, in fact, the only concrete issue so far presented to the electorate. It is what the Rev. Mr. Clee has called "an invisible governing power operating without the consent of the governed." In other words, he claims that the chief issue is the predominantly Democratic machine of Mayor Frank Hague of Jersey City.

This machine is of such universal potency in New Jersey, and has been for so long a time, that three are adult Republicans who, as children, could not determine whether they were more in awe of Hague or the Jersey Devil. They had never seen either, but they knew both were forces of great and fearful extent, and you never knew when one or the other would "get" you. Mr. Clee has presented himself as a champion who intends to "get" the human one of this brace of legendary devils. Their handpicked and obedient servant he pictures, with some show of reason, as the aforesaid A. Harry Moore.

Clee's Managers Show Him At Every Crossroads.

THE QUESTION of charm comes into the picture in considering the campaign tactics that have been decided upon by Mr. Clee and his managers. These consist largely of showing Mr. Clee himself to the maximum possible number of voters, assembled at every crossroads and street corner, at a series of from 15 to 20 meetings a day from October 13 to election day on November 2.

It has been recalled that such tactics had a great deal to do with Mr. Moore's victories in his two previous campaigns for the governorship, especially as such appearances happened to be before women's organizations. Only in Mr. Moore's case the effect was ascribed to his handsome appearance and amiable manner, and in Mr. Clee's case the dynamic sincerity and convincing pulpit style of the candidate are depended upon.

It is perhaps characteristic of the smoothly functioning Democratic machine that this year it has decided Mr. Moore shall confine his appearances to the larger centers of population, and limit his personal contacts to smaller and more highly selected groups. And the chief counsel that has been emitted from Jersey City has been a warning to county leaders against "over-confidence" in their work for Moore.

But coupled with all such advices, and with the public utterances of Moore himself, have been special pleas to the voters to make sure of electing enough Democratic Senators and Assemblymen to insure that the new Governor (Moore, of course) shall be able to carry out his policies without being stymied by Republicans. For the party hacks have not overlooked the fact that eight Senators and 60 Assemblymen are to be elected.

Democrats Are Charged With Tricky Maneuvers.

THE WISDOM of the Democrats in concentrating on the legislative contests and letting it be assumed that there really is no question about who will be Governor, is in consonance with the charges of wily political maneuvering that Mr. Clee and his supporters have brought against the opposition. And these charges were employed a little earlier even against a faction of the Republicans; for Clee is the nominee only after wresting victory from Clifford R. Powell, a quite regular party politician from Burlington County.

Powell was indorsed by Gov. Hoffman, with what one editorial writer aptly termed the "Hoffman kiss of death," and some of the votes cast for him were said to have been engineered by Hague, through employment of "one-day Republicans" in Hudson County—i. e., by machine workers registered as Republicans for the express purpose of interfering in Republican factional primary contests. And it has been charged directly more than once that there is a definite alignment between Hoffman and some of his pals, and the ineffable Hague. So that under an appearance of post-primary harmony in the Republican Party in support of the victorious Clee, it is suspected skullduggery is being wrought.

There is no question that in the primary fight a number of regular Republican county bosses were opposed to Clee because of his free-hearted independence, and that they continue to be so. Besides, there is a strong question, especially in some of the shore counties, whether, with the prospect of legalized betting and horse-racing coming before the Legislature, it is well to have a clergyman in the Governor's chair.

In view of all these things, it is sure that the election in New Jersey will determine one thing. That is whether there are enough actually independent voters in both parties to overcome all partisan political and even religious prejudice, and to make hash of the nice calculations of professional politicians. If there are, Mr. Clee is certain to be New Jersey's new Governor. Although even then he might be ham-strung by the Legislature.

Dr. Dawson Seeks Educational Grant

"Any government that can spend $987,000,000 for peace-time military preparations should be able to spend $100,000,000 for education," said Dr. Howard A. Dawson, of the National Education Association, speaking before the student body of Wilson Teachers College, yesterday.

Dr. Dawson inaugurated Education Week at the college.

He announced his intention of furthering legislation at the next session of Congress for Federal aid, without Federal management, to the States for equality of educational opportunity.

The Hare And The Tortoise.

BY THE TIME the signatories of the Nine-Power Treaty meet at Brussels at the end of this month, more than 16 weeks will have elapsed since the Marco Polo bridge incident which ignited the Far Eastern powder barrel and produced an explosion which has shaken the world.

The aggressors move swiftly. But the forces of peace are earthbound and slow. It is the race of the hare and the tortoise all over again. But this time there is no certainty that, as in Aesop, the tortoise will triumph.

However, there is no use crying over spilt milk or lost time. It is something that a conference to consider the present Sino-Japanese crisis has been called and that the United States is willing to take part in it. And in the meantime Chinese valor has made it certain that there will be no sudden military denouement in Japan's favor.

The Japanese forces have apparently made considerable gains in the north. But their desperate and repeated attempts to smash Chinese resistance at Shanghai have met with failure. The war is far from over. It may, indeed, last a long time. And the longer it lasts the greater the likelihood that outside pressure will have a decisive bearing on the ultimate outcome.

* * * *

THE FIRST move which the Brussels parley is to make, it is stated authoritatively, is to seek a peace by agreement. That is, China and Japan will be invited to cease fighting and lay their respective cases before an impartial body or, alternatively, to reach a satisfactory agreement through their own efforts.

Such a mediatory move, well-intentioned though it would be, would seem to fly in the face of realities. It presupposes that both sides are eager for peace, even for a peace without victory. Yet such an assumption rests on very slim foundations.

The Chinese unquestionably want peace. Their soldiers and noncombatants are being killed by the thousands; their cities are being laid waste; all the gains so painfully made in the direction of a unified and orderly national life and of economic progress are in peril of destruction. But neither Chiang Kai-shek nor any other Chinese leader would willingly agree to accept the terms which Japan insists upon as essential before it will give the order to cease firing.

The Japanese, too, no doubt, want peace. But first they want a decisive military victory that would compel the Chinese to make an unconditional surrender. It is doubtful in the extreme that at the present time or as long as it has the wherewithal to continue fighting Japan would agree to the evacuation of the territory it has conquered during the last months.

* * * *

WHAT HOPE is there for mediation? At first glance no hope at all. And yet the Brussels conference is very well advised to attempt mediation as its first move. For every opportunity must be given Japan to retreat from the ruinous course upon which it has embarked, every avenue of peaceful settlement must be explored.

But this does not mean that mediation should be or can safely be the only program on the Brussel's agenda. The Nine-Power Treaty was designed for a definite purpose. It sought to end international rivalries in China by persuading the nations with interests in that region to accept a self-denying ordinance. They pledged themselves not to make use of China's weakness to seek special concessions. They pledged and China pledged to preserve the Open Door. And they solemnly agreed not to infringe upon the territorial and administrative integrity of China.

Japan has failed to keep every one of these pledges. From September 18, 1931, to the present moment its course has been in violation of the Nine-Power pact. Will it have a change of heart now? Will the delegates at Brussels persuade the Tokyo government and its wirepullers in the Japanese army that a peace by negotiation is advisable?

* * * *

THE ANSWER, at the present moment, would seem to be decidedly in the negative. But the fact remains that between them the other signatories of the Nine-Power Treaty represent a collectivity of power which no nation and least of all Japan can safely ignore.

To be sure, some of these powers—notably Italy and Portugal—may take Japan's side at Brussels. But that would still leave the United States, Great Britain, France, the Netherlands, Belgium and China to act in concert.

It is clearly essential for these powers, even while urging the wisdom of mediation, to take into account the very real possibility of the failure of any and all mediatory efforts that have only diplomatic and moral pressure behind them. In particular the effectiveness of economic and financial means of bringing Japan to book must be canvassed.

In this connection there is the very illuminating comment of Kohei Goshi, financial expert of the Tokyo newspaper, Yomiuri.

"If both American and British money markets refused financing to Japan," Mr. Goshi declared, "it would be a more serious situation than mere political or economic sanctions." And already, a survey made by the Associated Press reveals, numerous American firms have been ordered to sell to Japan for cash only.

But the cumulative force of economic sanctions, per se, on Japan's capacity to wage a prolonged war on China cannot easily be minimized. The final battle in the present Far Eastern conflict may be fought not in China but in the financial centers and trade marts of America and Europe. And that battle may make all of Japan's military gains so much Dead Sea fruit.

The Deep South

By William Lyon Phelps

"Ezekiel."

The author is Elvira Garner. Now, if this is a children's book, it is the best one I have seen this year; and if it is not a children's book, it is still one of the best I have seen this year. (Published by Henry Holt, New York.)

It is impossible to describe this story; in these articles I endeavor to give such a description of a new book that my readers will know whether or not they wish to buy it; that is, before they have seen it, they can form an idea of its contents and style.

* * * *

But I have never seen anything like Ezekiel. It is an original story of the colored people in the deep South, with every person in the family so vividly presented that I feel as if I had known them all intimately for years. It is filled with humor and with profound understanding of human nature.

* * * *

One can read the book through in half an hour; and then feel as if one had lived in that neighborhood and were fully acquainted with the folks.

There is an imagination that turns the prose into the purest poetry; the dialect is marvellous. Mark Twain, a master of dialect, and extremely fastidious about its correctness, would have loved these pages.

Finally, the author of the story is also the artist who copiously illustrates it; and these pictures are irresistible. Americans are going to love this book.

Tom McCarthy

Jack Sells Papers—And How!

HE GIVES you more for 3 cents than anyone else in the city. If you wait around long enough, you can hear him rewrite the headlines, insult the customers—and make them like it—and tell veteran newsmen what's wrong with their paper.

TOM McCARTHY.

His name is Jack Smith, and he's 5 feet 9 inches of muscular former marine. He claims he's 37, but he looks five years younger. And his voice! Well, he can turn you around from the distance of a city block and bring you hopping back to buy a paper. He not only can, he does!

Jack sells his papers at the corner of Fourteenth street and Pennsylvania avenue and he's on the job from about 8 in the evening until 2. He says that he's just waiting to get a stake so that he can get into a little business but he's having the time of his life right now. He's not out there just for the fun of it, either. Jack is a salesman and he's selling about 50 per cent more papers on his corner than anybody else ever has.

An embassy attache strolls by and Jack will turn him around with one of his own rewrite jobs.

"Look, look, look," he'll yell, "they got Il Duce on the run!"

The headline might say that Italy's premier had received a setback in diplomatic negotiations but Jack believes in humanizing the news. He feels that "Il Duce on the run" carries a lot more meaning.

I stood down there on the corner of Fourteenth and the Avenue for about an hour the other night and just watched Jack go through his paces. It's one of the best shows in town.

* * * *

"SURE I'VE been in the Marines," he told me. "I got paid off at Norfolk in '36. Hey there!"

Jack is very likely to break off a conversation with a "hey there" as he spots a customer.

"You gotta hit 'em in the eye," he said, as he came weaving back through the four-lane traffic at the corner. "You gotta tell 'em what's in the paper. They don't know what you're talkin' about when you run a headline 'Hitler Expresses Displeasure at Action of Neutrality Group.'

"Humanize it!" Jack said. "You gotta humanize it. Sock 'em in the eye!

"Know how I'd yell it?" Jack didn't wait for a reply. He was on his way around the corner to sell a paper. However, distance is no bar to his conversation, so from around the corner he yelled out the headline as he'd have written it.

"Adolph takes a burn!" he yelled. "No not tonight, lady. That's last week's headline," he explained to a woman customer.

"Yes," he said when he came back to the corner to await the appearance of new customers, "this business is just like any other. You gotta give them a personal reason for wanting to buy a paper. Now take a gander at these boys coming down the street. Ten to one they're Georgetown students.

"Pretty well dressed, college age, traveling in a group, they look like Georgetown. Now," said Jack, "if I don't start a riot, I'll sell 'em some papers. Watch.

"Georgetown snowed under! Hilltop team proves a lemon! Georgetown——"

Jack didn't get much further. The boys, smarting under the afternoon defeat by Lafayette, stopped, looked and then moved ominously across the sidewalk.

"What's the headline you're yelling?" one of the boys asked.

"Buy a paper," Jack said, "and read all about it. Georgetown snowed under. Grand bunch of boys, but the breaks were against them. But watch what they do when they get going against Penn next week.

By that time Jack had four papers in four of the Hilltoppers' hands. He removed any momentary bitterness with a smile and a chuckle. And the boys, breaking into sheepish grins, paid up for their papers.

* * * *

JACK DOESN'T limit himself to editing his own headlines. He's even willing to predict horse races and call the turn on football games . . . if it will sell papers.

When local sportsmen drift by his corner, he'll yell out his sports predictions. A top hat or a Chesterfield is all he needs to let go a torrent of information about the stock market. And it sells papers!

Right now Jack is having a particularly good time. This Chinese war is so much duck soup for him. The names, which are driving copy desks crazy and turning radio newscasters into stuttering amateurs, aren't bothering Jack in the least. Eleven years in the Marines took him into most parts of the world and three of those years were spent in China.

Jack can not only pronounce such names as Tientsin and Chang Sueh-liang but he can tell you whether they're cities, rivers or people.

* * * *

WHEN ALL'S said and done, though, editing the headlines is his favorite sport. Selling the opposition papers to editors comes off a close second but nothing touches the creative satisfaction he derives from his masterpiece.

"It was the night they broke the Black case," he said. "You know, the night they proved Justice Black had been a member of the Ku Klux Klan. Boy, I wowed 'em that night. What a headline!"

"Let's hear it," I said, forgetting for a moment that Jack never tells you his headlines in a conversational tone.

He threw back his head and his masterpiece reared up the street. He hadn't yelled it in weeks, and there was a particular fervor in his shout. It probably could be heard all the way to the Supreme Court Building.

"Alabama Boy Makes Good With Robe," was his shout.

Jack is proud of that headline, but I'm going to wager dollars to doughnuts that when this reaches the street he'll be yelling out, "Read All About Me."

March 6—Charles A. Ellwood, author and professor of sociology, Duke University: "Man's Social Destiny."

March 13—Norman Thomas, Socialist candidate for President in 1928, 1932 and 1936: "The Choice Before Us."

March 20—Philip Guedalla, British historian and biographer: "The Biography of a Century."

March 27—Reinald Werrenrath, barytone and music authority: "The Story of American Song."

April 3—Reserved for current topic.

All programs will begin at 8:15 p. m. at the Rialto Theater, Ninth street north of G.

Rogers to Address Adventist Parley

H. E. Rogers, of Takoma Park, statistical secretary of the general conference of Seventh Day Adventists, will speak tomorrow at the autumn council in Battle Creek, Mich.

The missionary work of the denomination, Rogers will report, was being conducted in 378 countries, islands and island groups by 26,553 evangelists and institutional workers at the close of 1936. The Adventists now have 8,243 churches throughout the world with a combined membership of 438,139, a gain of 138,184 since 1929.

Roosevelt's Appeal for Chest

By the Associated Press.

Hyde Park, N. Y., Oct. 18.—The text of President Roosevelt's radio address tonight opening the annual drive of the community mobilization for human needs follows:

Chairman Taft, Community Chest workers, friends of human needs:

Each year, as we emerge further from the insecurity and want of the depression, we have a better right to look back with satisfaction at the ground which we have covered. But even while we can take satisfaction in this glance backward we have a serious, inescapable obligation to look forward at the same time and to do it with honesty and vision.

There is danger that we may be blinded by the welcome light of returning prosperity to the very real need that still exists for a considerable part of our population.

We must not forget that there are people who are still hungry, their children undernourished; that rags are the clothing of many of our countrymen and miserable shacks or crowded city tenements their only home.

These are the things that make it imperative for us to go forward without hesitation in our efforts to bring security, opportunity, and a decent standard of living to all our people, so that our prosperity may be a more true prosperity for the whole Nation.

Material Aid Solution.

In this great effort to better the conditions of those who do not now share the freedom from actual want which most of us enjoy it is important that all agencies, both public and private, receive the Nation's support.

It must not be thought that the responsibility which the public assumed through its government, local or national, for the problems of welfare lessens the need for the many services of the private agencies.

This need continues and can only be met with generous support from those who are fortunate in their ability to give, even though the gift be relatively a small one.

Again this year, community chests representing these agencies in your own community, will appeal to you for moral and financial support so that these needs may be met. All of us have an obligation to face this need honestly and then to give as generously as our individual means will permit.

To help our neighbors is a part of the best American tradition. For us the long view of life has included at every turn the principle of mutual aid.

The Federal Government with the return of prosperity must more and more narrow the circle of its relief activities and reduce the amount of Federal revenue to be extended in the amelioration of human want and distress in the various communities of our land.

Expenses to Be Cut.

I say this because we all agree that unless Federal taxes are to be greatly increased, the expenditures have to be brought within the existing tax receipts.

Although Federal Government relief activities have to be curtailed, there must needs be no abatement of State, local and individual relief work. Indeed, local and private activities must be increased.

I would, therefore, make an especial appeal that Federal officials and our Government employes wherever they are found ought to take a leading part in co-operating with local and community relief workers in carrying forward their unremitting campaign for the alleviation of the want and suffering that still stalk the land.

The wholehearted co-operation of Federal workers will not only aid the work immediately in hand but it will also afford an excellent and practical example of the right community spirit.

And as I dwell upon the practical force of good example in well-doing there comes to my mind the example of the City of Denver, which now for half a century has given to the other cities of the country. Denver, I am informed, is observing tonight the fiftieth anniversary of joint financing. The Denver beginning was a forerunner of what has been developed into the 450 community chests of the country.

Cites Denver Example.

State and local governments are assuming an increased responsibility for those unable to work, for those who are ill, for the provision of adequate educational and recreational opportunities for all.

In every American community the generosity of private giving makes possible the never-ceasing campaign waged by private welfare agencies to bring opportunities otherwise denied; to render needed services not otherwise available and to pioneer in new fields that widen the horizon of us all.

This work can only go forward with the generous co-operation of all of us. The Community Chest offers us once again the opportunity to express our fundamental belief in the principles on which our democracy was founded, by the generous, wholehearted and spontaneous giving of our money and our good will. I ask you to help even more greatly than ever before.

D.C. Body May Set Basic Pay Tonight

The question of what shall constitute a minimum wage for women retail clerks in Washington may be decided tonight at a conference held under auspices of the District Minimum Wage Board. The group is prepared to make its recommendations as to the wage and to submit a budget of how much money it believes a woman needs to clothe, feed and lodge herself.

Wilkins to Use Moon To Hunt Polar Fliers

New York, Oct. 18 (AP).—The first moonlight airplane flights in polar regions—to be made by Sir Hubert Wilkins in a renewed search northward of Alaska for six missing Russian fliers—were set today for the first ten days of November.

"In each month of the Arctic winter there will be ten days of bright moonlight," said Sir Hubert. "We are going to carry on during those periods until we find out what happened to Sigismund Levaneffsky and his companions."

One-Act Plays Scheduled.

The fourth program of plays in the District one-act play tournament will be presented at 8 o'clock tonight in Roosevelt High School Auditorium, Thirteenth and Allison streets northwest, under auspices of the Community Center Department.

Your Community Chest

SIXTY-FOUR social agencies in Washington work together under the name of the Community Chest. A single gift made through the Chest is a gift to people in real need, served by the agency or agencies which the donor himself selects.

Episcopal Fund Is Increased To $7,500,000

3-Year Budget Will Permit Restoration of Pay Cuts.

By the Associated Press.

Cincinnati, Oct. 18.—The Protestant Episcopal Church was given a budget of $7,500,000 tonight with which to "advance all along the lines" in the next three years, after a period of "heart-breaking curtailment."

The budget, representing an increase of $305,000 over expenditures in the three years ended January 1, 1937, was voted by the church's general convention as it drew near the end of its fifty-second triennial session.

Will Restore Pay Cuts.

The Rev. Dr. Frank H. Nelson, member of the joint committee on budget and program, said the financial program would require an increase of 20 per cent in the contributions of the 74 dioceses and 30 missionary districts for missions and general headquarters expenses.

Most of the increase will go to mission activities. Considerable also will go to increase mission salaries which were cut during the depression.

Venereal Test Urged.

The house of bishops:

Increased the salary of the presiding bishop from $12,000 to $15,000 a year;

Defeated a proposal to make the house of bishops a court of appeals for deacons and priests convicted on ecclesiastical charges in diocesan courts;

Urged State legislatures to require medical certificates, showing freedom from venereal diseases, of couples desiring to marry;

Rejected an amendment which would have required couples to submit such certificates before they could be married by an Episcopalian minister;

Created committees to study clerical appointments and the salaries of the clergy and to consider a fee for the presiding bishop, and

Asked the presiding bishops to designate a Sunday on which the whole church would pray for restoration of peace in the Far East.

Museum Awaiting Premission to Open Bell's Mystery Box

While the scientific world held its breath, the Smithsonian Institution yesterday prepared to break the seals on a package which has been in its archives since Alexander Graham Bell, inventor of the telephone, and two associates deposited it for safekeeping in 1881.

The breath was still being held today. Consent of two members of the Bell family, without which the package cannot be opened, was not received as expected.

Speculation as to the contents of the box, two feet by one, centered on the possibility that it holds the original working model of the first machine ever to record the human voice on wax. The great inventor is believed to have checked the parcel with the Smithsonian in order to establish the priority of his invention.

Independence Day Of Czechs Marked

The nineteenth anniversary of the independence of Czechoslovakia, celebrated yesterday with exercises in Hurst Hall at American University, was featured by an address by Vladimir Hurban, Czechoslovakian Minister to the United States. The exercises were part of the university's graduate school program to foster better relations between the United States and foreign countries.

Lewis C. Frank, president of the university's student council, introduced Dr. Ellory C. Stowell, of the Graduate School faculty. Dr. Stowell, who is in charge of the foreign relations program of the university, spoke of his satisfaction at having 13 foreign students, including a Czechoslovakian, in attendance.

Dr. George B. Woods, director of the university, gave the welcoming address, after which Dr. Joseph M. M. Gray, chancellor, gave a sketch of the late Thomas Masaryk, first president of Czechoslovakia. The Minister of Czechoslovakia, Dr. Hurban, then spoke on the meaning of independence to his country. The exercises were concluded with musical selections by John McClain, university director of music.

Driver Absolved In 4 Crash Deaths

Towson, Md., Oct. 18 (AP).—Judge C. Gus Grason today acquitted a bus driver charged with manslaughter in the death of four Washington residents, holding that the State had not shown the driver was negligent.

Marcus Dixon was indicted after Elmer D. Hays, sr., his wife, Isable, his son, Elmer, jr., and James R. Leech were killed near here in an auto accident in September.

Judge Grason said the evidence showed that Dixon's bus was not speeding and that he turned into the path of Hays' car when two other machines stopped in front of the bus. All the dead were riding in Hays' car.

Benjamin W. Smith, of Perry Hall, testified the Hays' car was running about 45 miles per hour a few seconds before the crash.

West of 40 Million Years Ago Like East Today, Expert Finds

Magnolias, Dogwood, Persimmons Covered Oregon Hills in Miocene Day, But Weather Changes Later Limited Their Distribution.

Unless he saw a titanotherium or two prowling through the underbrush, a Virginian of 1937, whisked unawares to an Oregon forest of 40,000,000 years ago, would be unable to recognize the transition in time and place.

It sounds queer to us, too, but Dr. Roland W. Brown, who recently has completed a study of fossil plant collections in the Smithsonian Institution, says in a geological survey paper just published, that the type of woodland now found in the East existed over large areas of the Pacific States during the Miocene period.

Changed distribution of rainfall in the last few million years is blamed by Dr. Brown for the virtual disappearance of walnuts and willows, elms and maples, magnolias and dogwood, huckleberries and persimmons that once covered the hills and valleys of the Northwest.

Careful studies of fossil flora, some of which he collected, enabled Dr. Brown to classify several hitherto unknown species of trees. He also learned that the supposedly ancient American lineage of the peach tree is not well founded. A fossil uncovered some years ago and identified as a peach pit has turned out, according to Dr. Brown, to be nothing more than a variety of beech nut.

Alpha Sigma Phi Head Will Speak at Banquet

Dr. Wilbur H. Cramblet, president of Bethany College, and grand president of Alpha Sigma Phi, will be the guest of honor at a dinner at 6:30 p. m. Thursday, at the National Press Club, when the Washington Alumni Council of the fraternity will entertain the grand council of the organization.

There are 105 members from 25 chapters of Alpha Sigma Phi living in Washington. George E. Worthington is president fo the Washington Alumni Council.

Over the Coffee

By Harlan Miller

Copyright, 1937, for The Washington Post.

President Roosevelt took a few minutes in a busy day last week to startle the reporters at Hyde Park with the revelation that there was no news and to offer them a piece of sound advice:

* * * *

When there is no news they ought not to wrack their brains writing anything . . . They'd be better off to go out to the links and play some golf.

* * * *

Their instant reaction must have been "He's got something there!" . . With his customary singleness of purpose, though, Mr. Roosevelt must have been thinking more of the abundant life for the reporters than of the happiness of their editors and publishers, or the peace of mind of the reading public which hangs on their dispatches.

"—newsmen exiled to the links"

For there is something vastly encouraging to a publisher or an editor about a dispatch from his Washington correspondent, even when it contains bad news . . . It gives him a sense of vigilance, of having his skirmishers out on the front line at the Capital. I don't think the President consulted his friends, the publishers, before his hint to the newshawks.

* * * *

No news? The President was too modest. There is always news bubbling and steaming around the most powerful man in the world . . . So much of it, alas, must wait until Steve Early and Marvin McIntire write their memoirs. Then it will be history.

* * * *

No news? Food prices in this land of plenty are going up, up, up, and an indignant muttering comes out of 10,000,000 kitchens. How about the forgotten woman trying to stretch a pork chop to the size of a sirloin steak?

* * * *

No news? Stock prices are going down, down, down, right in the fat lap of recovery . . . Just the cantankerousness of a lot of nervous go-getters who want to embarrass Washington.

* * * *

No news? A lot of irreconcilable bosses who can't reconcile themselves to prosperity are cutting expenses so they can pay their taxes.

* * * *

No news? Congress is due next month for another necking party with Utopia, in such an unromantic mood that it may call for a shotgun marriage with the gal.

* * * *

No news? Uncle Sam is about to sit in at a feast of reason with the slickers and the warlords, all of whom probably think Uncle ought to listen to their reasons and grab the dinner check . . . It's a dull world; no news.

"—what—no news?"

Mr. Roosevelt's suggestion about adjourning to the links has interesting possibilities. No wars today? . . . Let the Army and Navy take a day off and go to the races.

* * * *

No burglaries this evening? Well, let's tell the police to take a day off and go to the movies.

* * * *

What, no sins today? Then let the preachers relax and go out for a game of croquet.

* * * *

Of course, it's rather silly to expect red-hot, spanking, brand-new news from every press conference. It's a great show, it's drama, it's high humor with occasionally a tinge of pathos; it's a swell democratic gesture, like the old tradition that the king had to wash the feet of seven beggars once a year. Every day it may be history, but it can't always be news.

* * * *

Maybe the President overestimates the journalists' golf . . . Maybe he underestimates the value of what they write even on the days when there is no news . . . But, come Utopia, they'll have to play golf—and like it.

3 Boys in Teens Held For 6 Store Robberies

Three colored boys, two 15 years old and one 12, were charged yesterday with housebreaking and robbery after police discovered them asleep in a stolen car in an Anacostia wood. In the rear of the car were cigarettes and candy said to have been stolen here.

Police said they confessed to six store robberies in the last month and expressed the belief they would uncover at least another half dozen such burglaries. They said loot probably would total $500.

'Prosperity' Shares Enjoined by SEC

The Securities and Exchange Commission reported yesterday that Federal Judge Tillman D. Johnson, of the United States District Court for the District of Utah, had permanently enjoined United Prosperity Plan, Inc., Isom Lamb, Meriam Lamb, Con Thueson, Mabel Smith and J. D. Lamb from selling "prosperity certificates" without registering them under the securities act of 1933.

Sleep in the Raw to Be Beautiful, Experts Urge at D. C. Show

A permanent wave in three and a half minutes and for Miss Ruby Soper, a junior at the University of Maryland, it was given free by Miss Arlyn Olle (left), of New York, at the annual Washington Beauty and Style Show in the Raleigh Hotel. Miss Gwen Williams, of Arlington, Va. (center), demonstrates the "important dinner" coiffure created by Leon, of London, while Mrs. Ruth Phebus undergoes a painless eyebrow arching operation by Mrs. Bobbie Usher, of Indianapolis.

Sleep in the raw, ladies, if it's health and beauty you want. Disregard the cajoling salesgirl who would supply you with a new nightie, and heed the advice offered yesterday at the Washington Beauty and Style Show, which opened a three-day session at the Raleigh Hotel.

Sleeping in the nude, beauticians now agree, is the way to poise and grace. Besides, it gives your pores a chance to do a little breathing.

A casual conversation with some of the 400 experts attending the show might lead one to believe comfort is the new note in beauty trends. "No more curl papers at night!" they declaim. Permanents have replaced papers.

But don't be deceived. Curl papers may have gone, but their place has been usurped by nightly somersaults, foot correctives and all sorts of new-fangled devices.

The modern nightly ritual which gives fascinating 50 precedence over sweet 16 in the social whirl runs something like this:

Cleans the face with an assortment of creams.

Apply a tissue cream to feed the skin while you sleep.

Apply adhesive wings to the forehead, to keep you from frowning should you dream of an ill-tempered boss or a beautiful rival.

Tie medicated bandages beneath the chin to prevent sagging.

Brush your hair (100 strokes are sufficient).

Rub a mentholated lotion on the feet to soften corns and callouses.

Turn a couple of somersaults or a back flip just to keep in trim.

And—very important—don't forget to daub on a little lipstick and tie a ribbon around your hair. These measures keep your lips from drying and your hair from getting in your tissue cream. But they also give you a lift when you look at yourself the next morning.

The Raleigh ballroom presented the appearance yesterday of 25 beauty parlors rolled into one and doing a record business. Exhibitors of beauty products were permanent waving and manicuring and massaging all over the place, under the auspices of the Union Beauty and Barber Supply, Inc., which sponsors the show.

In one corner was a dangerous looking mechanism which combines the advantages of the bicycle and the horse. That is, it jiggles you up and down as you pedal.

Another new trick is an illuminated magnifying glass which aids the operator in analyzing skin troubles. There is a definite tendency toward professional looking gadgets such as this, which beauticians believe inspire the customer's confidence in their diagnoses.

Then there is an eyebrow arch method which eliminates tweezers and a masseurs' table equipped with a canopy for the benefit of modest patrons.

Demonstrations of hair styles by such artists as Ivan of Fifth avenue and Leon of London occupies the morning meeting. Following the exhibition in the afternoon, a fashion show entitled, "The 1900 Influence on Coiffures," was presented. Dr. J. Howard Crum, of New York, gave an illustrated lecture on plastic surgery last night.

Takoma Mayor Opens Drive for Office Building

Adams Names Study Group Plan Opposed as Taking County Burden.

Mayor John R. Adams, of Takoma Park, announced last night formation of a committee to study possibility of erecting a municipal building to house administrative activities of Takoma Park, at the regular monthly Town Council meeting at the Fire House.

Opposition to the proposal was led by Philip Huck, president of the Takoma Park Volunteer Fire Department, who charged it would shift too much of the financial burden of the various departments from Montgomery County to the town.

He argued that cost of housing the police department and the town library, and salaries of the police judge and other officials, should continue to be paid by the county.

Mayor Adams said members of the committee would include the 10 town councilors, ex-Mayors Millward C. Taft, Ben G. Davis and F. L. Lewton and representatives from civic, military and commercial organizations in the town.

He said a mass meeting would be arranged in the near future for discussions of the project.

Resolutions supporting the plan were announced by the Takoma Park Chamber of Commerce, the Women's Club and the Library Association.

Mayor Adams last night denied reports that construction of a town jail near the Takoma Park Elementary School was under consideration by the town council.

The council voted to recommend that the County Board of Education establish a bus service from Flower avenue to the Philadelphia Avenue School, to run along Maple avenue. The action followed statements from parents that their children had to walk through more than a mile of woods along Maple avenue between their homes and the school.

The council announced it would recommend that a triangle of land between Piney Branch road and Eastern avenue, now maintained by the county, be turned over to town authorities. Dr. William A. Hooker, of the Takoma Park Citizens Association, recommended that the triangle be dedicated to the founder of Takoma Park, Benjamin Gilbert, and a monument erected in his honor.

State of Pa. Lends Cars to 11 Women Who Missed Train

When 11 women guests of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania missed their train back to Washington, the Commonwealth didn't blink an eyelask.

Just as gallant as any State below the Mason-Dixon Line, it ordered out three official automobiles, which brought the 11 women right back to their doors in Washington only a few hours later than their scheduled return.

Invited by the State Publicity Commission to make a two-day tour of scenic high-spots in Pennsylvania, the women, all Washington journalists, departed from the Capital Saturday.

At Gettysburg the party was greeted by Warren VanDyke, State Highway Commissioner. The guests drove through mountain scenery to Altoona, where a banquet was given in their honor.

On Sunday, after visiting Penns Valley, they had tea with Mrs. George Earle, wife of the Governor, at Harrisburg. Lingering over the teacups, the women journalists failed to catch their train. Three State autmomobiles brought the party back to Washington early yesterday.

U. of Pa. Alumni Here Celebrate Bicentennial

More than 100 Washington graduates of the University of Pennsylvania were among the 70 alumni groups which met in the Nation last night to inaugurate celebrations of the university's 200th anniversary and launch a campaign for an additional endowment of $12,500,000.

The local meeting, held in the Chinese Room of the Mayflower, was addressed by Prof. William P. Harbeson, of the Pennsylvania English department. Dr. Harbeson said that Pennsylvania always has attempted to cultivate scholarship and genius, as well as train the average citizen for his obligations.

He recalled that Benjamin Franklin was not primarily a scholar, like the founders of many of America's oldest universities, but a man of the world who always could be understood by the common man.

A movie depicting University of Pennsylvania life and activities was shown after Dr. Harbeson's speech. The alumni later listened to a broadcast from Philadelphia, where Justice Owen J. Roberts, of the United States Supreme Court, a Pennsylvania graduate, spoke in behalf of the university's appeal for funds.

Co-ehairmen of arrangements were George F. Snyder, Washington attorney, and Dr. William McClellan, trustee of the university and president of the Potomac Electric Power Co.

Among prominent Washingtonians present were Leo S. Rowe, president of the Pan American Union; the Rev. Dr. Albert H. Lucas, head of St. Alban's school; Edwin Bateman Morris, well-known architect; Judge J. Harry Covington, Maj. Gen. Charles R. Reynolds, Brig. Gen. Wallace DeWitt and Rear Admiral Robert M. Kennedy and Edward R. Stitt.

Bloom Ties Up Masonry With Constitution

Addresses Scottish Rite Council; Dr. Joseph F. Newton Also Speaks.

Representative Sol Bloom (Democrat), of New York, director of the Constitution Sesquicentennial Commission, last night told members of the Supreme Council of the Scottish Rite of Freemasonry, Southern Jurisdiction, that many of the principles of Masonry are embodied in the American Constitution.

Representative Bloom pointed out that most of the framers of the Constitution, among them Washington, Franklin, Madison and Hamilton, were Masons.

He said America is approaching a year and eight months full of significant anniversaries relating to the adoption and ratification of the Constitution, and that Masons should take advantage of these occasions to refresh their knowledge of American history and the part played in it by members of their order.

The biennial session of the Supreme Council also heard an address on "The Covenant of Liberty" by Dr. Joseph Fort Newton, a thirty-third-degree Mason attached to the Federal Council of Churches in Philadelphia. Dr. Newton called on Masons for a revival of the spiritual faith which gave birth to the Constitution.

He described the idea of a totalitarian state as "wholly opposite to the genius of the American people. With us," he continued, "the state belongs to the citizens, not the citizens to the state."

At a ceremony yesterday afternoon, Capt. Colon Eloy Alfaro, Minister from Ecuador and member of the Supreme Council in that country, conferred the highest decoration of his government upon John H. Cowles, grand commander of the Southern Jurisdiction.

Masons from other councils attending the session included Melvin M. Johnson, of Boston, grand commander of the Northern Jurisdiction; William H. Wardrope, of Hamilton, Canada, grand commander of the Supreme Council of Canada, and William Malling, from the grand lodge of Denmark.

Spain Asks Study By U.S. Delegation

A mixed delegation to study in Spain both sides of the Spanish civil war was suggested, by the Spanish Embassy last night as a means of ending the strife among United States religious groups over the war. In a statement, the embassy declared:

"The Spanish Embassy * * * considers it a duty, so that * * * the fraction which has developed as a consequence of the Spanish struggle may be properly ended, to suggest that those engaged in the argument send to Spain a mixed delegation to visit both sides * * * The Spanish Embassy promises to ask the Spanish government to grant the delegation the utmost facilities * * *."

Curran Supports Crime Clinic To Lincoln Civic Association

Colored Group Indorses Proposal, Backs Plan for Public Defender for Police Court; All Officers Are Re-elected and Installed.

"The majority of law violators in the District are in need of psychopathic treatment and a social study of their background so as to rehabilitate them and fit them for society," Police Judge Edward M. Curran told members of the Lincoln Civic Association last night.

Speaking on his proposed crime clinic for the District, Curran recommended a public defender for the District Police Court and strongly advocated immediate study of the crime situation in Washington.

The association passed resolutions indorsing both the proposed crime clinic and establishment of the office of public defender. The meeting was held at the Liberty Baptist Church, with E. F. Harris, president, presiding.

Other speakers were W. L. Houston, assistant U. S. Attorney General, the Rev. E. A. Christian and E. B. Smith, local attorney.

W. W. Hall, president of the Federation of Civic Associations, installed officers following the annual election. All officers were re-elected.

Inter-Federation

Indorsment of the Nation-wide venereal disease health campaign was voted last night by delegates attending a conference of the Inter-federation of Citizens Associations at the United States Chamber of Commerce Building.

Delegates representing the District, Prince Georges County, Md., Arlington County, Va., and Montgomery County, Md., indorsed the health campaign following the introduction of a resolution by A. G. Bailey, representing Prince Georges County.

Thomas E. Lodge, president of the Federation of Citizens Associations of the District, presided.

Bailey, reporting on action of his organization, told members a complete revision and renaming of all streets in Prince Georges County probably would be effected in the near future. Renaming of the streets will end a long fight citizens of the county have made to obtain a more satisfactory system of city planning, Bailey said.

Sixteenth St. Heights.

Dr. Allan A. Stockdale, author and former pastor of the First Congregational Church, turned entertainer last night and after telling the Sixteenth Street Heights Citizens Association of the needs of the Community Chest, recited poetry.

Members of the association liked the recitations so much they asked him to run through much of his repertoire.

Printing Craftsmen To Hear Virginian

L. G. McClellan, of Richmond, publishing house executive, will address the Washington Club of Printing House Craftsmen at its monthly meeting at the Lafayette Hotel tonight on "The Making of a Book." Mr. McClellan is president of the Richmond club.

In recognition of outstanding service to the graphic arts industry, local club life membership certificates will be presented by A. E. Giegengack, Public Printer, to John J. Deviny, assistant director, Bureau of Old Age Pensions, twice a president of the international association, and Clark R. Long, associate director of the Bureau of Engraving and Printing, and now entering his second term as international president.

Deviny was for many years connected with the Bureau of Engraving, having worked to its directorship from the ranks. He studied law during his service and entered private life, serving as secretary of the United Typothetae of America until his appointment to assistant director of the pensions board.

Long was president of the local club in 1930, 1931 and 1932, and from third vice presidency of the international association in 1931 held successive posts to its presidency in 1936 and 1937.

Holdup Trio Gets $900 in Pomonkey

A youth about 16 and two men, 30 and 35, were being sought by Maryland State Police last night for the armed holdup of a general store at Pomonkey, Md., in Charles County, and for an attempted holdup of another store in Ripley, Md., nearby.

Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Jamison, of Pomonkey, reported the trio entered their store, held them up and stole $900 from the cash drawer and their clothing. The two men, the Jamisons reported, held pistols, while the youth searched their clothing and emptied the register. The victims said they were then locked in a back room.

Police believe the gang was the same which attempted to rob a store in Ripley earlier in the day. Storekeeper Charles Herbert fired and drove them off. The gang also is believed to be the same which held up James Hook, who owns a store on Crain Highway near Priest's Bridge, on two different nights ten days ago. Nearly $50 was obtained in those two holdups.

Harmony on Children's Aid Follows Debate Upon 'Unfair Lists'

"Unfair lists" discussed at the meeting of the Central Labor Union, 423 G. street northwest, last night provoked comment on the propriety of union members working in establishments they are forbidden to patronize.

It was pointed out that union bartenders and waitresses are at work in cafes picketed by the musicians' union and that union musicians play in places where members of other trades are on strike. It was also said that union bread salesmen, milkmen and produce men are passing through picket lines to deliver supplies to picketed restaurants. There was general agreement that something should be done about it, but much disagreement as to what could be done.

Some delegates said that the unions which remained at work wore bound to do so because of agreements which could not be violated. A young woman, representing the waitresses union, said her organization had offered fullest cooperation to the musicians only to be told it would not help the musicians for the waitresses to strike. Another delegate said it would be impossible for a union deliveryman to refuse to make deliveries where he was told to make them.

The discussion was interrupted by a woman who, rising to a point of personal privilege, made an impassioned plea for the school children's free lunch fund. When the applause had subsided, the Central Union voted to contribute $25 to the fund.

Women Organize To Boycott Japan

Measures to make effective a boycott of Japanese goods among Washington women shoppers were adopted last night at a meeting at the Y. W. C. A. of members of the Restaurant Employes Local, the Typographical Ladies Auxiliary and the Women's Trade Union League.

One phase of the program adopted will be publication of a shoppers' manual listing articles of Japanese importation and the leading stores that plan to remove Japanese goods from their shelves.

A provisional Washington Labor Peace committee was organized and all Washington labor organizations were asked to affiliate with it. Florence Barnes, a member of the Trade Union League, was chairman of the meeting.

Longer Day Is Sought for Playgrounds

Lincoln Park Citizens Aim to Keep Children From Streets.

Plans to keep school playgrounds in the District open daily until 6 p. m. and from 9 a. m. to 6 p. m. on Saturday under a system of volunteer supervision, were advanced last night by the Lincoln Park Citizens' Association at their meeting in Bryan School, 1315 B. street southeast.

The association also adopted a resolution protesting the business privilege tax as "unfair and discriminatory" and urging repeal of tre tax and refund of all payments. Copies of the resolution will be sent to the Senate, the House, the District Commissioners and the Federation of Citizens Associations.

The association also voted to initiate a city-wide campaign to reduce vandalism by children and prevent destruction of public property. Support of free hot lunches for school children was given.

A committee, appointed by A. D. Calvert, president of the association, was directed to make a further study of the recommendation that Gallinger and Columbia hospitals be consolidated.

Their resolution proposing that playgrounds be kept open beyond the present closing hours was adopted with an appeal that the action would keep children off the streets and reduce the number of traffic accidents. The suggestion will be filed with the Board of Education, the District Commissioner and the Police Department.

Calvert said that the complete plan would call for opening every school playground in the District under properly supervised conditions. He will appoint a committee to consider possible organization of volunteer playground supervisors, drawn from retired Government employes, service men, police officers and others.

The group voted to continue its campaign for construction of a new bridge over the Anacostia River at Pennsylvania avenue.

The association indorsed a proposal of Mrs. Ernest Mosse, chairman of the health and welfare committee, to urge establishment of a health clinic for persons suffering from diabetes.

Button and Story Of Loiterer Clews To Coed Attack

Police last night had a clew to the identity of the sex fiend who slashed Ruth McMillen, 19-year-old George Washintgon honor student, in an attack in Rock Creek Park Saturday.

It was a brown button from a man's coat or overcoat, found by Private William K. Snyder, of the Park Police, in a pool of dried blood at the scene.

A second development came yesterday when a man told Snyder he had seen a man many times last spring and summer in the park, whose description tallied with that given by Miss McMillen. This man, he said, was in the park about 4 o'clock the afternoon of the attack at a drinking fountain near Taft Bridge.

He said the man was 26 to 32 years old, very slender, of medium height and of extremely dark complexion, a "Latin" type. "He looked," the man said, "sleek and oily and was very well dressed.

Meanwhile Miss McMillen, police said, identified a rogues' gallery suspected of similar offenses, and has served a term in Lorton Reformatory.

The coed was attacked when she became lost in the park while on her way to join a party of friends on a picnic. She was knocked unconscious and was dangerously slashed about the chest, neck and lips.

Because of the severe shock to her nervous system, it is possible, a police official said last night, that the girl may never be able to identify her assailant even after she has completely recovered from injuries suffered in the attack.

President Sees 1938 Deficit of $895,245,000

Bases Estimate on Raise in Administrative Cost by Congress.

ated on his recent Western trip, he apparently moved to clean house for an actually-balanced budget for the fiscal year 1939, as he stressed the closing of both the Reconstruction Finance Corporation and the Public Works Administration to future commitments.

Some Savings Listed.

The President said that the changes in the financial situation, caused by the Congressional actions and the unrealized estimates of revenues, "have had the effect of increasing the deficit of $418,000,000 of last April by $600,000,000, but there will be savings under other items of expenditure amounting to $323,000,000."

He estimated receipts for the fiscal year 1938 at $6,650,000,000 and expenditures at $7,345,000,000, excluding debt retirement—$200,000,000.

The decrease in estimated income to the Government the President accounted for by the reduction in estimates of receipts from income taxes and social security taxes.

Receipts to Gain Billion.

The savings came from the old age reserve account, $115,000,000 having been slashed from that formerly believed necessary to invest in the account, and a $208,000,000 reduction by administrative action curtailing other types of expenditures.

Total receipts will be $1,357,000,000 more than actual receipts for 1937, the President estimated. Income taxes, he said, will produce $634,000,000 more revenue.

Estimated expenditures for 1938 will be $650,000,000 less than actual expenses for 1937, excluding the statutory debt requirement.

Relief Off $1,139,000,000.

General expenditures will total $156,000,000 more than those for 1937, but relief will cost $1,139,000,000 less.

The President said, in reference to the increase in the public debt over the last fiscal year:

"The point of major significance in connection with the debt, however, will be the change in the character of the debt which will occur during the year. There are included in the total expenditures for 1938, which resulted in the above deficit, investments in special Government obligations in the amount of $575,000,000. In addition contributions to be made by the States to the unemployment trust fund will likewise be invested in special Government obligations in the net amount of $500,000,000. Thus public debt receipts made available from the sale of these special obligations to investment accounts in the amount of $1,075,000,000 will be used to finance the deficit of $695,000,000 and lessen the debt outstanding in the hands of the public by $380,000,000."

"Sterilized" Gold Excluded.

The President emphasized, in discussing the public debt, that "this does not take into account any change in the public debt which may occur as a result of the Treasury policy with respect to the sterilization of gold." If the inactive gold, "frozen" by the Treasury, were made active, or "unfrozen," the public debt would be correspondingly reduced by the same amount released. Inactive gold stood last week at $1,250,000,000.

The notice served by the President on both the RFC and PWA, the agencies through which billions have been moved into industrial, business and financial arteries, indicated his firmness of purpose in clamping shut the Government's pocketbook as business revives. The RFC may not make further commitments for loans and commitments now on its books which may later be canceled will not be used for expenditure on other commitments.

Tax Rise Hinted Here.

While no official would hazard a guess that heavier taxes must of necessity be levied, speculation in Washington revolved immediately around the possibility of increased taxes. The President pledged a budget balance in a recent speech for the next fiscal year, but with the sharp reduction in business revenues and the profound stock market slump likely to slash revenues further, hints here included the possibility of a stiff upward increase in middle-bracket incomes, along the lines repeatedly laid down by Senator Robert M. La Follette, jr. (Progressive), of Wisconsin.

La Follette demands higher surtaxes on middle-class incomes and a broadening of the entire tax basis, predicting $110,000,000 could be realized in new revenue from this source.

Text of Roosevelt Statement Revising Estimates on 1938 Federal Budget

Statement by the President in summation of the 1938 budget:

The attached summation presents revised estimates of receipts and expenditures for the fiscal year of 1938, reflecting the changes which have occurred in the budget subsequent to the revision of estimates contained in my message of April 20, 1937. In the latter message I pointed out that the decline in tax receipts was almost entirely responsible for the then estimated deficit of $418,000,000 for the fiscal year 1938. It was indicated that this estimate would necessarily be subject to change, dependent on any action taken by Congress which might increase expenditures.

The following changes have occurred which could not be predicted at the time of the April estimates:

The enactment by Congress of the new railroad retirement act, which increased the number of annuitants by adding certain groups of employes, retired under railroad pension systems, who were not included under the provisions of the former retirement act, and which added a reserve feature necessitating the annual investment of funds to establish a reserve against future payments, $113,000,000.

The continuation by Congress of reduced interest rates on Federal Land Bank loans and the reduction, for the first time, of the interest rates on Land Bank Commissioner's loans, necessitating an additional expenditure to reimburse the Land Banks and the Federal Farm Mortgage Corporation for the loss suffered through these reductions, $40,000,000.

Refunds Boosted Deficit.

The enactment by Congress of legislation authorizing refund of the taxes collected under Title 9 of the social security act to those States enacting, subsequent to the collection of such taxes, unemployment compensation programs, $36,000,000.

The legislative extension of the Public Works Administration for two years, and increase in the amount of funds made available for grants and administrative expenses $25,000,000.

The situation with respect to the impending surplus cotton crop, which will make it necessary for the Commodity Credit Corporation to make cotton loans, $130,000,000.

The present revision by the Treasury of the revenue estimates showing a reduction of $256,000,000 from the estimates of April 20.

These changes have had the effect of increasing the deficit of $418,000,000 of last April by $600,000,000, but there will be savings under other items of expenditures, amounting to $323,000,000, which will result in a net deficit of $695,000,000.

The receipts for the fiscal year 1938 are now estimated at $6,650,000,000, and expenditures, excluding $200,000,000 for debt retirement, at $7,345,000,000.

Receipts Show Decrease.

The present estimated receipts represent a decrease of $643,000,000 under the estimates contained in the 1938 budget, and a decrease of $256,000,000 below the revised estimates of April 20. This decrease is more than accounted for by the reduction in the estimate of income and social security taxes.

The expenditure requirements, excluding debt retirement, are now estimated to be $89,000,000 more than was anticipated last January after adding $1,500,000,000 for work relief, and $21,000,000 more than the revised estimates of April 20.

As previously stated, changes which have occurred since last DApril have added $344,000,000 to the estimated expenditures, but there have been offsetting reductions in other expenditures amounting to $323,000,000.

A part of this reduction was in the estimated expenditures under the old-age reserve account. While the former estimate of expenditures for investments under this account was $540,000,000, it has been found, upon a re-examination of the status of the fund, that the total amount of investments in the account on June 30, 1938, should be $690,000,000. Inasmuch as $265,000,000 was invested prior to this fiscal year, the remaining amount necessary to place the fund in proper status at the end of this fiscal year is $425,000,000, a reduction of $115,000,000 in the amount previously estimated.

Administrative Savings.

The remaining reductions amounting to $208,000,000 are accounted for by savings to be affected by administrative action in curtailing other classes of expenditures.

Receipts and expenditures for 1937 compared with present estimates for 1938:

Receipts.

It is now estimated that total receipts for 1938 will be $1,357,000,000 more than the actual receipts for 1937. Income taxes will produce $634,000,000 more revenue principally reflecting a full year of collections under the revenue act of 1936, as compared with one-half year's collections in the fiscal year 1937. Miscellaneous internal revenue taxes will be $205,000,000 greater, representing chiefly an increase in collections from estate taxes and alcoholic beverage taxes and from new taxes levied under the sugar act of 1937. During the past fiscal year, due to litigation, practically no collections were made under the law levying taxes on carriers and their employes, but in 1938 it is expected that $158,000,000 will be collected from this source. Social security taxes, which will be collected for a full year in 1938 as compared to only one-half year in 1937, will result in $353,000,000 of additional revenue. Customs revenues are expected to show an increase of about $8,000,000 in 1938 over 1937, while miscellaneous receipts remain at about the same figure.

Expenditures.

The estimated expenditures for 1938, excluding debt retirement, will be $656,000,000 less than the actual expenditures for 1937.

General.—The estimated general expenditures are $156,000,000 greater than the actual expenditures for 1937. This is due largely to increased expenditures of $63,000,000 for highways, $40,000,000 for the Maritime Commission, $60,000,000 for national defense, $67,000,000 under the social security act, and $59,000,000 for interest on the public debt; and to decreased expenditures of $76,000,000 for the Civilian Conservation Corps, $69,000,000 for agricultural adjustment program, and $7,000,000 (net) for miscellaneous items.

Recovery and Relief—The estimated expenditures under the recovery and relief program will be $1,139,000,000 less than in 1937. This amount represents reductions in expenditures of $621,000,000 for the Works Progress Administration, $373,000,000 for emergency public works, $85,000,000 for Resettlement Administration, and $60,000,000 for other purposes.

R. F. C. Receipts Less.

Revolving Funds.—The excess receipts of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, on account of repayment of loans, will be about $184,000,0000 less than last year, thus increasing total expenditures by that amount.

Last year repayment of loans made by the Commodity Credit Corporation exceeded expenditures by $112,000,000, thus offsetting the total expenditures of the Government by that amount. This year, however, on account of the surplus cotton crop, not only will there be no corresponding offset, but instead there will be an excess of expenditures over repayments of loans in the estimated amount of $100,000,000. The total expenditures in 1938 will therefore be increased by $212,000,000.

Other revolving fund items, including the Public Works Administration, show a net decrease in expenditures of $12,000,000.

Transfers to trust accounts, etc.—Investments in the old-age reserve account for the fiscal year 1938 will be $160,000,000 greater than in 1937.

The annuity payments and investments under the railroad retirement act will be $134,000,000 greater than the expenditures for 1937. In that year, under the provisions of the retirement act then in force, the expenditures consisted of annuity payments only, since that act did not provide for the establishment of a reserve, and no investments therefore were required in 1937.

Bonus Payments Ended.

The contribution by the United States to Government employes' retirement funds will be $27,000,000 greater than in 1937.

Last year $557,000,000 was transferred to the adjusted service certificate fund for adjusted compensation payments, but it is not contemplated that any transfers will be made during the current year.

Supplemental items—There is included in the 1938 estimates of expenditure an additional amount of $180,000,000 for supplemental items which will be needed to meet appropriations authorized during the past session, or deficiencies in existing appropriations.

Debt retirement—There is included in the 1938 estimate $200,000,000 for debt retirement, which is $96,000,000 greater than the amount spent for this purpose in the past year.

Deficit.

The estimated net deficit (excluding debt retirement) for the fiscal year 1938 will be $695,245,000, which is $2,012,000,000 less than the net deficit for the fiscal year 1937.

Increase in the Public Debt.

By reason of the net deficit the total public debt will be increased in the current fiscal year by $695,245,000, provided that the balance in the general fund on June 30, 1938, is the same as it was on June 30, 1937. The point of major significance in connection with the debt, however, will be the change in the character of the debt which will occur during the year. There are included in the total expenditures for 1938 which resulted in the above deficit investments in special Government obligations in the amount of $575,000,000. In addition, contributions to be made by the States to the unemployment trust fund will likewise be invested in special Government obligations in the net amount of $500,000,000. Thus public debt receipts made available from the sale of these special obligations to investment accounts in the amount of $1,075,000,000 will be used to finance the deficit of $695,000,000 and lessen the debt outstanding in the hands of the public by $380,000,000. This does not mean a decrease in the total gross debt, but only a switch from the hands of the public to Government investment accounts.

This does not take into account any change in the public debt which may occur as a result of the Treasury policy with respect to the sterilization of gold.

Future policy with respect to commitments of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation and the Public Works Administration:

Reconstruction Finance Corporation—On September 30, 1937, the Reconstruction Finance Corporation had on its books undisbursed commitments in the aggregate sum of $405,000,000, exclusive of undisbursed statutory allocations to Federal agencies and of agreements to purchase securities from the Public Works Administration. These undisbursed commitments, however, include $149,000,000 in the nature of conditional agreements, a large part of which ultimately will be canceled. Moreover, it is probable that the Reconstruction Finance Corporation will not be called upon to meet all of its other commitments. The details of these commitments are shown in the appendix as exhibit A.

While the cancellation of such commitments would not of itself return money to the public treasury, the ultimate effect of such action would relieve the treasury of a substantial potential liability, and to this extent the budget outlook would be improved. As a means of reducing this liability, and of avoiding the substitution of other liabilities therefor, I have determined that no further commitments should be made by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, other than for administrative expenses, and that the money represented by commitments now on its books, which, for one reason or another may later be canceled, should not be used for expenditure on other commitments, but be completely cleared from the books, thus insuring the elimination of such potential charges against future budgets.

I have also determined that the liabilities carried upon the books of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation in the nature of undistributed allocations to Federal agencies should not be used except to meet unavoidable requirements of existing law.

Balances Impounded.

Public Works Administration.—On September 30, 1937, the Public Works Administration had on its books undisbursed commitments for loans and grants in the aggregate sum of $530,000,000, of which $205,000,000 represents loan commitments and $325,000,000 represents grant commitments. These commitments are listed in detail in Exhibits B and C accompanying this summation. They will be financed from money now standing to the credit of the Public Works Administration on the books of the Treasury, plus the proceeds to be received from the sale to the Reconstruction Finance Corporation of securities now held or to be acquired by that Administration. Although the Public Works Administration finances a large part of its operations through the sale of its security holdings to the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, the burden of its expenditures must be carried by the Federal Treasury until the securities purchased by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation are actually sold on the market.

As in the case of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, it is improbable that the Public Works Administration will be called upon to meet all of the commitments now outstanding against it, and to the extent that it is not necessary to meet such commitments, the budget outlook will be improved. I have, therefore, determined to adopt a similar policy with respect to the Public Works Administration, namely, that any commitments now standing on the books of said Administration, which for one reason or another are canceled, shall be completely wiped off the books and no further commitments be made or substituted therefor; and that no present commitment—either loan or grant—on any project already approved shall be increased.

Unlike the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, the funds of the Public Works Administration are carried upon the books of the Government as appropriation accounts, and to make certain that this program is carried out, I am directing that the balances now carried upon the Treasury's books which may not be required to take care of the Public Works Administration program already approved, and after reserving $15,000,000 for administrative expenses shall be impounded and returned to the Treasury. The amount thus to be written off the books will exceed $100,000,000.

financial body which might have caused the renewed fainting spells.

It was noted, however, the downward push began in real earnest about the time the American Iron and Steel Institute announced, after midday, that national operations in the industry had dropped to 53.8 per cent of capacity from 63.6 per cent a week ago and 74.2 per cent a year ago. Also mentioned were damaged margin accounts being liquidated following the long decline in share prices from mid-August and the world tension over European and Far Eastern Crises.

The market hung up a new record for breadth; 1,014 stock issues were traded on the "big board"—4 more than the exchange's previous record at the height of the 1929 collapse.

Much of Advance Gone.

Total transactions, however, were far under those in wide breaks before Federal controls were clamped down on speculative activity in the stock market. The turnover was 3,227,550 shares, heaviest since last March 3, compared with 2,553,270 last Friday.

Embracing most actively traded commodities and corporate bonds as well as stocks, the decline tore into values built up slowly since July, signaled by huge selling waves 1932, the depth of the downswing which rolled over the market eight years ago.

Since stocks rounded the recovery top last March, more than half of the gains on the rise from the 1932 lows have been swept away by recurrent waves of liquidation, mostly since Labor Day. About three-fourths of the advance from March, 1935, into March of this year—one of the most sustained drives in Wall Street history—has been canceled.

Chrysler Goes Off $11.

Motor, steel, farm implement, chemical, mail order and other industrial shares tasking in bullish favor when "inflation" psychology held sway in the market place were among the chief sufferers.

Chrysler, down from a 1937 peak above $135, finished at $62.25, off $11 for the day. Deere, a farm implement issue, yielded $15 at $71.50 compared with the year's top of $143.50. United States Steel was off $7 at $81.50 against a 1937 peak of $126.50, and Bethlehem Steel dropped to $49.50, off more than $8 for the day, on its come-down from a recovery top of $105.50.

Rapid curtailment of steel production, in face of optimistic hopes for autumn business widely held a few months ago, apparently spread fear of a more serious setback for industry.

Slow to appear on the surface after stocks started to slide in August, following a mid-year rally, recession has become more noticeable lately in building, textile, and other lines in the van of the recovery march last spring.

Capital New Watched.

Pivoting on steel shares, as the news of the drop in output raced through trading quarters, liquidation spread throughout the share list.

The distress signals going up from margined accounts, and brokers dispatching calls for additional cash, Wall Street watched the news from Washington closely. Brokers have suggested a reduction in margin requirements by the Reserve Board would expand potential buying power of traders and perhaps help cushion the market.

U.S. Order Bars All Transfers of Utility Assets

tomarily held at division or local offices or in safety deposit boxes at local banks," but confidence was expressed in commission circles last night that its order had been issued before any transfers had taken place.

Members of the commission declined to give any information aside from that contained in its formal announcement, but it appeared there was uncertainty over the ultimate effect of the proposed transfers on the commission's ability to examine the accounts of the utilities.

Commission action was taken under Sections 307 (a) and 301 of the Federal power act, which empowers the Government agency to investigate facts, practices and accounts of the utilities.

Possible recommendation to Congress for tightening of control over the utilities' handling of their assets was seen in the citation by the commission of its authority "in obtaining information to serve as a basis for recommending further legislation."

The order provided that "upon notice to this commission, any public utility may pledge such securities . . . or sell or otherwise dispose of the same for some lawful purpose within the corporate powers of such utility, and compatible with the public interest . . ."

No one connected with the agency would disclose names of any companies involved in reports of the proposed transfers.

Meanwhile, "squatting" on water-power sites and unsound financing of power developments were censured by the commission in an opinion written by Commissioner Basil Manly. The commission denied the application of the Gasconade River Power Co. of Kansas City, Mo., for a license to construct and operate a hydroelectric development on the Gasconade River, a tributary of the Missouri River, in Missouri.

the last charge, Maj. Chin Ching-wu, commanding the deatchment, and the last 12 men in the regiment were overwhelmed.

The Japanese fought all afternoon and into the night with Chinese reinforcements, each Chinese deatchment moving up under a similar oath—swearing to die rather than retreat.

Another Japanese column was driving toward Naziang from Menkaza, a village about halfway between Tazang and Naziang. The purpose of the flank attack appeared to be to cut off Chinese defending Chapei and Kiangwan from rear line communications, and gradually wear down resistance on the Shanghai front.

Chinese sources reported 30 Chinese civilians had been killed or wounded during Japanese bombing raids over Hungjao, and said there were more than 60 civilian casualties in a similar raid over Chenju.

A squadron of five Japanese planes carried out the sixty-first raid on Nanking, unloading bombs near the military airdrome south of the city but reportedly doing little damage.

Northern Drive Checked.

Shanghai, (Tuesday, Oct. 19 (AP).—The advance of the Japanese army down the two great railroads linking North China with the south has been slowed down, according to authoritative advices today from points along the southern banks of the Yellow River.

In the east the Japanese threat to Tsinan, capital of Shantung Province, was lessened when the column operating along the Tientsin-Pukow railroad withdrew 15 miles northward to Pingyuanhsien from Yuchensung, where their line had been threatening the Chinese Tuhala River positions 30 miles from Tsinan.

A portion of the eastern forces was transferred to bolster the Japanese drive that is meeting stiff resistance 150 miles to the west on the Peiping-Hankow railroad.

Reports from North China yesterday said an armored train had penetrated to Hantan, 35 miles in advance of the main Japanese forces at Shuntehfu and an equal distance from the Chinese base at Changtefu in Honan Province. This would place the farthest Japanese advance 250 miles southwest of Peiping and only 15 miles from the Hopei-Honan Province border.

(A Japanese military communique issued at Peiping said a Japanese armored train crossed the Honan Province frontier at 4:30 a. m. Monday, invading the sixth province of North China.

(The Peiping communique said the main body of the Japanese had advanced from Shuntefu to Kwangpingfu, a distance of 30 miles, in the last 24 hours.)

Women Return to Shanghai.

Shanghai, Oct. 18 (AP).—Nearly 1,000 American and other foreign residents of Shanghai who fled the city at the outbreak of hostilities between China and Japan returned today to face the showers of shrapnel and bullets that make the foreign areas as dangerous as when they left.

Many of them were American wives who said they preferred being with their husbands in Shanghai at their own risk to a refuge in Manila, Hongkong, Kobe and other cities of the Far East.

3 of 19 Missing On Plane Well Known in D. C.

Mrs. Pritchett, C. D. Renouf and James Pergola Prominent Here.

Among the 19 passengers feared lost in the crash of the United Air Lines transcontinental plane yesterday were Mrs. Natalie Campbell Prichett, society figure and writer; Charles D. Renouf, former traffic manager here for the transport company, and James Pergola, Pathe News cameraman of Westchester County, N. Y., who usually accompanies the President.

Mrs. Prichett, who left here Friday afternoon, had planned to remain in Chicago over the wek-end before flying to California to visit her father.

Wrote Social Column.

A society columnist, Mrs. Pritchett made her home in Washington with her aunt, Mrs. Sidney Cloman, of the Cordova Apartments. Very prominent in local social activities, Mrs. Prichett collaborates on a social column for a Washington newspaper under a pen name.

Divorced from her former husband, Wilson Prichett, the society columnist has one son, Wilson, jr., who also lives at the Cordova.

Last year, Mrs. Pritchett lost her wrap while a guest at the home of Attorney General and Mrs. Homer Cummings. Department of Justice agents were assigned to the case and the incident received much newspaper attention.

At various times, Mrs. Prichett has been reported as engaged to be married to Eugene Vidal, former head of the Bureau of Air Commerce, and the late Guillermo Patterson, former Cuban Ambassador to the United States.

Renouf, 29 years old, was on his way to California for a rest. Friends said yesterday that he had been in poor health.

Moved to Pittsburgh.

He had been transferred about six months ago from his position as traffic manager here to a similar job in Pittsburgh, and had just resigned "to take it easy" for a while in California in an effort to regain his health, they declared.

Renouf is well known in commercial aviation circles in the East. A native of Pennsylvania and a graduate of Ohio State University, he came here about four years ago as traffic manager for Transcontinental Western Air. He very shortly thereafter resigned from TWA and worked with Eastern Airlines in Boston, returning here more than a year ago as district manager for United.

A member of the Junior Board of Commerce in Washington, Renouf resided at 2318 Huidekoper place northwest. Mrs. Renouf was overcome when she learned of the crash.

Windsor Says U. S. Visit Will Be 'Purely Private'

Dresden, Germany, Oct. 18 (AP).—How headache powders are made especially engaged the Duke of Windsor's attention today on a visit to Heyden & Co.'s chemical factory. The duchess, who received many floral offerings at her hotel, visited Dresden's famous art gallery.

In a formal statement distributed in England by Reuters, British news agency, the duke said his forthcoming visit to the United States would be of "purely a private, unofficial nature."

19 Are Believed Dead in Worst U. S. Air Crash

western Wyoming rancher, after a flight over the wreckage.

A scant 100 feet was the margin between safety and disaster for the palatial sky liner, the Mainliner, Carl Reynolds, photographer for a Salt Lake City newspaper, declared.

No Sign of Life.

"It apparently had crashed through some trees, then shot up the mountainside," he said after he, too, flew above the wreckage. "If it had been 100 feet higher it would have cleared the ridge.

"We flew as close above the wreckage as we dared and could not see a sign of the 19 people it carried. The front of the plane is all smashed in and the wings are sheared off.

"The mountainside where the plane smashed up is only a ten-minute flight from the Knight, Wyo., landing field."

The ship was located from the air today in the high Uinta Mountains on the Utah-Wyoming border after being missing more than 14 hours on its westbound flight.

If all were killed, the crash would be the worst in American airplane history. Largest previous plane-crash toll was that at Goodwin, Ark., January 14, 1936, when 17 died.

Hurriedly organized ground crews from nearby settlements fought through dense wilderness to reach the wreckage.

The plane crashed, United Air Lines officials said, on Chalk Mountain, about 26 miles south of Knight, Wyo., at an altitude of 10,000 feet. Searchers followed a rough wagon trail for miles and then started an ascent through mud and snow.

The huge Mainliner, one of the new and powerful planes of the United Air Lines, left Cheyenne, Wyo., last night at 8:25 p. m. Mountain standard time (8:25 p. m., Eastern standard time).

Pilot Earl D. Woodgerd, due in Salt Lake City at 8:42 p. m., Mountain standard time, reported at 8:16 p. m. over Rock Springs, Wyo., 175 miles east of Utah's capital:

"Slightly rough. All O. K."

Three minutes later Woodgerd said he was flying through broken clouds at an altitude of 10,000 feet, west of Rock Springs. This was the last report from the plane.

Pilot Bob Bergesen, flying out of Cheyenne, discovered the wreckage about 10 a. m. today. Half a dozen planes had been scanning the terrain between Rock Springs and Salt Lake City since dawn.

Cloudbursts struck the region yesterday, and a heavy snowfall last night in the upper areas was expected to hinder rescue efforts.

The Government airport at Knight, on the Wyoming-Utah border, was being used as the base for the search, and men, stretchers and emergency equipment were mobilized there. Several crews set out on horseback and with wagons.

A detachment of soldiers from Fort Douglas, Utah, was on its way into the area, also, to guard the scene. Postal Inspector M. G. Wenger said the men would keep sightseers out the district until all mail and express had been removed.

Sheriff Frank L. Narramore, of Evanston, Wyo., said heavy rain which fell in Evanston last night took the form of a blinding snowstorm in the wild mountain country where the plane is down. He said he obtained his information by talking with natives of the area.

U. S. Dispatches Investigators.

While investigators led by Sheriff Frank L. Narramore headed toward the scene of the crash of the United Air Lines transcontinental plane, the Bureau of Air Commerce dispatched seven members of its staff to the Utah peak in an effort to learn the cause of the accident.

Three officials headed by E. L. Yuravich, chief of the Foreign Airline Inspection Section, are en route from Oakland, Calif. The other two are O. A. Rosto, airline maintenance inspector, and Alvin W. Smith, airline inspector.

Four other investigators are on the way to Hayden's Peak from Los Angeles. They are James E. Read, airline inspector; Fred Studebaker, airline inspector; H. B. Taylor, airline maintenance inspector, and M. H. Goodnough, airline inspector.

Two Die in Plane Crash.

Colonia, N. J., Oct. 18 (AP).—Two young Air Transport Line mechanics' helpers fell in flames to their deaths as their private plane crashed here today. The victims were identified as Edwin Leith, 23, of East Orange, the pilot, and Robert Robrecht, 21, of Newark. Witnesses told of seeing the plane, flying low, cut into an electric power line and burst into flames in midair.

fly in New York, Straus won out over several other candidates for the job, including Howard Gray, chief of the Public Works Administration's housing section; John Ihlder, alley-dwelling authority, of the District of Columbia, and Langdon W. Post, chairman of the Housing Authority of New York City, of which Straus is a member.

Straus, a small and slender man in his forties, has been in the Government service before. In the old NRA days he was in charge of the Blue Eagle offices in New York.

He was frequently consulted by the President when the new housing act was under consideration in Congress last session.

A Democrat, he has on occasions dabbled in city politics and was a State Senator from 1921 to 1926. Housing has come more or less as a hobby to him. He has made housing studies here and abroad for Mayor LaGuardia, an ardent advocate of the Federal program.

For loans and grants to local housing groups and initial capital, Straus will have the proceeds of a $500,000,000 bond issue and $26,000,000 in cash. Under the act, capital grants or subsidies may be made in lump sum or in annual contributions spread over a long term of years.

Loans also will be made at low rates of interest and local capital will pay part of the ultimate cost.

Straus was the only business caller at the Roosevelt home today. The President again worked on official mail, completed a radio address opening the annual drive for the community mobilization for human needs, and prepared to leave for Washington tomorrow night.

He will dedicate the new Federal Reserve Board Building there Wednesday afternoon and probably return here next week-end to remain until after election day.

Standing-Room House Attends New Lunt Play

'Amphitryon 38' Revealed as Literate and Pithy Comedy at National.

By Nelson B. Bell

"AMPHITRYON 38." The Theater Guild presents the Alfred Lunt and Lynn Fontanne production of the play by the three acts by Jean Giraudoux, adapted to the English-speaking stage by S. N. Behrman, with music by Samuel L. M. Barlow. Settings by Lee Simonson; costumes by Valentina. Directed by Bretaigne Windust. Reviewed Monday night at the National Theater.

THE CAST:

Jupiter	Alfred Lunt
Mercury	Richard Whorf
Sosie	George Meader
Trumpeter	Sydney Greenstreet
Warrior	Alan Hewitt
Alkmena	Lynn Fontanne
Amphitryon	Barry Thomson
Nenetza	Kathleen Roland
Kleantha	Jacqueline Paige
Echo	Ernestine de Becker
Leda	Edith King

It is with an effective economy of principals and the material "commodities of the theater" that Alfred Lunt and Lynn Fontanne have brought to the stage the mildly audacious and centuries-old myth of Jupiter's wooing of a mortal woman in "Amphitryon 38," revealed to the first standing-room audience of the season in the National Theater last night.

The major burden of the fluently and compactly written play they bear themselves, aided in the secondary roles by the admirable artists who have come to be something of a permanent acting group under the brilliant aegis of these incomparable stars.

Second of the Theater Guild's series of six subscription plays, "Amphitryon 38" is a ribald fable rendered chaste by the superlative quality of its writing and the impeccable discretion of those intrusted with its dramatic interpretation. Its most daring situations and frankest lines are imbued with the delicacy of subdued and guarded action and the lilting cadences of purling words. One remains aware only of a swift and pungent humor and an esoteric philosophy based upon the futility of even a god's attempting to shatter the devotion of a doting and faithful wife, immune to the temptation of an Olympian immortality. The comedy is an exhilarating intellectual exercise as well as a sparkling and sagacious entertainment.

A Jovian "Peeping Tom."

Presented in a prologue and three acts, this thirty-eighth telling of a legend that has survived through 25 centuries of intermittent revision discloses Jupiter and his son, Mercury, reclining upon a fleecy cloud in envious contemplation of activities on our earth. There is silhouetted upon the curtains of a certain mundane window the figure of a woman who strangely arouses the interest of the master of the gods. His devining son suggests that from the fund of his father's omnipotence it should be an easy task to evolve a meeting and a clandestine courtship under the protective veil of that shadowed boon of mankind, night. By assuming the likeness of Amphitryon, who that day has gone to war, Jupiter should find it pleasantly possbile to revel in the ecstacies of a rapturous adventure between sunset and dawn. It is a thought that strikes the Jovian fancy.

The execution of the covetous hoax, however, is less simple than its inspiration. Jupiter encounters a middle-class woman in whose breast burns an unquenchable passion for the undying companionship and affection of her husband. Alkmena nurtures no lust for a god-like exaltation. Neither is her mortal chastity quite equal to the uneven conflict with the ardor of a wooer who has converted chaos into four elements and sifted the rainbow of its colors. A dismayed Jupiter, nevertheless, discovers that it is something of a problem for a "first-rate god to become even a second-rate man." His second and undisguised attempt to achieve a conquest by the magnificence of his own supremacy over the world is no less effectually check-mated by an eloquent lesson in friendship as a relationship superior to love. By a "godsend," Alkmena's unborn child will be named Hercules in deference to the solicitous wishes of the "friend" who both won and lost

A Play for the "Intelligentsia."

Such is the present rendering of the ancient tale. It has been contrived with a deft and subtle implication of modern applicability that lends it rare comic zest and literate appeal to attentive and receptive audiences. It would be a shade on the side of optimism, perhaps, to suggest that "Amphitryon 38" will be the Lunts' supreme popular triumph in the American theater. It is a play, one feels, primarily for those not averse to a little thoughtfulness as well as frivolous entertainment in their footlight diversion.

For the first time in several seasons these distinguished players are seen in a vehicle that evenly divides the honors of its enactment. Miss Fontanne's role is in no sense subordinate to Mr. Lunt's. They perform on even terms, with equal opportunities that are embraced with perfectly balanced skill. Their reading of speeches that are sometimes a bit abstruse is always lucid, illuminating and dramatically forceful. Their parts are costumed with colorful good taste that never subordinates drama to spectacle. The sum total of effect is that of a scholarly comedy interpreted by actors fully up to their formidable task.

Among the supporting members of the cast, Richard Whorf, as a vocal and amusing Mercury; George Meader, Amphitryon's faithful servant, never quite privy to what is going on under his master's roof; Sydney Greenstreet, in a brief role as a poetic trumpeter, and Edith King, as Leda, who had preceded Alkmena as an object of Jupiter's interest, contributed the most helpful assistance to the pace and humor of last night's performance.

Lee Simonson's appropriately simple settings are in strict conformity with the spirit of a work that affords an unusual evening in the playhouse—one that was accorded seven curtain calls last night and could have accepted more had not Mr. Lunt betrayed an obvious willingness to have them ended.

Runaway.

Three of Paramount's leading young men were runaways as boys. Ray Milland and Lloyd Nolan, who are playing together in the maritime color classic, "Ebb Tide," ran away to sea, while Harry Stephens ran off to Mexico, lured thence by tales of fabulous gold mines.

Nelson B. Bell About The Showshops

The Drama Desk Indulges a Semi-Annual Delusion And Sets Everything Right With the Playhouses!

All of Those Old, Pet Aversions Come Up Again With a Few New Ones Added for Good Measure; Screen Tests Cost Money; Equity Pays Tribute to Perkins; Broones to Compose Opera; Theater Notes.

IT MUST be pretty generally recognized by now that one of a drama desk's convenient "escapes" from a gnawing resentment at things as they are is to bludgeon with stout words the members of theater audiences who make habitual nuisances of themselves. It is a form of shadow-boxing that affords immense, if vicarious and only partial, relief.

BELL.

From time to time, this column has loosed its most venomous verbal shafts against:

The lovely ladies who wear unlovely hats to the playhouse and refuse to take them off, even when courteously requested by polite members of their own sex—those deluded dames who think that those seated behind them would rather see their weird millinery replicas of the Tower of Babel, oversized phonograph records and the tail plumage of a bird of paradise than the entertainment which they so efficiently obstruct.

The gabby gadders who attend the theater only to carry on vapid and uninterrupted conversations about what a tough time Junior had with the measles and did you see that awful rig Mrs. Whosis wore at the bridge?

Peanut munchers and candy chewers who make a cellophane container sound like a tin roof in a strong blow.

The seat-tappers, who drum an out-of-time rhythm with the music on the back of your chair, in delusion that they all are pedalistic Jack Powells.

Male space-hogs, who occupy one chair with their bodies and the floor area of three with their feet and legs.

Those anty victims of St. Vitus, who find it impossible to stay put and so bob all over the place, like Salici puppets on a jerky string.

Toe-crushers, who walk on any convenient feet rather than wait for those seated to rise and permit them to pass in comparative comfort.

The list could go on indefinitely, but that will do to give you a rough idea. It can't be too rough to suit the sufferers.

But the guilt does not rest exclusively on the heads of the cash customers. There are minor annoyances that it seems to me might be obviated by the theater managements with a minimum of effort and a maximum of public gratification.

For instance, there is the matter of tearing the admission ticket into two parts and insisting that the patron accept one of them, presumably as a souvenir of a delightful evening. This department's dull perception (applause) has never quite been able to comprehend what useful purpose this piece of a ticket is supposed to serve. It seems just a little like asking for a receipt from a streetcar conductor or a bus driver.

Then there is that practice of piling one performance smack on top of another with no interval in between, during which outgoing and incoming patrons might leave and enter without battling each other in the aisles. The interval referred to commonly is called a "recessional" and is a very fine institution for all those not members of the college football squads.

About the bass fiddles and harps—when, as and if—probably nothing can be done. The "dog-house" and magnified lyre are instruments that will stick up like the ladies' hats, no matter how thin you slice them.

Finally, there is that old problem of a million dollars' worth, more or less, of sweet-toned pipe organs going persistently to waste in practically every motion-picture theater in town. When they are played, they get a big hand—as witness Burrus Williams lately at the Capitol—so why not have them played?

If all this seems to pertain too much to the picture houses, then how would it be for the "legits" to raise their 8:30 curtains at 8:30, flash their intermission lights when the intermissions really are over and put water coolers on the first floor?

Voice from behind the manager's door: "And we let that guy come in on passes, the low-down, half-witted, ungrateful so-and-so!"

Well, I might go for that half-witted part, at that.

Among the important revelations of why a screen test is difficult to obtain on the West Coast, as placed upon the screen in "Hollywood Screen Test," foremost of the short-reel features at RKO-Keith's this week (is the little-known fact that such a test requires the undivided services of a total of 37 studio experts. Translated into terms of time and money expenditure, this amounts to what is known as a tidy sum. The search for new screen talent, of course, always is going on, as witness the considerable number of "unknowns" who have come into prominence in comparatively recent months, but it is only the most promising aspirant who may expect a producing company to accord her or him the equivalent of making a complete scene for a feature picture, or the greater part of a "short," to prove his or her worth. When it goes that far, the tyro practically is "in."

* * * *

With time racing along as furiously as it does, it seems hardly possible that it will be a month this Thursday since Osgood Perkins succumbed to a sudden heart attack only a few hours after his first splendid performance opposite Gertrude Lawrence in Rachel Crothers' "Susan and God," at the National. It may not be too late, even so, to record the tribute paid the late actor in the October issue of Equity, official organ of the Actors' Equity Association, of which he was vice president.

"No loss Equity has suffered in recent years," says the publication, "was as heavy as the unexpected death of Osgood Perkins, for three years first vice president of the association . . . For 11 years Osgood Perkins has served Equity faithfully and well, as a member of its council and as an officer. In that time Equity has come to value highly his poise and good humor, his shrewd judgment and executive ability."

The following tribute was unanimously adopted by Equity's council and a copy transmitted to Mrs. Perkins:

"We take this opportunity, in behalf of Equity's officers, council and membership, to extend to Mrs. Perkins and the family our sincere sympathies and condolences in their saddest bereavement. We all, however, have the peaceful consolation of knowing that his fine work will live after him and be a guiding star in our future accomplishments, and because of this, and his great accomplishments in the theater, on the screen and on the radio,, we feel that he will receive those eternal blessings and peace that the Great Creator has ordained for all those who presevere in the faith of helping humankind.

"Osgood Perkins, having lived a life of unselfish service and of tremendous giving to the Actors' Equity Association, which meant so much to him, has gone to join the magnificent procession of his departed fellow members."

Selah.

It was not inadvertence or error that caused the announcement that "Ice-Floe" would be the principal short-reel feature at the Trans-Lux Theater this week. That MacMillan subject was booked and received by Manager Roland Robbins, but the print was discovered to be in imperfect condition and unfit for public presentation. It was for that reason that "Long, Bright Land" was substituted—putting the Antipodes instead of the Arctic on the screen. So now you know.

* * * *

Martin Broones, producer of "Leaning on Letty," coming to the National next Monday night for a week's stay, will be writing on the cuff again this year. Last year, Broones, a successful composer of London musical shows, decided to do his work by remote control and put in the season presenting his comedienne wife, Charlotte Greenwood, in Chicago in "Leaning on Letty." His star remained in the Loop for 20 weeks and Broones found the stay so exhilarating that he managed to do more work on the side than he customarily turned out in his London apartment. So the Broones are touring again this season.

It is being bruited about, as the saying goes, that out of it all may come a New England opera.

* * * *

Invitation-to-the-Electric-Chair Note.

One somehow feels that the proper locale for this work would be New Brooneswick!

Burns, George Burns and Gracie Allen, Charles Butterworth, Judy Canova, Claudette Colbert, who recently signed to do a dramatic series on the air; Bing Crosby, Andy Devine, W. C. Fields, Niels Goodelle, New York band singer recently signed; Edward Everett Horton, Dorothy Lamour, Fred MacMurray, Ray Middleton, Victor Moore, Martha Raye, Shirley Ross and Gladys Swarthout.

'Where Angels Fear to Tread!'

This "Angel," in the person of Marlene Dietrich, however, apparently did not fear to tread on the susceptibilities of Melvyn Douglas, a young man not her husband, in Ernst Lubitsch's forthcoming production for Paramount. Or perhaps it was the other way 'round. At any rate, "Angel," with Herbert Marshall completing the triangle, will be coming along soon to a local screen.

In Hollywood

With JIMMY FIDLER

Hollywood, Oct. 18.—It is a rare conversation with a screen star that fails to run afoul of the income tax question—and the bigger the star, the louder he wails. Our higher-salaried celebrities turn over to Uncle Sam more than 60 per cent of their total incomes, then, to cap the climax, write a check to the State of California for a husky slice of the remainder. Carole Lombard, for instance, tells me that approximately 80 per cent of her earnings are taken by taxation.

CAROLE LOMBARD.

It is a bit difficult for the $3,500-a-year man to generate sympathy for a star who, even after paying such enormous taxes, still has left $60,000 or $70,000 a year. But that average man fails to take into consideration the necessary living costs of the star. It costs money to be in the limelight—celebrities cannot risk being called tightwads. The minimum rent for a good house in a fashionable district is $250 a month. Charge off another $250 for necessary servants. List the necessary wardrobe at $10,000 for needy relatives. And remember that when Johnny Star takes a party of guests out for the evening, he must take them to the best—and most expensive—resorts. He cannot afford the virtue of economy.

AND THE SADDEST FACT of all is that most stellar careers last only a few years. If fame were subtracted from the equation, I know that most of Hollywood's stars would gladly trade their $5,000 a week salaries for an income of $10,000 a year—for life.

Credit Director Frank Lloyd with being the least superstitious man in this most superstitious of towns . . . or is he? Today, at lunch, his assistant proudly pointed out these facts: "Wells Fargo," the current Lloyd picture, is listed as Production No. 1113 on the Paramount schedule, it was started on a Friday—and a black cat worked in its first scene. Pondering Frank's somewhat startled expression as he listened, and the scornful yet hollow laugh that dismissed the subject, I am wondering whether he or the assistant deserves the least-superstitious title.

Set-visited with Rosalind Russell this afternoon and found her just a bundle of nerves. "It's the kids," she said, darkly, and then soothed my curiosity by explaining. Seems that a month or so ago, while she was working night and day in a picture, she had to move and, being unable to do any house-hunting herself, instructed her real estate agent to lease for her a nice bungalow on some very quiet street. She moved into the place of his choice late one night—and awoke next morning to discover that it was just across the street from a large school. And now, with the kids back for classes, she is being hounded for autographs. "If I don't give more than one to each kid, I should be able to satisfy them all by the time school lets out next June," she said gloomily.

I am through making bets with Franchot Tone. He always wins. Today he told about his experience while working in one of those germ-proof outfits that doctors wear in the operating room—said that because his mouth was covered with a strip of gauze, everyone who met him invariably started to shout as though he were deaf. "They'll do it every time—it's human nature," he asserted—and I, like a sucker, offered to wager that he was wrong. We put it to the test—Franchot bandaged his mouth and paraded through the M. G. M. streets, with a still skeptical Fidler at his heels. And every man who met him shouted at the top of his voice! Try it yourself if you have any doubts.

P. S.—I told Andy Devine about it and suggested that he try it on his wife—but Andy said that would not prove a thing because she always shouts at him anyway.

Films Build Pep But Dull Brain, La Brice Quips

Hollywood Climate Puts Her to Sleep; She Has Gained 8 Pounds.

By the United Press.

Hollywood, Oct. 18.—Fannie Brice, gulping sliced fresh figs with cream and sugar, from a paper cup, reported today that Hollywood is fine for the body but tough on the brain.

Dressed in a green uniform and a white apron, Miss Brice is playing the part of a Yiddish maid in "Everybody Sing" at Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer. She is finding life here a big relief from the New York stage—if it were not for its effect on her mind.

"Hollywood is not good for the brain," she said. "The longer you're here the stronger you grow—and the dumber."

She blamed this state of affairs, not upon her associates, but upon the climate, which makes her sleepy. She's gained eight pounds since she's been here and claims she has to argue with herself to keep wide awake at work.

"Of course," she said with a typical Brice wink, "when you get to be 26, like I am, you appreciate working in the movies. You're not under high tension like you are on the stage, and live longer out here."

Dialect Disappears.

Miss Brice in repose on the set, eating figs and cream, is a far handsomer woman than you'd guess from seeing her in the movies. Her trick mouth becomes normal, her strangely awkward legs look as graceful as anybody else's, and her celebrated accent disappears completely. She's another woman.

When the lights flash on and the cameras begin to grind, she turns on the Brician glamour in reverse. Her words become strident, her eyes revolve, her mouth droops, and her feet become clumsy until the shot is finished. Then she returns again to her figs and normalcy.

Most harried person on this same M-G-M lot is Fred Datig, the casting director. It makes you tired merely to sit in his office and watch him try to talk into three telephones, gesticulating at a couple of urgent callers, hunting actors, dictate to his secretary and shout instructions to a pair of clerks, all more or less at the same time.

"And if you think this is busy," he says between barks at the three phones, the callers, the secretary and the clerks, "you onght to be here when we really are rushed."

His job is to find the proper actors for all the films in production at the studio. He's usually got a dozen or so in operation and at the moment he's worrying about the forthcoming historic epic, "Marie Antoinette," which has more than 150 speaking parts.

Datig said that the big trouble with being a casting director is the fact that Hollywood has too many people who think they're actors.

"If half of 'em left we'd be better off," he insisted. "There's no shortage of people in this business. There is a real shortage of star material, but that has been true of the theater for centuries. There are too many of the others: the character men, the ingenues, and the handsome young men.

"We know who the good actors are and we try as best we can to develop new ones, but the fact remains that you can stick all the really fine actors in Hollywood in your pocket."

The Post's New Yorker

By LEONARD LYONS

New York, Oct. 18.

DRAMA DEPT.: It will be easy for the Roosevelts to get hunk on the George S. Kaufman family for satirizing them in "I'd Rather Be Right." Anne Kaufman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George S. Kaufman, is a pupil at Mrs. Roosevelt's Todhunter School! . . . The press-dispatches from Boston reported that George M. Cohan refused to sing lyrics aimed at Al Smith and substituted his own lyrics, with Hitler and Mussolini as the victims. Those dispatches were wrong. There never were any Al Smith lyrics in the show. Cohan merely was trying to add improvements.

* * * *

MOVIE DEPT.: Whenever the story of Irving Berlin is told, the most glamorous portions always have been confined to that period when he was a singing waiter in the Bowery . . . Darryl Zanuck will screen "Alexander's Ragtime Band," Berlin's biography—with Tyrone Power portraying Berlin's role . . . But from that biography will be eliminated the singing-waiter stage—because Power just doesn't look good as a singing waiter!

* * * *

RADIO DEPT.: When Fred Allen broadcast from New York, his program's production man was Lester Vail, who was production man also for Ethel Barrymore's programs. Miss Barrymore's broadcasts went on the air just before Allen's, and so Vail had time only to rush into Fred's studio, point to the clock and wave his hand "Go." Allen, now in Hollywood, sent farewell gifts to all those associated with him on those broadcasts. To Vail he sent a watch, with a note reading: "We were very glad to have you with us." It was signed "Ethel Barrymore."

* * * *

SCHOOL DEPT.: Morris Carnovsky, who portrays the Anatole France role in "The Life of Emile Zola," lectured with Philip Loeb of "Room Service" before the students of the Theater Alertness Course at the Group Theater . . . "When I arrived in Hollywood," Carnovsky confided to them, "the first thing to impress me was the vastness of its endeavors. Everything is so big, so encompassing—just like a vast Golem." . . . "Yes," Loeb added, "a Sam Golem."

* * * *

FINANCE DEPT.: A few days after "Excursion" opened, Playwright Victor Wolfson went to his agent and said: "I've always wanted to have a checking account. I've got $400 now. Is that enough?" . . . "No, it isn't," the agent informed. "You need $100 more." . . . "Well, how about lending me $100?" Wolfson asked . . . "Wait until tomorrow," he was told. "I think I'll have it for you then." . . . The next day the agent delivered a check to Wolfson. It represented the playwright's share of the screen rights sold that morning. It was for $55,000.

* * * *

BUSINESS DEPT.: David Selznick's father was one of Hollywood's pioneer producers. The last picture he produced, at the old Paramount studio, was the silent screen version of "The Prisoner of Zenda." Lewis Stone, wearing a blond wig, portrayed the leading role. The senior Selznick had been fond of the Zenda idea and convinced his backers that it would make a great picture. He was so confident that he invested all the money he had into this production. As a result, he went broke . . . That was one of the reasons which prompted Dave Selznick to produce "The Prisoner of Zenda" this year. It vindicated his father's belief—for that picture has become Hollywood's biggest financial success.

* * * *

ADVERTISING DEPT.: The Harlem Uproar House has been having difficulty in getting the N.Y. Times to accept its ads. In one case, the models were shown wearing enough clothes. When the management submitted an ad in which "S-K-Y" had been added to every word, the Times officials rejected it, suspecting a Red Russian touch . . . The exasperated cafe men then submitted this reproving ad: "Dear Aunt Minnie—I didn't know you were a Sissy. What did you expect in a Broadway night club—Romeo & Juliet?" . . . It's been accepted!

* * * *

LOCAL NEWS: Georgie Tapps, who rates among the three best dancers in America, will join the "I'd Rather Be Right" show in Boston Monday . . . The show to be produced by the Communist Party November 13 will be called "One-Sixth of the Earth." Marc Blitzstein's hit tune is entitled "Moscow Metro." . . . Hildegarde has been signed to appear at the Ritz . . . There'll be great excitement at the Supreme Court soon when Heywood Patterson, of Scottsboro, applies for a writ of certiorari . . . Mary Lewis, the opera star, will return to America October 22, on the Deutschland. She'll relinquish her night-club career in favor of another concert tour.

Engage Tom Moore To Coach Shirley

Tom Moore, film favorite of silent days, is dialogue director on the new Shirley Temple picture, "Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farm," and happy in his new field of studio work.

"They say the lure of grease paint is irresistible," Moore said, "but not for me. It's a relief not to have to put it on when I go to the studio every morning."

Slack Suit Has Studded Bolero

Getting ready for a Palm Springs vacation as soon as her role in "Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farm" permits, Dixie Dunbar has a new slack suit all ready for the trip. Made of yellow sharkskin, the highlight of the outfit is a suede bolero of copper color, studded in gold nail heads. A modified sombrero of the suede, similarly trimmed, is included.

Charlie McCarthy Has Screen Rival

A new "star," one rivaling Edgar Bergen's friend, Charlie McCarthy, will be born in "Thrill of a Lifetime."

The new, if somewhat dumb, luminary will go up in lights as Mamie O'Grady, danseuse extraordinary.

Mamie is slightly older than Charlie, and somewhat larger, weighing 25 pounds. Like Charlie, she relies upon human dexterity to produce laughs from her audiences.

In "Thrill of a Lifetime," in which she makes her screen bow after several years of stage success, Mamie is whirled about in a comic dance number by Johnny Downs, costarring with Eleanore Whitney in the picture.

Mamie was designed, built and patented by Tommy Wonder, who also appears in "Thrill of a Lifetime."

MARY HAWORTH'S MAIL

If Girl Loves One Man, Yet Marries Another for His Money, Has She Chance at Happiness?

Owing to Miss Haworth's unavoidable absence from her desk for a day—the answer in this column was written by proxy.

DEAR MISS HAWORTH: Do you think any girl has a chance of happiness who marries for a home and support rather than for love? I am very unhappy at home because my parents keep such constant supervision over me. I am 26 years old. My parents support me and buy my clothes and give me spending money, but they object to my having any friends, either boys or girls. When I see my friends I have to do so outside of my home and can not tell my parents the truth about it.

• • • •

I am really in love with a young man who is only making a very moderate salary and does not think he could support me on it. He has suggested that we marry and not tell my parents so that they would still support me, buy my clothes and give me money. He has also suggested that I marry another man, an older man whom I met at the home of a girl I know. This man has money enough to support me. The man I am in love with says that I could marry the man with money—and then when he had money enough to support me I could get a divorce. I dread the years of unhappiness married to a man I do not love, waiting for the time it would be safe to get a divorce and marry the man I do love. UNDECIDED.

• • • •

DEAR UNDECIDED: Your point of view on life is all wrong. The man you profess to be in love with does not deserve your love, for his ideas of honor are certainly warped. It is certain that you would not be happy if you married a man simply for support until such time as you would feel it "safe" to get a divorce to marry another man whom you had loved all the time.

• • • •

The years you waited would certainly be unhappy ones. You would be living a life of deceit and treating your husband in an unbelievably cruel manner. Suppose you had children? Would you be willing to divorce your husband and their father to marry a man who was not willing to make the sacrifice all young men just starting out in life gladly make for the woman they love?

• • • •

The sensible thing to do is to relinquish entirely the young man you love, or else marry him and help him make a success in life. Since you are young and strong, you might get work yourself. However, you should think the matter over carefully before taking such a step. The character of this young man does not seem to be one of integrity and honor. He lacks those characteristics to make a good husband.

• • • •

If you should marry the man with money you should be a good enough sport to play the game and be a good wife. Some of the happiest marriages are founded on "good sportsmanship" and that alone. If you respect this man with money and really want a home you might later learn to love him and make him a good wife. First you must eliminate the man you think you love from your mind. You could tell the man who is able to support you that you do not love him but that you like and respect him and that you will endeavor to be a good wife to him. That is, of course, if you mean to be. If you do not, you should abandon all thought of him and the home and support he could give you. It would be unwise, and dishonorable also, to enter into marriage with him with a mental reservation of any kind in regard to the man you love or think you love.

• • • •

You have another avenue of escape from your present situation. You are 26, and therefore mature. You could get employment and thus become independent of your parents. Sometimes parents are over-zealous in their protective instincts for their children, without realizing they have grown to adult estate. You might try having a calm, frank talk with them and tell them that you are unhappy under their restraint. If you tell them you plan to marry one man for support while you love another and disclose the suggestions the young man you love has made to you, you will doubtless find them willing for you to have your friends at home. That is, they will if they have a grain of common sense.

PLEASANT HOMES

By Elizabeth MacRae Boykin.

"IF YOU HAD your choice of everything," writes Rosie R., "what kind of bedroom furniture would you buy? I mean if you were in my place, needing something practical and knowing it will have to do the rest of my life. I can afford a good set of furniture now and don't want to make any mistakes in selecting it. I thought if I should buy a well designed style that will always be nice, then I could take my yearning for the spectacular out in colors and backgrounds that will be changed from time to time. I would be so grateful for any suggestions you could give me. Don't forget that I want a room that the most particular person would like . . . I have a horror of ending up with a room that just shouts practicality at the cost of any distinction."

We agree! Our pet peeve is the cream to brown or taupe room that has been furnished not with a subtle monotone effect in mind, but entirely because those colors wouldn't show dirt. The catch there is that they usually look all dirt and grime, and no matter how clean the room really is, it never seems bright and shining. That's why the clean colors are so pleasant to live with . . . White, light green, pale blue, clear red, fresh yellow. How about pale blue satin-striped wall paper for your room, with a deeper blue rug, then flowered chintz spreads and draperies with yellow bouquets on a white ground and made with yellow taffeta rather wide and pleated? Then chair covers in plain yellow?

As for the style of the furniture, we'd be inclined to advise colonial mahogony for enduring good style. But watch proportions so that you'll get good reproductions you'll always like. A colonial poster bed, simple and without gewgaws, would be a possession to treasure, then a chest with a mirror, a highboy, a pair of little colonial sewing tables for bed lamps, some good chairs, and you'd have a lovely room.

Coiffure and Attire for Career Woman

The modern business woman is sleek and smart at all times, yet conservative, with good taste as well as style, as the main theme. The smartly flattering coiffure (above), designed by Ivan, reminiscent of the old-fashioned chignon, features the new coxcomb center roll with soft curls edging the sides, and the back hair arranged in inverted curls and puffs. It harmonizes with the current trend in business attire.

Black Wool Dress and Three Hats Called First Requisites for Business Wardrobe

Fashion Magazine Editor Stresses Appearance of Career Woman.

By Ethel Ehlen.
The Post Fashion Editor.

THE CAREER WOMAN, regardless of whether she is a big executive or just a cog in the wheel of business, has a high standard to live up to in the matter of appearance, contends Gail, fashion editor of a New York magazine and an outstanding authority in the planning of fashion shows throughout the country, who is in Washington for several days.

"To be a smart looking and attractive career woman at 40, means starting at 20 to lay the foundations, both as to skin care and good judgment in the selection of clothes," she said. "And no business man likes to have a secretary who looks like an old hag, regardless of the brain power she might possess. In these modern times, one has to be chic as well as efficient."

A black dress (preferably sheer wool), of good material made on simple, smart lines, and at least 3 hats to change the entire effect, is the first requisite in the wardrobe of the well-dressed business woman, according to Gail. "Don't wear the popular molded or corseted silhouette, to business, she admonishes. There is such a thing as charm in an office, but save the sex appeal until after 6 o'clock, for social engagements. The present vogue for short sleeves is grand for office wear; better to work in and eliminates those ghastly, shiny elbows."

Three Hats Suggested.

As to the three hats Gail advises, one should be a sports type of hat, the second, a dressier version, to top the fur or fur-trimmed winter coat, the third, an extreme or mischevious sort of hat, for cocktails and dinner.

The tweedy mixture wool suit with several sweaters is next in importance in the career woman's wardrobe, maintains this authority. This may be dressed up with the inevitable three-strand pearl necklace. A black or navy blue silk sheer or crepe, is Gail's third recommendation for appropriate office attire. "But don't wear browns," she advised, "they are deadly in an office, somehow giving a let-down atmosphere to the entire place. Besides this drab effect, a special make-up is necessary for browns and business girls may not have time to bother with this change of complextion in their mad dash to get to the office on time."

Make-up in an office should be subdued, with accent on the eyes and lips, to brighten the effect, Gail believes. "I like the hair done in a sleek and becoming style," she said, "but the forehead should be exposed, because it gives a more wide-awake and alert appearance than when covered. If eyeshadow is used for daytime, it should be expertly applied and be either gray or brown." The hands, which are always on parade in the life of a business woman, taking notes or using the telephone, should be given special care, so they will be beyond reproach, Gail points out. Hand creams, meticulous manicuring and pale-colored nail polish (the majority of men still have an aversion to bright polish), are important things to remember in grooming hands for the office, she admonishes.

Warns Against Mascara.

It is well to keep a makeup kit, hand cream, nail white (to put under the nails to erase the effects of carbon paper and such), cleansing tissues, eyeshadow, mascara and brighter nail polish, in the desk, to use in refreshing the complexion and hands, when going from office to cocktails, or dinner and the theater, Gail suggests. The same is true of costume jewelry, gay gloves, exotic handbags, and long, flowing veils; they can be tucked away in a drawer until after office hours to be donned for a more glamorous ensemble when you haven't time to go home and dress for an informal evening engagement.

"Don't wear mascara in the daytime," Gail warned emphatically, "it is in the same class with chewing gum."

Gail has charge of the fashion revue to be held tonight at the Raleigh Hotel in connection with the fifth annual Washington beauty and style show, with clothes from the Hecht Co. and coiffures by Ivan, Leon and Fred Lang, guest hair stylists from New York.

For Office Chic
(As suggested by Gail)

One black basic dress (preferably wool).

One tweedy mixture wool suit with several sweaters.

Black or navy blue silk sheer or crepe dress.

Three hats—sports, semidressy and cocktail.

Subdued make-up with accent on eyes and lips.

Hair, sleek and becoming with forehead exposed.

A WOMAN'S NEW YORK

By Alice Hughes.

New York, Oct. 18.

HOW MANY of us want to stop off the treadmill, leap out of the squirrel cage, get well away from it all and do what we've dreamed of doing for many years! And how few of us do! But one attractive, blue-eyed blonde here is actually doing it—and ever since I heard her story I've been soundly befuddled by her gallantry, and her will to leave so much behind!

ALICE HUGHES.

I push to your attention Mrs. Annette Wilcox Runyon, a successful executive in a swanky speciality shop. All her life she's wanted to vagabond for a while, to mingle with many sorts of people and see the whole great country. She has a husband, a 7-year-old son away at school, and a hundred-dollar-a-week job. But she's sub-leased her apartment to a Kentucky family, is buying a second-hand car and is going off to see what makes this Nation tick, if she can.

"I'm just fed up with New York," the bright-eyed Mrs. Runyon told me. "Here's a chance to kick over the rigidity of the life I've been leading. I'm tired of sitting around with the young intelligentsia who use big words and yet know little about the things outside New York. I want action, not words. I'm worn out with this town's maniacal speed, smug superiority. I say the devil with punching clocks—I'm going to start enjoying life."

• • • •

All this bright rebellion, mind, from a born and bred New Yorker—a viper, no less, in our buzzim! She has her driving license and is shopping for the old car. She has her clothes, her outfit for camping and a typewriter. Soon she'll be off on the trail in search of action, not words. Keep an eye out, please, for this handsome, dashing gal. You'll like her. And my good gosh, how I envy Annette Wilcox Runyon!" The rest of us are cowards and softies.

• • • •

GIRL ABOUT TOWN—I noted that when Sonja Henie came a sailing into port on her way to make her next movie, "Bread, Butter and Rhythm," she showed that same old tendency to poundage, but was as cute as ever, and even younger in appearance. Sonja has a secret, and don't tell her boss—she is crazy for cakes and chocolate. She told me with kiddish glee how she gobbled these forbidden dainties during her European holiday. The Norse Nifty looked fetching in a black caracul coat and hat, and if she doesn't nougat herself right off the screen, all will be ducky . . .

• • • •

Two of my favorite people, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Huston, of everlasting "Dodsworth" fame, have just checked with me on their plans for the new play season. Walter is going to appear in "Mr. Tutt," by Arthur Train, while the madame, Nan Sunderland in the program, will be seen in a new show, "Robin's Landing." For once, they'll be in different shows, but on Broadway at the same time, we and they piously hope . . .

• • • •

Tamara, the little Russian girl who came from a cellar restaurant to fame by singing "Smoke Gets In Your Eyes" in "Roberta," is due back on Broadway in a new musical show, "Right This Way." It's producer is a former actress named Alice Alexander who is said to have dug up a kighty bankroll to do this and other shows. Tamara is a cute trick, but was loveliest when she was singing down in that Fourteenth street basement!

• • • •

The darling Abbe kids—Patience, Richard and Johnny—have another cute book, "Of All Places," about their lives in Hollywood. Not the equal of the immortal "Around the World in 11 Years," but plenty fun. The movie career of the little Abbes never got started at all, for some reason—maybe because they are writers, not hams . . .

Your Figure, Madame!

Many Diet Directions Are Not Based on Fact, So Look Out.

By Ida Jean Kain.

YOU TAKE the word of Paris on fashion, Hollywood on beauty, etiquette experts on good form—and just anybody on diet.

Whenever you let anyone tell you what to eat, be sure that person is really qualified to advise you on the scientific subject of nutrition. The chances are it will not be your hairdresser, masseuse, or even a movie star.

Only recently a beautiful screen star told me, in all seriousness . . ." And another thing! Tell them not to mix protein and starches."

"Why not?" I asked, a bit startled at the longevity of a mistaken idea.

"You feel much better if you don't," was her assurance.

Now, you can take a movie queen's advice about a lot of things pertaining to beauty, but please draw the line at diet.

The prohibition against mixing proteins and starches is known as "compatible eating," the Hay Diet, and, less respectfully, "the haywire diet." Compatible eating is the combination food idea on a larger scale, and is based on the principle that certain foods do not combine well.

Why not mix proteins and starches? Nature does. You cannot eat a slice of bread or drink a glass of milk without getting protein and starch, already combined for you. Many of the common foods are composed of these two elements. Even the plebian potato, which you may regard as strictly starch, contains protein of a high quality.

Doctors and dietitians have actively contradicted this false theory—and half a million doctors and dietitians can't be wrong. There is no physiological basis for the belief that food elements in combination cannot be properly digested. Dr. Martin Rehfuss, of Philadelphia, has proven conclusively that proteins and carbohydrates are not incompatible, and that an acid fruit does not interfere with the digestion of starch.

The movie star may have benefited from such a system of eating. If so, it was probably because the diet limited her food intake. You always feel better when you do not overeat. Or, the benefits may have resulted from the inclusion of more fruits and vegetables in the menu. In any case, the combination of certain foods in a particular order had nothing to do with it.

Today's HEALTH TALK

By Logan Clendening, M. D.

Most Dangerous Game.

Football stands at the top of dangerous games. It is over four times as dangerous as professional wrestling, by actual statistics taken year by year. Anybody who has seen modern professional wrestling should get a little inkling of what that means.

There are ten times more injuries in football than in basketball.

A number of years ago a definite attempt was made to make football less dangerous by substituting an open game for a closed game. How successful that was can be judged by the fact that the forward pass is the most dangerous play in the game, as about 36 per cent of all injuries occur on this play. The forward pass was the play which was introduced to make football safe.

Forty-two per cent of all injuries were suffered by the tackler; 13 per cent of all injuries were suffered by the blocker; 5 per cent occurred in pile-ups; 15 per cent were suffered by the player tackled, and 11 per cent were the result of players being kicked.

A large part of this is preventable. Most of its occurs in young boys who are on teams inadequately trained and coached, who are taught nothing about protecting themselves, and who are too young to play such a game anyhow.

Something can be done in the way of changing the rules of the game. The Wisconsin Interscholastic Athletic Association recommends return of the post to the goal line and increase of value of the field floal to 4 points.

Second, it is recommended that a rest period between quarters should be two, and possibly three, minutes. The rest period between halves should be increased to 18 minutes, the last three minutes to be used as a warming-up period to relieve tension and put the players in better mental and physical condition for the second half. It is thought that this might relieve the numerous injuries occurring on kick-off plays, due to the nervousness and tenseness of the players.

Don't diet by hearsay.

Choral Speech Helps Develop Adults' Voices

Matrons and Business Women in Class at Roosevelt High.

By Genevieve Reynolds.

IF YOU should walk by a room some Thursday night at Roosevelt High School and hear voices chanting:

"We be the king's men, hale and hearty, Marching to meet one Buno-party . . ."

it will not be children repeating their nursery rhymes, but a group of men and women striving to improve their reading and speaking voices.

At first the repetition of poetry sounds childish and inefficient to the participants and the words are repeated softly and hesitatingly, but soon confidence and volume are gained.

Class Enthusiastic.

For the most part, the men and women who comprise the Choral Speaking Class are not young people seeking diversion, but mature persons who want to improve professionally or develop greater interpreative appreciation for their own pleasure.

One mother past middle-age, who has reared a large family, takes her work seriously for she is endeavoring to overcome a thin quality in her voice. Two other women are striving for self-confidence, so they may read and speak at club meetings. Still another, who comes from many miles away, desires a pleasant speaking voice. She is also eager to meet her appreciation of poetry. A radio engineer seeks to improve his voice for professional reasons.

Whatever individual reason these men and women may have for entering the class, one and all apply themselves enthusiastic 'ly if a little timidly. Age is no deterrent to their ambitions.

"Nobody is too old to improve his or her speaking voice if concentration is directed toward that end," said Miss Hester Walker Beall, teacher of the Choral Speaking Class.

Upright Posture Needed.

Miss Beall studied at Columbia University and has conducted classes in speech training for a number of years at her studio in Washington. In her classes, Miss Beall stresses the importance of correct posture as the foundation for all good speech.

Once the pupils have gained an upright sitting or standing position, so as to insure correct breathing, she strives for correct diction and tonal qualities. Vowels are stressed for roundness and resonance, consonants for definiteness.

The benefits derived from choral speaking, Miss Beall explains thus: "In a group, timid persons gain confidence to speak alone before an audience, precocious people learn to co-operate. All learn to speak with greater precision and clearness."

Choral speaking, as a method of voice training is a comparatively recent innovation in the Roosevelt High School and in other schools of the United States. It is an outgrowth of a revival of the classic Greek chorous that was first revived by John Masefield, the poet. It was used in speech festivals for various church programs. Later Margery Gullam made extensive tours of England, introducing choral speaking to many groups. Lately this method has been established in the schools and churches of the United States as a means of voice improvement.

Actor March Wins Highest Score as A Model Husband

Frederic March, movie actor, leads all celebrities as a model husband, according to a recent survey made by The Ladies' Home Journal, to determine the status of the American husband in the home.

Mr. March won first place, with a score of 90 per cent, and was followed closely by Lou Gehrig as second, with a score of 85, which makes Mr. Gehrig between good and angelic, according to his wife, who says, "He does get a bit put out when I go slightly gay in a daring hat."

Fred Allen, who can fix loose screws, but is on the bearish side around the house, according to his wife's estimate, passed the test with a bare score of 70 per cent. Ely Culbertson also passed, with a score of 70. His chief fault is burying his head in a paper the minute he gets home.

Here are 5 of the 15 questions included in the test that proved to be the American husbands' Waterloo.

Does he phone when he's going to be late or absent from dinner?

Is he pleased when men are attentive to you, or does he get jealous at the slightest provocation and then accuse you of being silly and suspicious if you get annoyed at him for giving other women too much time at the party?

When things don't go well at the office, does he ask your advice, or does he take it out on you by being unreasonable?

Is he sympathetic when you're tired and nervous, or does he get impatient and act as if it were a personal affront?

Does he let you go in for dashing or extreme clothes, or does he admire other women who wear them but want to keep you mousey?

Tell Fortunes at Parties

THE CROWD can't get enough of Judy's fortunes. You can see why when you listen to the story she finds in Dick's teacup.

"You're going to propose soon," Judy says solemnly as she sees leaves grouped like a cake near the rim of the cup. And as she notices Titian-haired Kay's adoring eyes on Dick, she adds mysteriously, "There's a hint she may be a redhead!"

Do you have to be a seventh daughter of a seventh daughter to read fortunes like that? You can do it easily. Begin by reading your own fortune. Drink a cup of tea dry, turn the cup around three times clockwise and make a wish. Then turn the cup upside down, then right side up.

If leaves near the rim form a little triangle, with the apex up, you'll get your wish and good luck, too.

Leaves shaped like an arrow say news is coming. A tree promises health; a basket, gifts. A star speaks of love; a snake warns of an enemy.

Card fortunes are fun, too. Find out what you should say to that proposal. Draw five cards from the deck with your left hand. If you get a red jack or king, accept; a black jack, say "No!"

Here's a fortune game, Invisible Messages, that's fun to do at a party. Have guests draw slips of paper from a hat. The slips look blank but over a lighted candle reveal mystic messages about money, love and luck. You've written the messages beforehand in lemon juice, you see.

Send 15c for our booklet, "Let Me Tell Your Fortune," to The Washington Post Home Institute, 109 West Nineteenth street, New York, N. Y. Write plainly your name, address and the name of booklet.

Cocktail Party Given at the Greek Legation Shares Social Honors With 'Amphitryon 38'

Hellene Atmosphere Draws Throng to Envoy Sicilianos' New Residence and to the National; Susan Ertz in the Wilbers' Party at Play.

By Hope Ridings Miller.
The Post Society Editor.

The Greeks had a day for it.

Two of the outstanding events on yesterday's social calendar were the Greek Minister's cocktail party in honor of Signora Rosso, wife of the Italian Ambassador to Moscow, and the Theater Guild's presentation of "Amphitryon 38," which, as everyone knows by now, is Greek as all get out.

Added to all that, Susan Ertz, noted novelist, who recently arrived in Washington, was present at the play with just about everyone who knew she was there wanting to find out where she was seated and who came with her. In looking about for her, or for anyone else, you saw on all sides more social lights than you could shake a lorgnette at. As many times, in fact, as the overworked word "brilliant" has been applied to audiences at the National, it was never more apropos than last evening.

HOPE R. MILLER.

"The Lunts always draw 'em in droves—big-wigs, I mean," observed an unidentified bystander who watched the line of long, sleek limousines pull in front of the theater and deposit party after party in evening attire. Whether it was "the Lunts" or the Greek vehicle in which they rode merrily along to a satisfactory finish is a matter of conjecture; but anyway social notables certainly were there—"in droves."

Mrs. Dwight Davis Glimpsed in Crowd

Mrs. Dwight Davis arrived in a party which included Mrs. Lee Warren. The former was most attractive in a crimson evening gown with an accordion pleated skirt topped with a mink wrap, and Mrs. Warren wore a fuschia velvet frock with a cape of the same material. Early arrivals were the Austrian Minister and Mme. Prochnik, she in a black gown with a gold metal blouse. They were accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Jouett Shouse.

Mrs Nathan Wyeth, wso came with her daughter, Mrs. Herbert Stratford, wore a flaring green satin wrap, fingertip length, over a black lace frock. Those in the audience interested in seeing Susan Ertz soon discovered her in Mr. and Mrs. Edward B. Wilbert's party. Attired in a trim black evening gown, Miss Ertz looked quite the part of a distinguished novelist, with her hair parted in the middle and drawn back softly from her face. Arriving with her were her brother, Coleridge Ertz, and his wife, whose frock of Madonna blue was set off wit ha wide gold girdle and a clip at the throat to match.

Mrs. Wilber, in a white satin gown with a white velvet cape, was one of the most attractive women in the audience. Incidentally, following the play she entertained a number of friends at supper in honor of Miss Ertz. Among those in the Wilber party were Mr. and Mrs. Fred Britten, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Owsley, Mr. and Mrs. Merle Thorpe, Mrs. Allen Lindsay, of Leesburg, Va.; Mr. and Mrs. Blakiston Wilkins and Mrs. Richard Cowell.

Also in the audience were the Minister of Albania, Faik Konitza; Mrs. Kurt Hetzel, Mrs. Louis Caldwell, in a black satin frock and black velvet coat topped by a silver fox neckpiece; Capt. John D. Reybold, Major Horace Smith, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Daniels, Miss Mary Cootes in a gray crepe gown beneath a caracul wrap; Miss Laura Tuckerman, in a black velvet evening coat with a coral scarf; Cyrus Hill, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Daniels.

Greek Minister Missing; Going Tonight

It would have been most fitting, of course, if the Greek Minister, Demetrios Sicilianos, had been on hand to see the success of the Greek play that has been a hit in 38 interpretations. But he had other plans for last evening, and perhaps it was better he had not planned to go to the theater. His cocktail party yesterday afternoon was such a delightful affair that guests going on to the play barely tore themselves away in time to get there, while others lingered on at the legation. He will go to the theater tonight.

There were a number of factors contributing toward the success of the Minister's party. He is one of the most popular hosts in the Capital, and his guest of honor, Signora Rosso also has an extensive circle of friends here. From the time she arrived yesterday, she was completely surrounded by guests who either knew her or wanted to meet her.

In a black ensemble with gold accents and a small black hat pushed back on her head, revealing her dark hair, she was one of the most attractive women at the party, as she renewed old acquaintances and made new ones. But she was not the only center of attention. The event, you see, was in the nature of a "house-warming" since it is the first party of its kind the Minister has given in his new home on Massachusetts avenue. Displayed for the first time in this setting was the Minister's prized El Greco painting ofSt. Francis, and virtually every guest stopped to admire it before going on into the spacious walnut-paneled dining room, where a long table in the center was spread with choice American and Greek dainties and where drinks to deliht any taste were served at another table nearby.

Party One of Many for Signora Rosso

Among those glimpsed in the gathering were Mrs. George Barnett, who reported renovations at Wakefield Manor were going along nicely, but who didn't divulge even by inference whether the Duke and Duchess of Windsor would visit there on their American trip; the Ambassador of Cuba, Dr. Pedro Martinez Fraga; the Austrian Minister and Mme. Prochnik, the latter wearing a black ensemble and a small hat wiht a wisp of a veil; the Minister of Switzerland and Mme. Peter, who spent most of the summer away from Washington and were busy greeting friends on all sides; the Commercial Secretary of the British Embassy and Mrs. Heywood, who wore a black semitailored suit with a blue vestee; the Minister of Denmark, Otto Wadsted; Mrs. Sims Snow, and the Counselor of the Argentine Embassy, Hector Ghiraldo, who is as much interested in art as the Greek Minister himself.

Also, the Second Secretary of the Belgian Embassy, Gerard Walravens; Mrs. William T. Mann, Mr. and Mrs. John Caswell, the latter in a black ensemble set off with a silver fox neckpiece, and several others.

Yesterday's party was one of a number being given in honor of Signora Rosso, whose visit to Washington is all too short. Mme. Prochnik will entertain at a luncheon for her today; she will be a dinner and theater guest of the Italian Ambassador and Signora de Suvich this evening and several other parties are on her calendar before she leaves the end of this week.

Her host yesterday, the Greek Minister, will leave for Pittsburgh tomorrow and later will go to Chicago to speak at the ceremonies celebrating the fortieth anniversaary of the American-Greek community in that city. When there's an opportunity to help improve American-Greek relationships you can count on the Greek Minister to be there.

Underwood & Underwood.

Signora Augusto Rosso, wife of the Italian Ambassador to the Soviet Union, who yesterday afternoon was guest of honor at the first party given by the Greek Minister, Demetrios Sicilianos, in the new Greek Legation, 2221 Massachusetts avenue.

About the Town

With Dudley Harmon

WASHINGTON SOCIETY is deeply shocked and grieved at the probable fate of one of its best-loved members, Mrs. Campbell Prichett. There is scarcely a person in official, diplomatic or prominent residential Washington who was not at least slightly acquainted with Natalie, whose chief interest in life was other people. Columns have been written in the newspapers about her charm, beauty and chic, but her many friends here loved most her kindness, gayety of spirit and unfailing generosity.

• • • •

MRS. EDWARD BEALE McLEAN entertained at a luncheon yesterday for Princess Brinda, of Kapurthala, who is leaving this morning to return to New York after a short stay in the Capital.

One of the first of the Indian princesses to abandon the traditional veils and other sartorial features of their country, Princess Brinda wears smart European clothes. She takes a prominent part in international society and spends every season in London. This was her first visit to Washington.

Her father-in-law, the Maharajah of Kapurthala, entertained Mrs. James Roosevelt, mother of the President, on her recent trip abroad.

• • • •

TUESDAY, OCTOBER 26, is the date set for the annual Junior League luncheon, which this year will take place at the Shoreham Hotel. District Health Officer Dr. George Ruhland will address the members. He will have to be on his toes to surpass the talk given at the opening luncheon last year by Mrs. Harper Sibley, wife of the former president of the United States Chamber of Commerce.

• • • •

MEMBERS OF THE BELGIAN army team here for the International Inter-American Horse Show were introduced to the Washington 5-to-7 routine yesterday at a small cocktail party given for them by members of our Army team. The affair was at the Army and Navy Club.

Her husband being under the mistaken impression women weren't allowed at the club, Mme. Poswick, wife of Lieut. Ferdinand Poswick, of the Regiment de Lanciers, was told to remain at home yesterday. However, Washington society will have the opportunity of meeting her at the several functions scheduled for the team during their stay here.

Besides Lieut. Poswick, the members of the team are Capitaine Commandant Chevalier Henri de Menten de Horne, Lieut. Paul Mondron, the only bachelor in the group, and Lieut. Ives van Strydonck.

Displaying a little notebook filled with engagements, the captain of the Belgian team said yesterday that what struck him most in America was our hospitality. They all like Washington because its monuments and parks remind them of Europe, but are looking forward to New York, which is "tout a fait speciale." They will go to New York to take part in the National Horse Show at Madison Square Garden.

Tip to Washington hostesses: The members of the Belgian team all seem to prefer highballs to cocktails—at least that's what they chose yesterday.

• • • •

TODAY, COMMISSIONER Melvin C. Hazen, president of the Inter-American Horse Show Association, and Commissioners George E. Allen and Dan I. Sultan will entertain at a men's luncheon at the 1925 F Street Club in honor of the two teams.

High-ranking military officials will be among the guests, as well as officers and members of the executive committee of the horse show—Admiral Cary T. Grayson, Maj. Gen. Leon B. Kromer, chief of cavalry; Maj. Henry Leonard, U. S. M. C., Thomas P. Morgan, Maj. Frank L. Whittaker, Fenton M. Fadeley, jr., H. Rozier Dulaney, jr., C. Marshall Finnan, Col. Jonathan M. Wainwright, commanding officer at Fort Myer; Maj. Horace B. Smith and Robert Cottrell. The directors of the show also will attend.

• • • •

Judge and Mrs. Thomas McAllister have leased the home of Mrs. Fitzhugh Talman at 3 Prince street in Alexandria, and will move in Saturday. They have been occupying the home of the Misses Howry in Georgetown. Mrs. McAllister is the recently appointed director of the women's division of the Democratic National Committee.

NOTES OF SOCIETY

Official and Residential.

The Turkish Ambassador, Mehmet Munir Ertegun, has issued invitations to a reception on Friday, October 29, from 5 to 7 at the embassy in celebration of the anniversary of the proclamation of the Turkish Republic. Mme. Ertegun will not be here, as she is still abroad.

Emergency Units' Charity Ball Set for Oct. 26 at Mayflower

Dance Is Considered Citizens' Committees' Most Ambitious Social Function of Year; Admiral and Mrs. Cary Grayson Among Patrons.

By Helen von Ebbighausen.

While the first strains of the prelude to the winter social season are still audible, new events are being added to the score. Yesterday, Miss Ruth Evelyn Madden, assistant to the honorary general chairman, Melvin C. Hazen, announced the date for the charity ball to be given at the Mayflower on October 26 by the citizens' emergency committee.

Although the committee's charitable activities are widespread, the ball is considered its most ambitious social function of the year. New names just added to the list of patrons are those of Admiral and Mrs. Cary T. Grayson, Mrs. Edward Beale McLean, Mrs. Eleanor Patterson and President H. C. Byrd of Maryland University.

The Secretary of State, Cordell Hull, is honorary chairman of the patrons, who also include Mrs. Harvey Wiley, Mrs. James Doran, Senora de Pastoriza, Maj. Ernest W. Brown, Mrs. Lester Buchanon and Mr. and Mrs. Jennings Randolph.

The Capital's younger set is giving its support under the chairmanship of John A. Sobotka, jr. On his committee are Miss Catherine Friant, Miss Ruth Quinn, Miss Mary Agnes Young, Miss Jean Gilbert, Miss Alice Clarke and Charles Koester. Incidentally, last night a group of 30 debutantes assisted at the benefit boxing matches at a local arena.

Sylvan King, chairman of the entertainment committee, has not as yet released the program for the evening which will be presided over by Brook Johns.

Admiral Grayson is acting as chairman of the floor committee and assisting him are Henry Nestor, Frank Mahoney, William McGuire and Patrick Cooney. On the advisory committee are Col. E. Goring Bliss, Edward F. Colladay, Ford E. Young, Theodore Grape, Thomas E. Lodge and Miss Irene E. Madden.

Embassy to Fete Mme. Duperrey

Wife of Visiting International President of Rotary to Be Honored Today.

A luncheon will be given today at the French Embassy in honor of Mme. Maurice Duperrey, wife of Maurice Duperrey, of Paris, president of Rotary International. Mme. Duperrey is to arrive in Washington at 8 o'clock this morning, and during her stay will be with Mr. and Mrs. George W. Harris at their home, 3107 Woodland drive. Guests at the luncheon will be officers of the Rotary Club and their wives.

There will be several other entertainments in Mme. Duperrey's honor. Tomorrow at 12:30 a luncheon will be held at the Congressional Country Club, and the guests will include members of the Washington Rotary Club and their wives. On Thursday afternoon from 5 until 7 a reception will be held at the home of Robert B. Swope, president of the Washington Rotary Club, in honor of Mme. Duperrey. Several members of the Diplomatic Corps will be present.

• • • •

Among those here to attend the dedication of the Federal Reserve Building are Gov. and Mrs. George J. Schaller, of Chicago; Gov. and Mrs. M. J. Fleming, of Cleveland, Ohio; Gov. and Mrs. William A. Day, of San Francisco, and Gov. William Martin, of St. Louis, Mo. All are staying at the Carlton.

Lie Back and Grow Beautiful in an Ardena Bath

or in an exhilarating bubbling Foam Bath. No need to grit your teeth in the search for loveliness! There's not the smallest excuse for adopting violent and exhausting measures . . . Lie back in the supreme comfort of an Ardena Bath. It will melt the pounds away. Or enjoy the sensation of the Foam Bath with a constant but gentle bombardment of tiny air bubbles against the body. Next, give yourself up to a course of gentle yet stimulating massage, which rouses your circulation and tones your system. You look younger—you feel calmer and more self-confident. You are back again on the Royal Road to Beauty.

Club Gives Floral Show In Miniature

Small Flowers Arranged by Takoma Park Women's Unit.

By Jessie Ash Arndt.
The Post Club Editor.

A miniature flower show was a feature of the closing meeting of the garden section of the Takoma Park Woman's Club yesterday afternoon. Mrs. J. N. Quinn, chairman of the section, was hostess to the members at luncheon at her home, 307 Elm avenue, and after the business meeting and an exchange of experiences, "failures and successes in the garden," they went to Mrs. Katherine M. Reed's studio for the flower show.

The show was in miniature arrangements. There were little flowers — sweetheart roses, tiny button chrysanthemums, baby breath ageratum and autumn berries, from which those who desired to compete in flower arrangement might choose their materials. These were on a long table with miniature vases of all colors and shapes from which they also could choose.

Many of the members competed, including Mrs. C. B. Smith, who was also one of the judges, but did not judge the class in which she herself received two of the prizes. Mrs. Henry E. Ewing, who took prizes last season in the rose show, was the judge in the "medium" class, in which Mrs. Smith took both first and second prizes, and Mrs. F. A. Johnston, third.

The classes were for tall, medium and tiny containers. The tallest was small, as ordinary vases go, but towered above the smallest. In the "tall" class Mrs. W. C. DeGroot won first and third and Mrs. E. J. Hurdle second, and in the "tiny" class Mrs. Johnston won first, Mrs. C. L. Snyder second and Mrs. J. L. McCartney third. The prizes, given by the hostess, were the vases in which the winners had made their prize-winning arrangements.

A display of antique and new European vases was another feature of interest at Mrs. Reed's studio.

Mrs. Walter P. Harman, club president, was a guest at the meeting, which closes the section's activities until March. Seeds for spring planting were exchanged and the question when members next meet will be "Mary, Mary, How Does Your Garden Grow?"

Bar Will Honor Johnsons at Outing, Dance

The Assistant Secretary of War and Mrs. Louis Johnson will be guests of honor of the Federal Bar Association at its annual fall outing and dinner-dance, which will be held at the Congressional Country Club tonight.

Horace G. Russell, general counsel of the Home Loan Bank Board and president of the association, with Mrs. Russell, will receive members of the association and their guests at 7 o'clock, immediately preceding the dinner, assisted by other officers, including Robert H. Jackson, Assistant Attorney General; William N. Morrell, member of the Board of Veterans' Appeals; Peyton R. Evans, general counsel, Farm Credit Administration; William E. Reese, General Accounting Office; David S. Davison, Civil Service Commission; Harold E. Jacobson, Reconstruction Finance Corporation, and Heber H. Rice, War Department, and their wives.

Following the dinner a brief, informal talk will be made by Mr. Johnson, himself a lawyer, member of the West Virginia bar and former national commander of the American Legion. The remainder of the evening will be given over to dancing.

During the early afternoon golf and tennis tournaments among members will be arranged by Thomas G. Shearman.

More than 200 Government attorneys, their wives and friends are expected to attend.

Women to Mark Mooseheart Day

Mrs. Robert Baldwin, senior regent of the local chapter of the Women of the Moose, has announced the chapter, in conjunction with the lodge, has completed plans for a celebration the evening of October 24, at Moose Hall, 1414 I street northwest, in honor of Mooseheart Day.

It also will celebrate the birthday October 27 of its founder, Senator James J. Davis, of Pennsylvania. Senator Davis, who served as Secretary of Labor under three Presidents, is also director general of the Loyal Order of Moose and pilgrim governor of the Women of the Moose.

The Mooseheart Day program is in charge of the alumni committee, of which Mrs. George B. Clark is chairman, assisted by Mrs. Emil Rada, chairman of the Mooseheart committee of the chapter. The joint committee has developed a program designed to interest outsiders invited to the meeting and those already familiar with this "City of Childhood."

The program will be a biographical sketch of Senator Davis.

Tomorrow the women of the Annapolis Marching Club will give a dinner for the officers and committee chairmen of Columbia Lodge at 6 p. m. at Moose Hall.

The social service committee of the chapter will sponsor a spaghetti dinner Wednesday from 5:30 to 7 p. m. for the benefit of its Thanksgiving basket fund. This also will be at Moose Hall.

Almas Temple Club Will Stage Benefit

Almas Temple Club will sponsor its annual Halloween party Saturday evening, October 30, at Almas Temple Clubhouse, 1315 K street northwest for the benefit of the children's Christmas party fund. It is planned by the women's committee, under the direction of Mrs. Marcus Daniels, wife of the illustrious potentate. Added attractions will be cards and entertainment features.

Prizes will be awarded wearers of the most attractive, the most original and the most comical costumes; also to winners at cards.

The committee chairmen are as follows: Decorations, Mrs. Dwight Bromwell; tickets, Mrs. Frederick Wilken; cards, Mrs. Needham C. Turnage; checking, Mrs. John Q. Slye; hostess for the dance, Mrs. Henry F. Kunkel; prizes for costumes, Mrs. Ludwig Manoly; punch bowl, Mrs. Herbert MacNamee; publicity, Mrs. Roscoe L. Oatley.

Others serving on the committee are Mrs. Granville Gude, Mrs. Frank E. Ghiselli, Mrs. Frank Hines, Mrs. Henry W. Jaeger, Mrs. John B. Cullins, Mrs. Frank L. Ach, Mrs. Jesse E. Porter, Mrs. John R. Jenkins, Mrs. Earle C. Walker, Mrs. W. C. Fitzgibbon, Mrs. L. C. Towson, Mrs. Frank A. Varney, Mrs. Frank T. Barnard and Mrs. William J. B. Orr.

"Madame Chairman" . . .

By Suzanne.

THE "DO'S" AND "DONT'S" of newspaper writing were explained to publicity chairmen and regents of 60 chapters of the Daughters of the American Revolution in the District last night by Mrs. Sterling Bockoven, state publicity chairman, in the first committee meeting of the season, at the Willard Hotel. Following the session, which included informal discussion of handling publicity, members of the group were invited to make a tour of The Washington Post.

They were taken to the women's department, the art department, editorial and city rooms, sports department and composing room, where they saw this morning's Post in the making.

State officers who attended last night's meeting included Mrs. Charles Carroll Haig, state regent; Mrs. Catherine B. Strong, recording secretary; Mrs. Earl Brentwood Fuller, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Elmer Curry, registrar, and Mrs. Samuel B. Woodbridge, librarian.

THE BOARD OF DIRECTORS of the Zonta Club last night had a dinner party before their regular monthly business meeting. Mrs. Ann Harding, corresponding secretary, entertained them at the Columbia Country Club, and they talked club work afterward. The semiannual business session of the membership is at the Kennedy-Warren tomorrow night. Those in the dinner group last night were Winifred Burwell, president; Ruth Shelton, recording secretary; Marion Hines Taylor, treasurer; Anna Muddiman, Elizabeth Beresford, Elizabeth Cox, Alice Terrell, Frances Marshall, Louise Stambaugh, Frances Hill, Melinda Havey, Mabel Strider and Amelia Gude Thomas.

Two members of Jacob Jones Post, American Legion (which, by the way, is having initiation ceremonies at the Washington Club Saturday night), are officers in the National Yeomen F, an organization composed of Yeomen F who served during the World War. Unlike the American Legion, it is entirely a "no man's land." It has the reputation, too, of being run with all the efficiency of Uncle Sam's Navy. Charlotte Berry, of Jacob Jones Post, is vice commander of the Yeomen F, and Esther Beckett, a past commander of Jacob Jones, is colorbearer.

Past Commander Helen O'Neill of Jacob Jones is also a past commander of the Yeoman F, and a number of other names of members of the Legion post appear on the charter, which was signed by President Roosevelt last year.

The organization is engaged in building a memorial at Oliphant, Pa., to Loretta Walsh Bowman, the first woman to enlist.

The alumnae chapter of Theta Sigma Phi, journalistic fraternity, has elected Mary McAnany as president-secretary, succeeding Mrs. Don Young. The group has its monthly meetings at the A. A. U. W. One of its active members is Ruth Barnard (Powell), publicity director for the Shoreham Hotel.

Among others are Zelda Branch, Jean James, Catherine Redmond, Laura Koop, Flora Orr, Mrs. O. B. Williams, Mrs. Neota Silvers Hall and Mrs. Edith Lapisch.

Woman's Leader Entertains Many Important Guests

Mrs. Roberta Campbell Lawson president of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, has several distinguished visitors as her guests over the week-end at federation headquarters, 1736 N street northwest, where she makes her home.

Late in the week her brother, Herbert L. Campbell, president of the First National Bank of Coffeyville, Kans., and Mrs. Campbell spent a day with her. She now has as a house guest Judge Grace Elmore Gibson, of Tulsa, Okla., and on October 24 she will entertain at dinner to honor Mrs. Minna Blackertz, of Dusseldorf, Germany, and four other prominent German women who are touring important cities in the United States. Mrs. Blackertz is president of the Rheinischer Frauenklub of Dusseldorf. This club was hostess to representatives of the general federation who were members of the First World Friendship Tour in the summer of 1932.

Judge Gibson, who will share honors at the dinner, is one of the leading lawyers of Tulsa and a gifted lecturer on current topics. Speaking at the University of Maryland October 21, Judge Gibson will discuss "What Patriotism Means to Me." On October 25 she will address the District of Columbia Federation of Women's Clubs at its monthly meeting at the Roosevelt Hotel. Her subject will be "Woman's Part in the Game of War." She will be introduced by Mrs. Lawson. Following this meeting, Mrs. Lawson and Judge Gibson will be guests of honor at a luncheon at the National Woman's Democratic Club.

2 Card Parties Entertain 500

Two card parties were given yesterday afternoon, one by the Order of the Eastern Star at the Willard Hotel, for benefit of the Masonic and Eastern Star Home, and the other by the League of Republican Women at the Wardman Park Hotel.

The party given by the Republican League first of the season, was under chairmanship of Miss Edna Patton, with tables for nearly 200 players. Mme. Cantacuzene, president of the league, who had been at a meeting at Republican headquarters, stopped in for a few minutes in the late afternoon, wearing a beige gown and coat to match with a hat of black velvet.

A few of the many guests were: Mrs. Frank Mondell, first vice-president; Mrs. William Fitch Kelley, past president of the league, Mrs. Edward E. Gann, Mrs. Ralph Church, wife of Representative Church, of Illinois; Mrs. Galen Tait, Mrs. Maurice Thatcher, Mrs. Louis Southgate, Mrs. Frisby Elker, Miss Daisy Prentiss, Mrs. G. Louis Weller, Mrs. Edward L. Dyer, Mrs. George Snyder, Mrs. William S. Culbertson, Mrs. William Morton Grinnell, Mrs. Russell B. Harrison, Mrs. Warren J. Haines and Mrs. Edward A. Keys.

The candy table was in charge of Mrs. James Barnes, assisted by Mrs. J. H. Branson, and Mrs. Henry Albers was at the cake table with Mrs. Mary Logan Tucker assisting.

Eighty-five tables were arranged in the ballroom of the Willard for the Eastern Star party, of which Mrs. Nora R. Riley was general chairman. Mrs. Lelia Cook, president of the infirmary of the home; Mrs. Julia Streater, president of the home; Mrs. Elizabeth Rhine, worthy grand matron; Dr. Victor Rench, worthy grand patron, and Mrs. Helen D. Robbins, associate grand conductress, were among guests.

Children from the home assisted at the candy table, of which Miss Hannah Munroe was chairman. Mrs. Edith Busby was in charge of the cake, with Mrs. Anna Bailey as vice chairman. Mrs. Paul Cromelin, wife of the grand master of the Masonic lodges of the District, was chairman of reservations; Miss Asa Burdine, of patronesses, and Miss Mildred Hicks, of publicity.

Club Women Entertain 2 From Europe

Geneva Educator Hails Library Facilities for U. S. Children.

American libraries offer far more to the boys and girls who patronize them do the libraries of Europe, in the opinion of Mlle. Blance Weber, children's librarian of the Children's Literature Service in the Research Section of the International Bureau of Education at Geneva, who is in Washington for a few days. She and another distinguished foreign visitor, Mlle. Gladys Alberga, of the League of Red Cross Societies in Paris, were guests yesterday afternoon at the Monday tea of the A. A. U. W. at the clubhouse. Tomorrow night Mlle. Weber will address the club on "Children's Literature as an Influence for Peace."

She came to this country last summer to address the national convention of the American Library Association, and has remained to study the library system here. From New York she came to the Capital to observe the operation of the Congressional Library and others in the District.

All of the libraries of Europe are patterned after those in this country, she says, but the use of them here is much more general than abroad. There is still the feeling of restriction to certain classes in the patronage of libraries in Europe, even though the institutions are open to the general public. Mlle. Weber is much interested in the publicity used here to acquaint the public with the library services, something almost unheard of abroad.

Many of the European libraries still have the books in closed shelves from which the librarian brings the volume to the patron after he has chosen it from a printed list, she says. She has also observed that children of this country have books giving much more accurate and comprehensive knowledge of the customs of those of other nations than have the children of Europe. She attributes this to the fact we have so many nationalities represented here.

Mlle. Weber is the guest during her stay in Washington of Miss Isabelle DuBois.

Miss Alberga is in the United States making an exchange study of Red Cross activities. She has been here several days and left directly after the tea yesterday with Miss Ruth E. Henderson for Indianapolis, Chicago, Detroit and Toronto. She will return here before sailing for France.

Women's City Club Group Attends Tea

Mrs. Harvey W. Wiley, president of the Women's City Club; Mrs. Gus A. Schuldt, Mrs. Julia Hopkins and Miss Dorothy Dorian poured tea yesterday afternoon at the opening session of the new Spanish Conversation Group. Meetings will be held each Monday afternoon during the winter from 5 to 7 at the clubhouse, under the leadership of Mrs. Ruth Martinez.

The same club members also will be hostesses on Thursday afternoon of this week, when Mrs. Embert Le Lacheur begins her discussion of short-story writing with another group.

Another group will meet on Friday afternoon for the first discussion, with Mrs. Sylvia Ziskind, of personality development and public speaking. Tea will follow this meeting also.

SCOTT BEATS DEAN; GEVINSON DECISIONS LONDON

The Washington Post Sports

* WASHINGTON: TUESDAY, OCTOBER 19, 1937 19

Plenty of Action as Local Ring Favorites Fought for Lunch Charity

Gevinson's Stock Soars on Fistic Mart as He Punches Out Victory Over Foe; 'Grudge Fight' Sees Cowboy Scott a Unanimous Victor.

By Shirley Povich.

Twelve thousand charitably-inclined fight fans of Washington sat through a steady drizzle at Griffith Stadium last night and provided a $15,000 meal ticket for hungry school kids of the city while the Free Lunch fight card produced the following winners:

Lou Gevinson,
Cowboy Scott,
George Abrams, and

The underprivileged among Washington's 10,000 kiddies who now will lunch off the bounty of the prize fight customers.

Gevinson's stock on the fistic mart soared as he out-punched the wily veteran Danny London, of New York, to win a majority decision at the end of ten busy rounds in which the ever-present threat of Gevinson's left hand slowed London.

Judge Bob Eller voted a draw decision but the votes of Referee Eddie LaFond and Judge O. U. Singer were emphatic in their selection of Gevinson as the winner. The Post's scoresheet showed Gevinson with a margin of six rounds, London ahead in three, and one—the last—even.

Showing more ambition than in any previous performance here, Gevinson rocked the heavily-bearded London with a jolting left to the head at the outset of the battle and won both the first and second rounds. Referee LaFond dismissed London's claim of foul when Gevinson sank a left dangerously near the border line in the second round.

Gevinson in Trouble.

London was at his best in the fourth and sixth — in the fourth when he swarmed over Gevinson with a flurry of rights and in the sixth when the New Yorker actually wound up and sent a thudding right into Gevinson's stomach that caused the local lad to hang on.

Gevinson's greatest margin was piled up in the eighth when he unleashed his famous left and caught London flush on the whiskers with a numbing punch. The New Yorker rallied but was willing to hang on during the remainder of the round.

One knockdown marked the battling when Gevinson sent London to the floor for no count in the sixth round. A Gevinson left caught the New Yorker high on the head and tipped him over. London bounced up immediately as Gevinson extended a helping hand.

The heavy concentration of battling during the evening was produced in the Cowboy Scott-Irish Johnny Dean ten-rounder that preceded the main event. As advertised, it was a "grudge" fight between the Ninth street neighbors who fight as lightweights.

The "grudge" theme was strangely missing as Dean, a wild swinger, carved out a lead by wining the first three rounds, but the boys worked themselves up to the grudge. As the calm-mannered Scott hacked away at Dean's lead, the wild Irish rose in Dean and he resorted to everything but a drop kick in an attempt to win the fight.

Repeatedly, the wild-swinging Irishman was warned for butting, hitting on the breaks and backhanding Scott. In the seventh round, Dean reached over Referee LaFond's shoulder at the bell instead of retreating to his corner and it was a three-man fight as Scott willingly fought back and LaFond grappled with Dean. Fouling cost Dean several rounds and the decision in favor of Scott was unanimous.

Scott was fighting with a fine contempt for Dean's wild rushes in the later rounds and won every session after the third, standing Dean off with a left and pummeling him continually with a right. Ired by Dean's fake gesture at peace-making in the seventh when Irish Johnny extended his hands as if to shake and then attempted to clout Scott with a right, Scott waded in and rocked Dean with a furious exchange.

In great disgust and with a gesture that indicated as much, Dean heard the decision in favor of Scott.

George Abrams, Washington 150-pounder, carried too many heavy guns for Joey Spangler in the first 6-round preliminary and won a unanimous decision. It was slam-

The turnstiles registered 10,373 paying customers among the estimated crowd of 12,000 who saw the free lunch fight card at Griffith Stadium last night.

The gate receipts last night totaled $11,607, but money from the sale of tickets by policemen and firemen, which has not as yet been tabulated, is expected to boost the gross gate to nearly $15,000.

Ranks of Undefeated Teams Broken.

By Shirley Povich.

Three Saturdays have taken their toll and only 13 teams among the Nation's major colleges can show, even at this comparatively early date, a record that is unmarked by either a defeat or a tie. The East owns four of those unblemished records, the Midwest boasts three, as does the South. Two teams qualify for the honor in the Far West and one in the Southwest.

POVICH.

It was a weekend of woe that the unbeaten and untied encountered last Saturday. The list of 26 who carried pure records into battle was exactly halved when the final whistle sounded. Seven in the East dropped from unbeaten and untied ranks—Navy, Pitt, Fordham, Army, Cornell and Catholic U. In the South, Georgia Tech and Georgia were checked off. Nebraska was tied in the Midwest and Texas A. and M. fell in the Southwest.

• • • •

Emerging still triumphant from last Saturday's engagement were Yale, Dartmouth, Holy Cross and Syracuse in the East; Wisconsin, Northwestern and Detroit U. in the Midwest; Alabama, Louisiana State and Vanderbilt in the South; California and Santa Clara on the Coast, and Baylor in the Southwest.

• • • •

But only 5 teams in that list of 13 may be among the survivors by Saturday night. Syracuse, Holy Cross, Alabama, Detroit and Santa Clara are the only teams reasonably certain of winning their Saturday games. One of the South's three unbeaten, untied teams is certain to fail what with Louisiana State and Vanderbilt scheduled to take the field together. And a tie would eradicate both those colleges from the list.

• • • •

In the East, the unbeaten, untied brigade, with the exception of Syracuse and Holy Cross, faces opponents who may conceivably knock 'em off. Yale will go into battle against a Cornell team that, though beaten, is still dangerous. Dartmouth will risk its record against a Harvard team that held Navy to a scoreless tie and may be the betting favorite. Syracuse, meeting Maryland, and Holy Cross, playing Western Maryland, should still own their proud records by nightfall Saturday.

• • • •

Detroit's team does not figure to be annoyed to much extent by Boston College, but the Midwest's other pair with pure records—Wisconsin and Northwestern—are heading for trouble. Wisconsin, despite its record thus far, will probably go into the battle against Pittsburgh as the under dog and Northwestern will consider itself lucky to win from Ohio State by any kind of a score.

• • • •

If, perchance, Louisiana State and Vanderbilt play to a tie on Saturday, then Alabama figures to emerge from the day's proceedings as the South's only team with an unblemished record. Despite all the determination and good intentions of George Washington University, the Colonials hardly appear to be the team that can knock off Alabama.

In the Midwest, California will

Troops Balk Narragansett Racing Card

No Break Occurs in Row Between Governor and O'Hara.

By the Associated Press.

Providence, R. I., Oct. 18.—National Guardsmen armed with machine guns and rifles blocked opening of the Narragansett race track's fall meeting today in the controversy between Rhode Island's Governor and the track director, but the racing association posted entries for a scheduled meet tomorrow.

Citizen-soldiers armed with machine guns, tear-gas, and rifles guarded all entrances to the $2,000,000 racing plant, turning back all persons except those possessing passes countersigned by their commanding officers.

"Today's races have been canceled because of martial law," announced Patrick Horgan, the track's secretary. "Entries are being accepted for tomorrow."

Track officials declined to say, however, whether they would continue daily their efforts to open the meeting in the face of Gov. Robert E. Quinn's stand against allowing the races to go on.

Quinn clamped down martial law on the track with the declaration that "a state of insurrection" existed there, after a long and bitter series of disputes with Walter E. O'Hara, managing director of the racing plant.

There was little activity inside the big oval today. From the tall flagstaffs atop the grandstand fluttered the Stars and Stripes and the track banners. But the staffs from which ordinarily fly the flags of the State of Rhode Island were bare.

Unsheathed machine guns were placed about the track, and guardsmen with fixed bayonets paced up and down the long ramps. One machine gun stood at the main track entrance, another at the entrance to the long stables.

Adjt. Gen. Herbert R. Dean, of Rhode Island, commanding guardsmen at the track, ordered representatives of the Providence Star Tribune excluded from the area under martial law, during a press conference, claiming the newspaper had published statements designed "to break down the high morale of the National Guard."

One reporter from the newspaper, Leo Kenneally, was escorted from the grounds by two National Guardsmen.

The action drew from Eugene J. Moriarty, managing editor of the Star Tribune, a statement that "we quoted an exact conversation that took place between Judge Raymond J. McMahon, counsel for the racing association, and Col. Earl Webster, commander of the National Guard at the track. . . . The same conversation was published in other newspapers and was carried by wire services. The fact that representatives of the other organizations were not ejected from the track is significant."

Baer, Farr Fight Sought in London

New York, Oct. 18 (AP).—Brig. Gen. A. C. Critchley, London fight promoter, arrived here today with the proposal that Mike Jacobs stage a fight in London between Max Baer and Tommy Farr, but the idea fell on deaf ears, largely because the Englishman asked for $25,000 for the rent of one of his stadiums.

Critchley would have Jacobs go to England and stage the fight at either White City or Harringay.

Smith, Cooper Win Oklahoma City Tourney

Oklahoma City, Oct. 18.—Horton Smith and Harry Cooper, Chicago, won the first annual Oklahoma City $5,000 four-ball golf tournament today by defeating Ralph Guldahl, national open champion from Chicago, and Billy Burke, White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., 3-up. Hhey posted a final score of plus 12.

Only a point ahead of the crack field at the start of the final round, Smith and Cooper fired a low ball 66, five under par, to defeat the Guldahl-Burke combination and win the $1,200 in first prize money.

Johnny Revolta, Chicago and Ray Mangrum, Dayton, Ohio, who have been right on the heels of the favorites since the second day, added only one point to their score by beating Tommy Armour, Chicago, and Jimmy Thomson, Shawnee-on-the-Delaware, 1-up, and finished second with plus 9. Second place paid $900.

Ed Dudley, Philadelphia, and Jimmy Hines, New York, defeated Ky Laffoon and Dick Metz, Chicago, 3-up, in a match that decided third place.

The victory gave Dudley and Hines a plus 3 and left Laffoon and Metz with plus 1 and fifth place.

Zell Eaton and Francis Scheider, Oklahoma City, came through in a flying finish to win their second victory of the meet. They defeated Lawson Little, former British and American amateur champion from Chicago, and Paul Runyan, of New York, 3-up.

That gave Little and Runyan a final score of plus 2, for fourth-place money. Eaton and Scheider finished seventh with minus 8.

Guldahl and Burke wound up in sixth place with minus 5, while Armour and Thomson finished in the cellar, 14 points in the red.

The victory for the favorites today was their fifth of the tournament.

In their march to the title they to Little-Runyan yesterday in the fifth round and were beaten, 1 up, by Revolta-Mangrum in the second match of the meet.

It was blond Jimmy Thomson, mightiest swatter in the game, who put the Cooper-Smith combination over the hump.

Through the fifteenth green the Chicagoans were only 2 points to the good. Playing just ahead of Revolta and Mangrum, Smith and Cooper got a half on the par 5 sixteenth in their match with Guldahl-Burke.

As Revolta and Mangrum teed off across a lake, they needed a win at the 510-yard sixteenth to pull up even with Smith and Cooper.

But in two long shots Thomson plunked his ball in the center of the sixteenth green, took a birdie 4, to win the hole for him and Armour and kept the Revolta-Mangrum combination from creeping up on the winners.

HORTON SMITH.

downed Eaton-Scheider, 3 up; Dudley-Hines, 2 up; Armour-Thomson, 3 up; Laffoon-Metz, 2 up, and Guldahl-Burke, 3 up. They lost 2 points

Canadian Heavyweight Champion K. O.'s Stahl

London, Oct. 18 (AP).—Al Delancy, Canadian heavyweight, gained a technical knockout victory over Harry Stahl, champion of Holland, in the seventh round of their bout at the National Sporting Club's stadium at Earl's Court tonight. It was Delaney's debut in England.

About 5,000 saw the fight. Delaney weighed 178¼ and Stahl, 198½.

Post Notes on HUNTING

By Bill Ackerman.

Maryland's short squirrel season which opened October 1 and closed October 15, was anything but lucrative when viewed from the standpoint of the hunter. That its abbreviation will benefit hunters next year there is no doubt, because this season many young squirrels that under past conditions would never have left the nest will reach maturity to replenish the supply for 1938. There is an abundant supply of mast to carry them through the winter.

ACKERMAN.

With all due regard for the hunter who likes his squirrel shooting, we would like to see the open season in Maryland pushed back a full month. There can be little doubt, from the findings of many conservation commissions, that such is the only logical way to increase the breeding stock. Those who imagine there might be ulterior motives in the later seasons of many States this year are building fanciful facts. In none is there any reason except conservation. There will always be the occasional conflict between the personal desires of the hunter and the fisherman and the judgment and duty of conservation officials, but if conservation be neglected at the critical point, why make the attempt to conserve our wildlife.

* * * *

A statement to the effect that squirrel stocks all over the East are at the critical point would bring little argument from any quarter. What we need now is for a few backward States to follow the lead of Pennsylvania and West Virginia and get their open seasons in line with the equitable ones now obtaining in these two.

Conditions in West Virginia have changed only slightly from the findings of the technicians, who during the summer growing period, after a thorough check through the nesting and hatching seasons, said that sportsmen might reasonably expect far better shooting this year when the season opens on October 25 for squirrels, ruffed grouse, turkey, bear and raccoon; on November 15 for quail and rabbits, and on November 29 and 30 for deer.

* * * *

Ruffed grouse shooting (pheasant) should be good in most sections. In some few localities, however, heavy rains during the nesting and hatching periods reduced the natural increase slightly, but not enough to prohibit the expectancy of a season better than that of last year.

Wild turkeys in some sections suffered losses for the same reason, but the range of this bird has so increased that the open territory this season will be greater than last, so hunters will find greater opportunity to bag a gobbler, and when you get him, don't forget to report the kill to the commission.

* * * *

West Virginia quail, although unquestionably improved over the poor season of 1936, will in no way be up to par. The young birds from the heavy spring stocking, made to replace the heavy winter losses of 1935, are of good flight and fair shooting size.

Deer are more numerous in the open areas than for the past several years, and the indications are for a reasonable bag of legal deer, while the rabbits still show some effect of the parasitic disease, that although corrected to some extent by an exceptionally heavy stocking this spring, will still be below normal.

* * * *

For hunters who have been going to nearby south Jersey for their woodcock shooting each fall, there is good news. The initial day's bags upheld the prediction made almost a month ago of a good flight and exceptional shooting.

Pertinent information for this section in addition to Federal regulations that allows hunting from 7 a. m. until sunset and through November 14 is the necessity for the special license to hunt woodcock. It is a State requirement and must be obtained in addition to the regular hunting license. It may be had from any game warden or from the Statehouse in Trenton.

Jersey's duck season opens on November 1, while the season on upland game, which is always an attraction to sportsmen from all over the East, opens on November 10. The State-wide stocking and propagation plans of the past two years promise real results to the hunters this season.

Hunters everywhere are being urged, if they are planning active participation in the game seasons which will soon open, to aid in reducing the hazards of men working on Civil Conservation Corps projects.

In some States hunters are merely requested to refrain from hunting in the vicinity of the Federal camps, while in others it is left to the discretion of the director to prevent "hunting within range of any work project and that, so far as may be appropriate and consistent with your power to act suggestively or by force of legal action."

The Asian partridge, or to more definitely identify it, the chukar, was introduced in the Pacific Coast States several years ago. Its immediate acceptance and liking for its new surroundings, with a careful plan of propagation went far in making this grand bird the great sport it is today.

During the past year many mid-Western States and one on the eastern seaboard have released these birds, which within a year or two should be ready to make their bow to nimrods. It is hoped that the plan will work as well as it did on the coast for it is really an excellent bird.

The chukar is a native of Nepal, in Central Asia. It is a hardy bird, slightly larger than the Hungarian partridge and only a little smaller than the ringneck pheasant.

Backers Get $3.70 Mutuel For Victory

Savage Beauty Closes Fast to Take Second; Busy Prince Wins.

By Walter Haight.
A Staff Correspondent.

Laurel, Md., Oct. 18.—Regal Lily, trained by Preston Burch, of Washington, circled this track today to bring a small revenue to an army of backers in the Crisfield Purse, a test of a mile and 70 yards for 3-year-olds, and in the featured position on the washday program running in the green and white stripes of Walter M. Jeffords, the sturdy Man O'War filly was guided by Jockey Harry Richards.

The favorite players were satisfied with a $3.70 mutuel and the time of 1:42 4-5 makes the winner a threat in the Maryland Handicap scheduled here next Saturday.

With a better start, Savage Beauty, owned by W. L. Brand, might have been a more prominent second. She was beaten a length and a half, but spotted her rival many lengths at the start. Regal Lily was in motion at the break in contrast to Savage Beauty which stood flat-footed. At that, Savage Beauty went to contention with a rush but Regal Lily went slightly wide at the final bend and carried Savage Beauty out with her. In the final drive, Regal Lily more than held her advantage over her rival.

The crowd of 8,000 numbered a chosen few who collected a $282.30 daily double.

The Shandon Farm's Bluefield proved a worthy favorite in the first race, and led from flag fall to finish while defeating Flying Wind, Hazelnut and five other 2-year-old fillies. Jockey W. D. Wright rode the winner, which brought a $5.70 mutuel.

In the first photo finish of the afternoon, Court Dance, in the colors of A. J. Joyner, surprised by downing Mrs. Walter M. Jeffrods' Creole Maid, considered one of the year's outstanding juvenile fillies. Creole Maid was in front most of the way, but Jockey Wright was in the driver's seat again and brought Court Dance up with a rush that the Jeffords star could not match. The winner paid $15.

The camera was called into action again in the third race, and Mattapony, a $78.70 shot, photographed best. Cosette was judged in second position, ahead of the Shandon Farm's My Elsie. The latter had little chance after getting away to a poor start. Mattapony, ridden by Joe Renick, wore down Cosette in the stretch. It was the second victory of the meeting for the Bruce-owned filly. She won over a muddy track at a 34-to-1 price tag in her first start here.

There was no need for the camera in the finish of the fourth race, but the stewards were consulted when Jockey Bobby Merritt claimed a foul against Jockey Wright. Merritt reported that Wright hit him with his whip in the stretch drive, but the stewards let the results stand and Wright was credited with his third winner of the card. The winning horse was Short Distance, which paid a $7 mutuel. Merritt's mount, Could Be, was second, and Blue Sheets was third.

Busy Prince, owned by the Motor City Stable, took today's seventh and final race at a $7.50 mutuel, scoring a head decision over Secret Vote. Sumac was third in the field of a dozen cheap routers.

W. Elliott's Light Chatter, at a $20 mutuel, drove to the wire a length ahead of Royal Blunder in the sixth race, a test of a mile and a sixteenth. Sir Windsor lost the place award in a photo finish. A field of nine competed.

Wirephoto: Men o' War at Narragansett as O'Hara and Quinn Battle

Marching with the palatial grandstand at Narragansett Park as a backdrop, National Guardsmen are shown in the upper left patrolling the battle sector of the Rhode Island racing plant. Their presence, at the order of Gov. Robert E. Quinn, caused postponement of Walter O'Hara's plan to reopen the track yesterday for the fall racing meet. Upper right, guardsmen set up a machine gun at the park.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—BLUEFIELD, $5.70, $3.30, $2.50; FLYING WILD, $4.20, $2.80; HAZEL NUT, $3.00.

BLUEFIELD, sent to the front at once, saved ground and was under urging drive at the finish. FLYING WILD, forward factor from the break, was hard ridden through the stretch. HAZEL NUT weakened after being closest to the pace for 3 furlongs.

SECOND RACE—Six furlongs. For 2-year-olds. Purse, $1,000. Start good from stall. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 2:07. Off at 2:12. Winner, A. J. Joyner's ch. f. Two-dollar mutuels paid—COURT DANCE, $15.00, $4.50, $2.90; CREOLE MAID, $2.80, $2.30; EVENING SHADOW, $2.70.

COURT DANCE, kept on the inside to the stretch, was steered out when put to stout pressure and wore down CREOLE MAID in the final sixteenth. CREOLE MAID was under steadying restraint to the turn, drew out gradually to midstretch, but weakened thereafter. EVENING SHADOW came up on the outside of the leaders in menacing fashion approaching the stretch, but tired suddenly.

THIRD RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,100. For 3-year-olds and upward; claiming. Start good from stall. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 2:41. Off at 2:43½. Winner, H. Bruce's b. f. Two-dollar mutuels paid—MATTAPONY, $78.70, $23.00, $8.60; COSETTE, $4.40, $3.00; MY ELSIE, $3.30.

MATTAPONY followed the pace of COSETTE and answered severe pressure in the final sixteenth to barely get up. COSETTE was hard used while setting the pace and tired gradually in the final eighth. MY ELSIE, unprepared for the break and far back to the first turn, closed with good energy. ZAY was in trouble leaving the backstretch.

DAILY DOUBLE—BLUEFIELD AND MATTAPONY—PAID $282.30 FOR $2.00.

FOURTH RACE—One mile and 70 yards. Purse, $1,000. For 2-year-olds; claiming. Start good from stall. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 3:11½. Off at 3:12. Winner, A. J. Joyner's b. f. Two-dollar mutuels paid—SHORT DISTANCE, $7.00, $3.70, $3.00; COULD BE, $4.80, $4.30; BLUE SHEETS, $4.70.

SHORT DISTANCE, within striking distance from the start, rallied when placed to punishment, went between MANY STINGS and COULD BE and was going away at the finish. COULD BE, rated while closest to the pace, took command briefly in the stretch, but could not resist the winner. Merritt's claim of foul was disallowed. BLUE SHEETS closed with good speed.

FIFTH RACE—One mile and 70 yards. Purse, $1,100. For 3-year-olds. Start poor from stall. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 3:41½. Off at 3:45. Winner, Wm. Jeffords's ch. f. Two-dollar mutuels paid—REGAL LILY, $3.70, $3.00, $2.80; SAVAGE BEAUTY, $6.20, $3.80; BIOLOGIST, $3.00.

REGAL LILY, hustled along while setting the pace, was steered wide entering the stretch and held on gamely in the final stages. SAVAGE BEAUTY, pinched back at the break, moved to contention with a rush on the inside, but was carried out by REGAL LILY. BIOLOGIST saved much ground from the beginning. MONTOON was ridden wide.

SIXTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $1,000. For 3-year-olds and upward; claiming. Start good from stall. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 4:11. Off at 4:13. Winner, W. Elliott's dk. ch. f. (3), by Chatterton—Electric Light. Trained by W. Elliott. Value to winner, $700; second, $150; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 1:47 3-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—LIGHT CHATTER, $20.00, $7.80, $5.40; ROYAL BLUNDER, $9.40, $5.00; SIR WINDSOR, $4.90.

LIGHT CHATTER disposed of ALBUQUERQUE to take the lead, was taken under restraint when ROYAL BLUNDER went to the front at the half pole and rallied to punishment to draw clear. ROYAL BLUNDER moved up sharply to get to the front, but weakened in the final stages. SIR WINDSOR saved ground and closed with good courage.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-eighth miles. For 4-year-olds and upward; claiming. Start good from stall. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 4:44½. Off at 4:45. Winner, Motor City Stable's ch. g. Two-dollar mutuels paid—BUSY PRINCE, $7.50, $3.90, $2.70; SECRET VOTE, $3.40, $2.60; SUMAC, $3.40.

BUSY PRINCE, hustled to the front and then taken in hand, was put to stout pressure in the closing stages to stave off the bid of SECRET VOTE. The latter saved ground from the start and closed with a bold rush. SUMAC raced wide and showed good effort.

Selections at Laurel.

Dear Al:

The Bay Meadows track, in California, is trying to take away Laurel's big closing-day feature. In an effort to lure Seabiscuit and Heelfly to the West Coast, an offer of $15,000 has been made for a match race to be staged October 30. The weights would be 126 for the champion and 120 for the horse that carried him to a dead heat here Saturday. Sonny Workman will be in action here tomorrow aboard Handcuff and The Chief, a pair of C. V. Whitney's horses which go on the auction block at Pimlico. Nick Huff, of Washington, arrived this morning with Jockey Eddie Arcaro. The Greentree Stable and The Manhassett Stable got in with their horses from Keenland, Ky. Joe Wagner has been signed to ride Deliberator in the $2,500 added Baltimore Handicap at Pimlico November 1. There have been 14 claims at this meeting. Jim Fitzsimmons, trainer of the Belair Stud and Wheatley Stable, was an arrival from New York. More than 300 horses are quartered at Bowie waiting for the meeting to open at that point. Pompoon will be shipped to California for the Santa Anita Handicap, it was announced here today. Several horsemen drove over to Charles Town yesterday and reported that many improvements are being made at the West Virginia course. J. B. Belk, owner of Wise Sister and others, came in from his Charlottesville, Va., farm. Count Alsoranski is noaccountski. BILL.

First Race—Caravan Queen runs good races with light weight and gets in action here with 103 pounds. Has worked well and I see no reason for mistakes. Sylvia G. drops down in her own class and is dangerous. Brides Delight has been showing speed in better company.

Second Race—Spinach improved with leaps and bounds last out and promises to be a keen factor if not the winner of the steeplechase. Dundrillin has been kidding and might awake with a bang here. Flying Feathers is fairly consistent.

Third Race—Mythical King was tipped around the paddock before that last outing and may have needed the race. I look for big things in this field. Detroit Bull is a good one and is dangerous. Roy T. is better than generally rated.

Fourth Race—The Chief, making his first start hereabouts, may take down this purse at the first asking. Tiger Teddy is better than that last. Regal Sun to take care of the minor award.

Fifth Race—Sun Flo and Pretty Pet, conditioning for the Selima Stakes on Saturday, probably will battle it out in this event. Both have shown me the closing punch that is needed at this route. Airegla should get into the money picture.

Sixth Race—Mistralkin, in action with only 101 pounds, appears nicely placed in this race. The Flanders entry of Buttermilk and Chance King is dangerous. Jim Corn should go well.

Seventh Race—Sea Gull is superior to these Maryland breds despite that disappointing last. I'm going to string along. May Music was listlessly handled in the early running last out and if away alertly might be a threat. Boosel, if in action, would be a contender.

Eighth Race—Mostly turned in a fine workout and then ran as if short here Saturday. Might take the measure of Durwrack in this field. Marvel Play for the show end.

Best Bet—Mistralkin.

Roosevelt and Central Teams Clash Today

In This Corner

Lots of Grid Action This Week-End.

By Jack Cuddy.

Copyright, 1937, for The Washington Post.

New York, Oct. 18.—Eastern gridirons again command most national attention this week-end, offering an attractive mixed program of stellar intersectional games and significant regional clashes.

This Eastern offering will have plenty of competition, however, because of torrid conference warfare on most other fronts.

All 13 of the Nation's surviving perfect-record major teams will see action. Several risk their laurels against stiff opposition and two of them, Vanderbilt and Louisiana State, collide in Dixie's banner brawl.

The program may be outlined as follows:

East.

Three of the East's four unbeaten and untied elevens play on this front—Yale, Dartmouth and Holy Cross—while Syracuse goes South. And three "perfects" invade the East—Alabama, Wisconsin and Detroit. Wisconsin takes a big risk against Pittsburgh's Panthers, whose lone setback was last week's 0-0 deadlock with Fordham.

* * * *

Detroit likewise treads dangerous ground against Boston College, smeared only with Temple's scoreless tie. Alabama's risk is less against George Washington, which has a perfect record, though not ranked on the major list. Dartmouth is on tissue-thin ice against Harvard, which held Navy to a scoreless deadlock.

* * * *

Yale must be cautious against Cornell, despite the latter's upset by Syracuse. Holy Cross should have easier going against Western Maryland. Meanwhile, Duke, fresh from an eyelash victory over Georgia Tech, invades Colgate, and Texas Christian marches against Fordham's Rams. Other Eastern pairings: Columbia-Brown, Princeton-Rutgers, Army-Washington, Villa Nova-Bucknell, Pennsylvania-Georgetown, N. Y. U.-Lafayette, and Friday, Temple-Carnegie Tech.

* * * *

Midwest.

While Wisconsin and Detroit are in the East the Midwest's third "perfect" eleven, Northwestern, engages in an important Big Ten combat with Ohio State. Northwestern is tied for the conference lead with Wisconsin and Minnesota. Iowa meets Michigan in the second Big Ten game. In the Big Six Conference Co-leader Missouri tangles with Nebraska, which suffered a scoreless tie with Oklahoma. Kansas, who also shares the conference lead, meets Oklahoma.

Outside the conferences, Navy and Notre Dame meet in a game that lost much luster by their unexpected setbacks last week. Other pairings: Indiana-Cincinnati, Kansas State-Creighton, Iowa State-Drake, Michigan State-Marquette.

* * * *

South.

While Alabama is in the North, the other two "perfect" Southern outfits, Louisiana State and Vanderbilt, collide at Nashville. Louisiana State is tied with Alabama for the Southeastern Conference lead. Victory over Vandy will give the Bayou Tigers sole command. Another excellent game in that conference matches Georgia Tech with Auburn. Two other pairings: Florida-Mississippi State and Tennessee-Sewanee. Virginia Military, the Southern Conference leader, plays outside with Virginia, while runner-up Duke is in the North. The three conference pairings are Virginia Poly-Washington and Lee, and, Friday, Richmond-The Citadel, and Thursday, South Carolina-Clemson. Outside, Syracuse risks its perfect record against Maryland, Manhattan invades Kentucky, Georgia meets Mercer, Mississippi plays Ouachita, North Carolina-Tulane and North Carolina State-Wake Forest.

Pacific Coast.

California and Santa Clara are the surviving Coast "perfects." California, conference leader, risks its laurels against one of the runners-up, Southern California, while Santa Clara, on outsider, meets Loyola, of Los Angeles, on Sunday. Three other conference games pair Oregon-Oregon State, U. C. L. A.-Washington State and Washington-Stanford. On the outside, St. Mary's engages Idaho and San Francisco meets Gonzaga on Sunday.

* * * *

Southwest.

Baylor, conference leader and lone Southwestern "perfect," takes a big risk against Texas A. and M., despite the latter's unexpected 7-7 tie with Texas Christian. Two other conference games pair Arkansas-Southern Methodist and Texas-Rice.

Rocky Mountains.

Utah, the conference leader, meets Denver, while four other conference contests pair Colorado Mines-Colorado College, Colorado-Colorado State, Utah State-Wyoming and Greeley-Western State.

Community Clubs Checker Tourney Begins Tonight

The champion checkers player of the Community Boys Clubs will be crowned Thursday night at Roosevelt Community Center.

Fighting for the right to compete in the finals will be players from the five major boys clubs set up this year by the Community Center Department.

The tournament begins at 8 o'clock tonight at Woodrow Wilson High and Anacostia Junior-Senior High Schools for the club championship. Tomorrow club titles will be decided at Langley, Jefferson and Powell.

The finals will get under way at 7:30 o'clock Thursday with each club represented by its champion and runner-up. Cheering sections are expected to accompany their favorites to Roosevelt.

Riders, Hit By Injuries, PatchLine-up

Contest Set for 3:30 P. M. at Mt. Pleasant Team's Stadium.

By Jack Munhall.

A crippled Roosevelt eleven invades Central Stadium at 3:30 this afternoon in an effort to retain its spotless interhigh school football series record at the expense of a disappointing Central squad which has not won a game this season.

The Rough Riders, cherishing hopes for their first title in history following an opening victory over Wilson, suffered a discouraging blow last week when Joe Fraber, fullback, was injured in the St. Alban's game.

A victory will tie them with Eastern for the lead.

Hal Marks, who shone as a replacement for Fraber after the latter was carried from the field with a fractured pelvic bone, will be at the fullback post today. Marks has proved himself a good defensive player. He is also a clever pass receiver.

This latter ability is expected to stand Roosevelt in good stead for it is in the air that Roosevelt will strike to beat Central. The Central line is both heavy and strong and little ground has been gained through it. But a pass defense is notoriously lacking and the Rough Riders are set to capitalize on this weakness with extensive passing.

Central, whipped into a fighting mood by Coach Hardy Pearce, keenly disappointed by the team's lack of spirit against Eastern in the opening series battle, is out for revenge.

A Central team has never lost to Roosevelt and the largest score ever made in the series was the 95-0 licking Central handed the Rough Riders several years ago.

On the shoulders of Lou Chacos will rest Central's hopes of victory. The swarthy halfback is the team's most dangerous ball carrier and passer. Sam Fox, six-foot wingman who receives many of Chacos' passes, and Shannon Cramer, a newcomer at end where he starred in a brief role against Eastern, are expected to figure prominently in Central's defense.

Probable lineups:

Central.	Position.	Roosevelt.
Fox	L.E.	Bartonstein
Doughty	L.T.	Sheehan
Oskerow	L.G.	Beck
Jones	Center	Fox
Swann	R.G.	Gundersheimer
Herbert	R.T.	Kolker
Kurtz	R.E.	Duncan
Goldsworthy	F.B.	Laddbush
Chacos	Q.B.	Metsler
Ickes	H.B.	Gray
Barr	H.B.	Marks

find itself without Southern California on its hands Saturday and only the rashest will concede a California victory. But Santa Clara will boast its clean record for at least another week inasmuch as it has no more than Loyola to contend with.

* * * *

The Southwest may, conceivably, be without a single representative among the unbeaten, untied group when Saturday's games are over. Baylor, its lone boast, meets up with a Texas A. and M. team that may take the field the favorite. The Aggies held the powerful Texas Christians to a 7-7 draw last week.

* * * *

By the season's end, it all figures to be a grand muddle with grave doubt that there will be even one unbeaten, untied team among the Nation's colleges. The seemingly inexorable law that no coach can keep his team keyed to a winning pitch throughout the entire duration of the season has been again forcibly brought to mind. Minnesota lapsed against Nebraska, Nebraska was off form against an underrated Oklahoma team, to cite two outstanding examples.

* * * *

Yale, if it gets by Cornell Saturday and Dartmouth at the end of the month, has, perhaps, the finest chance to succeed, with only Brown, Princeton and Harvard left to block the way. The Yale-Dartmouth game may decide the East's champion. Holy Cross will encounter stumbling blocks in Temple, Colgate and Carnegie Tech. Syracuse must get by Colgate to complete a spotless season against comparatively inferior foes.

* * * *

If Wisconsin does get by Pitt, it must then dispose of Northwestern, Purdue and Minnesota, which appears to be asking too much. And if Northwestern gets by Ohio State, all it has to do is beat Illinois, Minnesota and Notre Dame, which also appears to be asking too much. Detroit, with an inferior schedule, will be confronted with a Villanova team that represents its hardest test.

* * * *

Alabama will have Kentucky, Tulane, Georgia Tech and Vanderbilt on its hands after Saturday, and Louisiana State and Vanderbilt must meet the same kind of tough opposition that, somewhere along the line, promises defeat. Baylor is threatened with defeat on each of the remaining Saturdays on its schedule.

* * * *

Mussolini University and Hitler Tech may chalk up unbeaten and untied records most any season, but of college football in the United States it had better be said that It Can't Happen Here. The going is too tough!

Hoyas Map Battle Plans for Penn; Will Take to Air

Indications that Georgetown will take to the air in its game with the University of Pennsylvania this Saturday were evident yesterday as Coach Jack Hagerty drilled his team along that line trying to find a passer to fill the vacant shoes of his passing ace, Bobby Nolan.

Doubtful as to whether his clever passer, Tommy Keating, will be ready for the battle, Hagerty tuned up his passing attack with Charlie Wychunas on the heaving end. Charlie has shown very well this season when given the opportunity and it is believed he will win a regular berth on the eleven.

Collegiate Athletic Group Asks 4-Sport Control for Olympics

Petitions for Direction of Track, Crew, Swimming and Wrestling in Feud With Amateur Union.

Chicago, Oct. 18 (AP).—The National Collegiate Athletic Association, seeking a showdown on an old controversy with the Amateur Athletic Union, petitioned today for adoption of an amendment giving colleges control of American Olympic teams in four sports—track, crew racing, swimming and wrestling.

Specifically, the amendment asks that three of the five members of the crew committee and five of nine members on the track, wrestling and swimming committees be college representatives. At present, the A. A. U. controls these sports with nine of the 13 members on each committee.

Chief among the arguments presented by the N. C. A. A. for adoption of the amendment is its contention that 99 per cent of the athletes, points won and championships earned in the Olympic games have been from the colleges and that the colleges financed these teams.

"We do not seek control of the Olympic committee," said Maj. Griffith. "We only desire to protect ourselves against the wrong sort of man being placed in charge of the teams which we develop and finance for Olympic competition.

"We are unconcerned over whether these men are A. A. U. representatives or college men; we are concerned only whether they are the proper type men to represent American colleges and be in charge of American college athletes."

The colleges contend that 30 years ago, when athletic clubs were the most important factor in amateur athletics, there was reason for A. A. U. control. They insist that now, however, with 30,000,000 boys and girls enrolled in various educational institutions equipped to promote athletics, the situation is changed.

Coincidental with announcement of the N. C. A. A.'s action, it became known that the Southern Pacific Association of the A. A. U. has asked that the national body surrender control of Olympic teams to the colleges.

California's Bears Given TopRanking

Displace Minnesota as Nation's No. 1 College Team in Poll.

By Alan Gould.

Associated Press Sports Writer

New York, Oct. 18.—California's Golden Bears, unranked nationally a year ago when the Associated Press started its annual poll, stand today at the head of the collegiate football class for 1937.

The country's leading newspaper observers, casting their first batch of ballots after three weeks of somewhat startling activity on the big league gridirons, gave California a surprisingly strong indorsement for the No. 1 spot, occupied by Minnesota a year ago.

Picked by 24 out of 54 experts for top ranking, California polled a total of 432 points against a possible maximum of 540. Alabama nosed out Pittsburgh, the Rose Bowl champion, for second place in the first week's consensus, with Minnesota fourth in spite of its early season setback at Nebraska's hands.

How Elevens Rank.

Here's the tabulation, scoring each list on a 10-9-8-7-6-5-4-3-2-1 basis and with first place indicated in parenthesis:

First Ten	Points
1. California (24)	432
2. Alabama (7)	355
3. Pittsburgh (8)	347
4. Minnesota (5)	291
5. Yale (6)	256
6. Louisiana State (2)	244
7. Northwestern	165
8. Nebraska	153
9. Fordham	103
10. Duke	94

Second Ten.

11. Southern California, 84; 12. Ohio State, 63; 13. Texas A. and M., 51; 14. Santa Clara, 45; 15. Baylor, 41; 16. Wisconsin, 36; 17. Syracuse, 35; 18. Dartmouth, 34; 19. Cornell, 17; 20. Tie among Auburn, Holy Cross and Vanderbilt, 13 each. Baylor and Auburn each received one nomination for first place.

There are some sharp contrasts as well as conflicts in this year's initial poll but the country-wide returns give convincing proof that no section has a monopoly on top-ranking teams. Each of the so-called "big leagues" of college football is well represented, along with the "independents."

Minnesota is rated four notches above the team that upset the Gophers, Nebraska, but this is explained by last Saturday's results. Nebraska lost prestige in a scoreless tie with Oklahoma while Minnesota crushed Michigan. Pittsburgh, though held to its third straight scoreless deadlock by Fordham, received impressive Naton-wide support.

Big Shake-up Revealed.

Comparison with last October's first ranking list discloses a big shake-up among the collegate powers. There are five hold-overs in the top ten, comprising Pittsburgh, Minnesota, Northwestern Yale and Duke, but such 1936 stalwarts as Army, Purdue, Notre Dame and Washington are missing entirely from the current ranking list.

The current top ten offer some shining targets for the coming Saturday. California's place in the sun will be challenged by Southern California, which barely missed a spot in this week's first ten. Alabama tackles George Washington unranked as yet, but nevertheless among the few remaining major teams neither tied nor beaten.

Cardinals Hit By Injuries; Two Stars Out

Shine, Pirro Lost to Squad as It Points for St. Louis U.

With two of his best men on the sidelines nursing injuries, Coach Dutch Bergman, of Catholic University, yesterday began casting around for recruits to plug the gaps on his eleven.

Carmon Pirro, husky reserve tackle who was making rapid strides toward a regular berth, has been lost to the squad for two weeks because of a leg injury suffered in the Detroit game. On top of that, Bergman was informed that Lou Shine, an end, will be out until Thanksgiving, at least, with a chipped vertebrae bone.

Bergman and his assistans began driving the squad hard for Saturday's game with St. Louis, to be ployed in St. Louis, with knowledge that the Billikins are pointing for his club. An early loss to Mississippi is the only smirch on the mid-Westerners' record thus far, and a victory over the Cards would be regarded as a bright plume in their helmets. St. Louis whipped South Dakota last week, 9 to 0.

Bergman indicated yesterday that he will rely more on speed and deception rather than power against the Blues City boys. A lack of suitable reserves, plus the fact that his squad still feels the effect of Detroit's bruising style of play necessitated the move.

2 Tie for Columbia Women's Medal; Richmond Wins

Mrs. Gross, Mrs. Marr, In Deadlock

Chevy Chase Octet Bows to Virginians by 7-5 Score.

Columbia and Chevy Chase opened the last big week on the women's golf card yesterday, the former qualifying in the club championship while the Chevy Chase members lost, 7 to 5, to an invading Richmond octet.

Mrs. J. F. Gross and Mrs. J. A. Marr tied for the medal in the Columbia play, with 93's. Mrs. H. M. Brundage, defending champion, was safely in the first flight. Match play will begin on Wednesday, as the Field Day for club teams is carded today at Congressional.

The Richmond women's aggregation scored shutouts in the first and third foursomes to down the local team in their annual match. Miss Scully and Mrs. Legg and Miss Claytor and Mrs. Cameron each won 2½ points for Chevy Chase.

A field of 162 will play at Congressional and Kenwood today in the first, second and third teams, annual play.

Another tourney is carded for the women golfers this week when the N. B. C. 18-hole medal event in honor of Helen Dettweiler is scheduled, also at Congressional, on Friday. Entries are accepted at N. B. C. studios in the Trans-Lux Building.

Miami Eleven Rests.

Coral Gables, Fla., Oct. 18.—Back home for a needed rest, the University of Miami football eleven will take things lightly for a day or two to recuperate from the severe pounding of the Bucknell game and then will buckle down to work harder than ever for the second trio of games starting October 29 at Tampa, against the University of Tampa.

Mere Thought of Alabama Almost Makes Jim Pixlee Ill

Southern Eleven Not as Heavy as Predecessors, But Packs a Potent Scoring Wallop; Coach Figures Colonials Have Chance to Win Saturday.

By Lewis F. Atchison.

Mr. Jim Pixlee, head man of George Washington's board of strategy, attended the weekly Touchdown Club luncheon yesterday, and almost came down with a severe attack of indigestion when called on for a few remarks on the Alabama team his boys will meet Saturday at Griffith Stadium.

President Charley Fenwick said after introducing the speaker.

Pixlee gulped hard, like a man who has just swallowed a billiard ball. A faraway look came into his eye as he recalled watching the Dixie power project trample Tennessee, its ancient enemy, in one of the Southeastern Conference's big games last Saturday.

Alabama Lighter.

"In two minutes," he began slowly, "all I could say is that this team looks like all the rest of those Alabama teams. It has everything. Maybe not as big as some of the others—the tackles only weigh about 195 pounds. But it's fast and tough. Whenever it needs a yard, or 5 yards, it gets it. The backs can pass, kick and run, and the whole team can tackle and block. What more is there to say?"

Evidently Pixlee is not exaggerating, for all who have seen the Tide roll agree that Frank Thomas has another good team on his hands. Thomas and Hank Crisp, director of athletics, will be guest of honor, incidentally, at a Touchdown Club banquet Friday night at the Lee House. George Washington's lone chances of winning the game depend largely on how seriously the Southerners take it. If Alabama chooses to believe it has a set-up the Colonials have chance, but if the Tide means business, it'll be curtains for the downtown school.

Hard Workout.

George Washintgon spent yesterday working against Alabama formations, and today will have another hard workout. The remainder of the week will be spent tapering off.

Tippy Holt, a regular and who hasn't been in a game as yet because of a bad ankle, and Elmer Borden, whose knee has kept him on the shelf, are expected to be ready for the game. Both will be welcome additions to the line-up. Another likely to see plenty of service is Merka, whose punting and defensive work in practice have been excellent.

Ken Overlin Wins Over Ray Williams

Fights

bang from the outset and a crowd-pleaser with neither taking a backward step, but Abrams was the stronger puncher and always maintained a lead over the Richmond lad.

Al Reed, New York featherweight and Ray Ingram, of Washington, maintained the slugging motif of the evening's battling in their furious six-rounder that produced a draw decision. They were swinging haymakers from the outset and landing about ten per cent of their wallops to the unbridled delight of the crowd which was thinning out but little after the main battle despite the continued rain.

Unceasingly, Armando Sicilia, New York featherweight, and Baby Manuel, Washington, 126-pounder, poured leather for six rounds during the preliminary card that followed the feature bouts, with Sicilia wining a highly debatable split decision.

Slam bang from the outset, the battle saw both fighters go to the floor without counts in the early rounds, and Manuel went down again in the final session. At one point during the battling, Referee Denny Hughes went to the floor, successfully ducking a flurry of wild swings. Manuel appeared to have rallied sufficiently to earn at least a draw, but the majority vote of the referee and judges said no, and no it was.

In a comical four-rounder which closed the show, Battling Zuzu and Cyclone Williams, a pair of dusky heavyweights, fought to a draw. Their glares were more sinister than their punches until the final round when bitter battling brought the crowd to their feet. Referee Hughes was forced to separate the fighters.

Weiss Leads Scorers In Western Conference

Chicago, Oct. 18 (AP).—Howard Weiss, Wisconsin's 6-foot, 200-pound fullback, leads all scorers in the Western Conference football title race, having a total of 14 points in two Big Ten tilts as the result of two touchdowns and as many extra points.

Three players are tied for second place, each with 12 points. Jimmy Martin, speedy Wisconsin halfback, and Wilbur Moore and Rudy Gmitro, of Minnesota's Gophers, each have scored two touchdowns.

Navy Squad Rests After Harvard Tie

Squid Sees Game Movies, Then Goes Walking; Changes Hinted.

Annapolis, Md., Oct. 18.—The Navy football squad, a number of whose players started the Harvard game Saturday in far from the best physical condition, took nearly a complete rest this afternoon, and tomorrow will start its intensive preparation for the game with Notre Dame, at South Bend, Ind., Saturday.

The players watched movies of the Harvard game this afternoon and listened to a discussion of the good and bad points by Head Coach Hardwick and some of the others. Later, the whole squad took a cross-country tramp.

On the field, B squad was engaged in work on Notre Dame plays, as brought back by the scouts, while the section which had been impersonating the Harvard team shifted to Penn plays, carrying out the staggered system which has been the rule for the past two seasons.

The most serious fault developed in Saturday's game, it was pointed out, was lack of co-ordination between the line and backfield, the forwards generally opening the Harvard line but sometimes the backfield to strike at the right moment. This was discussed fully, and much of the practice will be along these lines.

Saturday's game threw a number of positions on the varsity eleven wide open. In the line, the work of the first group from tackle to tackle, made up of Bergner and Hysong, tackles; DuBois and Player, guards, and Fincher, center, was equalled by the second quintet, composed of Lynch and Jarvis, tackles; Spector and Gunderson, guards, and Andrews, center the latter having some weight advantage.

In spite of his fine work in the Harvard game, it is by no means settled that Lem Cooke has ousted Bill Ingram from the running back position, while Emmett Wood, a chunky back from the plebes of last year, has proved himself the most certain gainer of a moderate number of yards on the team.

Glickman, Ace Syracuse Back, Terps' Target

Must Stop Sprinter if It Hopes to Win Over Orange Saturday.

All Maryland has to do Saturday to whip Syracuse is stop Marty Glickman, the Orange's Olympic sprinter, according to the scouting notes of Leroy Mackert, who saw the New Yorkers upset Cornell last week-end.

Glickman, a Jewish lad, takes passes from a full-blooded Hindu tagged Sidat-Singh—and usually goes for touchdowns. But that isn't all of it. It seems that Marty hands sit-down, or Sidat, the ball on a reverse play, then runs down the field to take a pass from him. That is speed.

In stopping Cornell the Orangemen displayed a smooth, hard-charging line, and better-than-average backfield. Ossie Solem's system appears to be hitting on all cylinders. In Art Morison and Jack Hinkle, Glickman and sit-down have two fine running mates. Both handle themselves well on Solem's deceptive formations. The line is green, but extremely fast and aggressive.

The teams fought to a scoreless tie on a muddy field in their last meeting at Baltimore, but last year the Terps walloped the foe, 21-0, at Syracuse. Solem's men hope to atone for that loss Saturday. Syracuse, incidentally, is one of the few remaining unbeaten, untied teams in the country, having disposed of St. Lawrence and Clarkson in previous tests.

Seeking Games.

The Lithuanian-American A. C., of the Baltimore Basketball League, would like to arrange games with teams of Washington and vicinity. For games address Joseph Muzdakis, 1729 Wilmington avenue, Morrell Park, Baltimore, Md.

Soccer Teams Vie For School Title

Prince Georges and Montgomery counties will be battling for soccer supremacy today when Mount Rainier High School travels to Silver Spring to take on the fast-stepping Montgomery Blair High eleven.

Gallagher Vs. Sekyra.

Dayton, Ohio, Oct. 18.—Marty Gallagher, Washington, D. C. heavyweight, will meet Joe Sekyra here next Monday in a ten-round feature bout.

Australian Mat System Set Again

Promoter Joe Turner will use the Australian round-by-round system again on his Thursday night wrestling match at Turner's Arena between Chief Thunderbird, the powerful Saanich Indian, and Jack Hader, the Kansas "Hate Man."

The system was tried out last week in a four-rounder of ten minutes each, in support of the "title" match between Clara Mortensen, the feminine lightweight champion, and Marie Gardini, of Chicago, the challenger. Miss Mortensen and Miss Gardini will clash in two-out-of-three falls.

Thunderbird is quite an attraction here, having won three straight. He features a terrific death lock, and does an Indian war dance.

Dynamite Cox is also on the Thursday card, meeting Cliff Olsen, the Minnesota Swede, in a one-hour-time-limit brawl.

Miss Mortensen arrived in town yesterday and will remain here until the Thursday matches. She threw Miss Gardini two weeks ago.

Packers, Giants Near Grid Mark

New York, Oct. 18 (AP).—The Green Bay Packers and the New York Giants appear to be well on their way to new offensive and defensive records in the national football league.

Statistics released today show the Packers, in addition to leading in scoring with 104 points, have gained 1,459 yards in five games, an average per game of 291 yards. This exceeds the former high mark of 288 yards per game, set by the Chicago Bears two seasons ago.

On the defensive side of the picture, opponents have been able to gain only 504 yards against the Giants in four games, or an average of 126 yards per game. The Giants and Bears each have allowed opponents only 11 points.

For Contest With Hampden-Sydney

Annapolis, Md., Oct. 18 (AP).—The St. John's College football squad today began practice for the Hampden-Sydney game with four players slightly injured in the clash with New York University.

Sprigg Sands, guard, has a bruised knee; Len Delisio, end, a slightly bruised leg; Johnny Lambros back, bruised arm, and Dick Snibbe, center, a bruised knee. Valentine (Dutch) Lentz, head coach expects them to be in shape for the coming game.

Lentz ran the squad through a light workout today. He held a short dummy practice against sand bags and staged a period of signal drill.

The coaching staff said that New York University was "just too good" for the Johnnie squad.

They said the team was fortunate to come out of the game in such comparatively good physical condition.

Pick U. S. Riders For Jump Fete

New York, Oct. 18 (AP).—Two veterans and three young riders have been selected to represent the United States in the international military jumping competition at the national horse show in Madison Square Garden, November 3-10.

The veterans are Capt. Milo H. Matteson and Lieut. Franklin S. Wing. The newcomers, all developed at the Fort Riley, Kans., Cavalry School, are Capt. Royce A. Drake, Lieut. W. H. S. Wright and Lieut. Scott M. Sanford.

The U. S. officers will compete against teams from Canada, Irish Free State, Belgium and Holland.

Pastor Vs. Rosenbloom.

Los Angeles, Oct. 18.—Bob Pastor, New York, and Maxie Rosenbloom, former light-heavyweight champion, have been signed to meet here next month.

Wheat Prices Recover After Early Break

Closing Prices as Much as 1⅝ Cents Higher Than Saturday.

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, Oct. 18.—Concentrated buying attributed to Eastern sources led to a spirited rally of wheat prices late today, much more than offsetting an earlier severe tumble.

From a temporary fall of 3 cents a bushel that was associated largely with sensational weakness of securities the Chicago wheat market ran up in some cases to a maximum net gain of 1⅝ cents, and closed at the day's top level. Simultaneous with the late sharp upturn of wheat values was announcement of a substantial decrease of the United States wheat visible supply total.

At the close, Chicago wheat futures were ⅛ lower to 1⅝ higher, compared with Saturday's finish; December, 99@99¼; May, 99¾@100; July, 93¾. Corn, ¾ to 1⅜ advance; December, 59⅞@60; May, 61⅛@61⅝; July, 61½. Oats, ⅛ to ½ up; December, 30⅜. Rye varied from ⅛ decline to ¼ gain; December, 73¾. Provisions results were 20 to 47 cents down.

Stocks Break Into New Low Ground in Heavy Trading; Bonds Yield.

New York, Oct. 18.—Stocks had another bad day and prices which until now had been regarded as marking the last line of defense were left behind—rather far behind in a few cases. Leading issues, including Steel, Chrysler, Bethlehem, General Electric and International Nickel, fell into new low ground with declines of 4 to 8 points, the worst prices being paid in the last hour. Stock turnover increased with the selling after a quiet and fairly steady first half hour, the total approaching the 3,000,000-share mark. Other speculative markets weakened, but United States bonds held firm. December wheat closed an eighth of a cent lower at 99 cents a bushel.

As selling got under way, first around first margin sales time before noon and later after the poor trade news, the disappointing Supreme Court decisions, and the after lunch rumors gathered momentum, stock after stock sold down to prices which reminded holders that they had seen those quotations before—in 1932 or 1933. As a whole stocks fell to the mid-1935 levels, and the fresh weakness naturally dislodged the props from numerous margin accounts. Anticipation of further margin selling in the morning was an additional factor in the afternoon sales which helped to send the ticker tape behind by five or six minutes and to keep it late much of the time.

Which Came First.

Desultory firing continues along the line of responsibility for the break in the stock market. Mr. Pecora now has the floor in answering Mr. Aldrich on the matter of SEC and other restrictions on trading. Mr. Pecora is not particularly popular in Wall Street, and there are more persons in the financial district who think as little opportunity as possible should be given him to attack the Street and to defend New Deal laws. Meanwhile, the heat of battle is tending to obscure a point or two. It is important for other reasons than the settlement of an argument among speculators and market analysis to know whether business actually began to decline in the spring and summer, as it had been generally assumed, or whether no recession was visible until September.

Perhaps the majority of commentators took it for granted from the information obtained that a recession in business was taking place last summer. They based their optimism on the hope that nevertheless the downswing was purely seasonal and would be followed, as it was in 1936, by a rally in the autumn. When that recovery failed to appear the stock market, which had been moving higher in June and July and up to the middle of August, again turned down. That was the orthodox view of the matter. It was a view which was greatly strengthened by the record of stock selling.

Advance Information.

The period reports to the SEC on insider trading had shown that heavy and persistent selling by insiders, or "informed people" was the rule all through June, July and August. That probably was the tip-off in the autumn break. As is well known, the insiders sell when they first learn that their own companies are beginning to feel a setback, and buy when improvement starts. Those changes begin with a rise or fall of orders on the books and do not show up in the statistics available to the public until one to three months later, when production rates, shipments and sales volume figures are published that reflect the earlier change in orders placed. Business last summer might not have been declining much, but directors, officers and other informed persons in a large number of corporations seemed to be somewhat apprehensive. Their state of mind could be explained, it is true, on general principles, for almost everyone is a bit nervous over what is coming as a result of the present uncertain and unsound economic program of the Government.

Business News Poor.

Although the Supreme Court with its batch of decisions announced at noon may have been a factor in the markets, nothing in particular that it ruled on was of sufficient moment to excite anyone. It was more probable that the early week business statistics were more influential in keeping the feeling of pessimism, and the multiplicity of rumors of forced selling by Wall Street firms, the usual accompaniment of the tail end of a bear market, did not help much.

The steel industry is now feeling rapidly the effects of the runout of ried to the lowest prices seen since operating rate held up so well that it gave a false sense of solidity to a business position that several months ago began to waver. The drop in new orders that was then taking place is now seen in a sharp reduction in the operating rate which this week will fall 8 per cent to 55.8 per cent of capacity, according to the American Iron and Steel Institute. A year ago the rate was 74.2 per cent. Not only is the leading industry now operating well below a year ago, but stock prices also are the lowest since the summer of 1935.

Belated Recognition.

What has been taking place in steel doubtless will soon become more plain in transportation. Railroad freight car loadings, in spite of the large crops, doubtless will be affected by the decline in shipments to and from the steel mills and for other industrial account which that involves. Today's market in particular was not noted as a thin affair, but rather as one which valiantly resisted, although unsuccessfully, a large volume of liquidation from those forced to sell by the declines that already have occurred and by those who are taking fresh alarm over the unsatisfactory condition of business enterprise in this country.

New Low Prices.

With steel, metal, motor and rail shares unable to withstand the pressure of sales, stocks were carsince the summer of 1935. Steel shares gave ground easily, which disheartened other groups. U. S. Steel and Bethlehem broke more than 5 points, after a steady start. Chrysler, which sold under its previous closing price from the start, dropped more than half a dozen points, making the loss in a week nearly 20 points. General Motors fell 2 points. Some of the metals ran down as much as 4 or 5 points. Sales volume was not large until about first margin sales time—11 o'clock—when the tape ran behind. It had several other periods of inability to keep up with the market. Sales volume contracted on every tendency to rally.

Home Building Likely to Make New D. C. Peak

New Housing for 35,000 Is Estimated as Year's Total.

By Thomas M. Cahill.

The current year will in all probability witness a record high in residential building in Washington, Rufus S. Lusk, statistician, informed bankers yesterday. Addressing the fall meeting of the District of Columbia Bankers Association, Mr. Lusk, publisher of the Washington Business Review, predicted the year's total would reach approximately 10,000 units, or enough to house 35,000 persons.

Tracing the large amount of home building during 1937, he said that during the first nine months, 8,065 housing units were started in Metropolitan Washington, compared with 6,714 in the corresponding nine months of 1936. In the nine months of the present year, 3,790 houses were begun, or 384 more than in the 1936 period; 2,995 apartment units, an increase of 903, and 1,280 four-family flat units, a gain of 64.

Speaking on "Washington Real Estate—Past, Present and Future," he revealed that during the present building upturn there has been a marked increase in construction outside of the city. Until 1934, he reminded, most building in Metropolitan Washington was in the city itself; no apartment houses had been erected in the adjoining counties in Maryland and Virginia. Now this is all changed, and so far this year, of the 3,790 houses started in Metropolitan Washington only 1,477 are located within in the city itself, the rest being in Arlington, Montgomery and Prince Georges counties.

The same is true of apartments, he said, there being an increasing trend toward building, particularly large low rental housing, outside the city limits. During 1936, 746 apartment units were begun in the metropolitan area beyond the city lines and to date this year, 914 have been started in the counties.

Finances.

"This is having a material effect upon the finances of Washington and is something which everyone should understand," he said, explaining that until two or three years ago all apartment construction was in the city and all of the increased tax value that such construction produced provided revenue for the District government.

"Today," he emphasized, considerable proportion of the apartment construction and more than half of the home construction is going out of the city. This means just so much lost revenue for the District government. The loss in taxes to the District by reason of this building trend away from the city was at least $200,000 in 1936, and will be $150,000 in 1937."

"Since 1910, approximately 303,000 persons in the city have been provided with living quarters. During this time the estimated population increase is 288,000. The New Deal produced a large excess population in need of housing. Our extensive building program supplied housing for this excess growth about four months ago. Today construction is more than providing for the normal growth of the city and all that is erected in addition to these needs will pile up surplus.

"A certain amount of surplus, above minimum needs is, of course, desirable. It becomes unhealthy when the housing units available are so much in excess of the needs of the population that vacancies become abnormally high. New unsold houses on hand increase and trouble results for owners, builders, mortgage bankers and building supply houses.

Apartment Vacancies.

"If building continued for a year or so at a pace somewhat less than during September, which was 40 per cent under last September, there would be no donger in the present situation. Today's apartment vacancy of less than 5 per cent is nothing to worry about. It provides a reasonable choice for tenants and at the same time does not make the burden of vacant space so high as to cause losses to owners. However, should building continue its present 1937 pace, it is inevitable that some people will get into trouble.

"Unbelievable as it may seem, during the last 30 months, more than 1,000 individuals and corporations have been building houses and apartments in the city of Washington alone and there are hundreds more in the outlying areas.

"It is axiomatic that a family, whether consisting of a single individual or a half dozen or more people, will occupy but one house or one apartment. If there be 1,000 housing units in a community and 900 families, the vacancy will be 10 per cent at least. If follows, therefore, that any building in excess of the number of families in a given location means vacancies.

Cotton Lower; December 8.27

New York, Oct. 18 (AP).—Except for midmorning recoveries cotton was generally lower today, first in sympathy with foreign markets and later owing to a slump in stocks. March reacted from 8.31 to 8.12 and closed at 8.20, with final prices 2 to 10 points net lower.

The market opened 1 to 8 points lower, influenced by declines at Bombay and Liverpool and under liquidation and Southern selling. Heavy rains over the Central and Western belts over the week-end combined with foreign buying caused the market to recover to net gains of 1 to 6 points, but prices later sagged. A break of about $1 a bale from the highs and to net losses of 15 to 18 points occurred in the afternoon as other markets weakened, but final prices showed recovery of 8 to 13 points.

Steel Output For 9 Months Near 1929 Peak

Despite Obstacles Production Is Only 2% Below Record Year.

New York, Oct. 18.—"Vacation curtailments, flood interruptions and labor disturbances conspired to restrain the enthusiasm which permeated the steel industry at the beginning of the year," Dun & Bradstreet say today. The review continues:

"Despite the impediments encountered, ingot production for the nine months came within 2.0 per cent of clipping the 1929 peak, went 28.7 per cent over the corresponding 1936 tonnage, and surpassed all totals of the comparative periods preceding. Shipments of steel sheets, strip and tin plate were extended from the all-time highs of 1936, as industries manufacturing consumers' goods expanded.

"Most of the gain was built up in the first half of the year, when shipments were trailing orders, despite output in excess of 5,000,000 gross tons for three successive months. The 42,498,769 gross tons of steel ingot produced during the nine months of 1937 was larger than the yearly totals from 1930 to 1935, and 2.4 per cent more than the annual average of 41,500,000 for the ten-year period ended with 1929. By the close of the third quarter, however, backlogs had disappeared, and operating schedules had been cut to a close gage with incoming orders.

"Large-scale buying by the automobile industry, sustained demand from farm equipment and tractor makers, and a wider flow of orders from manufacturers of consumers' goods were being counted upon to bolster production during the balance of the year. Even though the proposed rate increases be granted, little support was expected from the railroads during the fourth quarter, and less from the construction industry."

Murphy, Figure In Wall Street, Expires at 58

West Pointer Quit Army to Become Brokerage Firm Head.

By the Associated Press.

New York, Oct. 18.—Col. Grayson M.-P. Murphy, 58, prominent Wall Street figure, and head of the brokerage firm bearing his name, died today, following an illness of bronchial pneumonia.

Col. Murphy was graduated from West Point in the clas of 1903. Abandoning a military career after serving in the Spanish-American War as a private and in the World War as a lieutenant colonel of the Forty-second Division in charge of operations, Murphy became head of one of the largest and best known brokerage houses in Wall street.

He was a director in many corporations, including the Bethlehem Steel Corporation, Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co., United Cigar Stores and Anaconda Copper Co.

Murphy was a close personal friend, as well as business associate, of Cornelius F. Kelley, head of Anaconda.

In 1906, Murphy was married to the former Maud Donaldson, of Philadelphia, who survives with two sons, Grayson Mallet-Prevost Murphy, jr., and Robert Donaldson Murphy.

Before entrance of the United States into the World War, Murphy was active abroad as European commissioner of the American Red Cross.

For his war activities, he was decorated with the Distinguished Service Medal by the United States Government, the Order of Leopold II by Belgium, and was made an officer of the Legion of Honor by France and a commendatore of the Order of the Crown of Italy.

G. A. Dunham Dies; A Retired Banker

George A. Dunham, 84, retired banker, of Manistee, Mich., died yesterday at his home, 534 Ingraham street northwest. He had been in failing health for some time.

Born in Hinckley, Ohio, Dunham was in the banking business at Manistee for 56 years, and for 20 years was president of the First National Bank there. He retired in 1929. He had lived in Washington since last February.

He was a life member of the Elks, a past commander of Blue Lodge of Masons in Manistee, and a former member of the Manistee Chamber of Commerce.

He leaves his wife, Mrs. Ruth Dunham. Private funeral services will be held tomorrow at Chambers funeral home, 1400 Chapin street northwest.

Mrs. Carolyn S. A. Fahnestock, D.C. Society Leader, Dead at 76

Noted for Philanthropies and Relief York in World War.

MRS. GIBSON FAHNESTOCK.

Mrs. Carolyn Snowden Andrews Fahenstock, 76, widow of Gibson Fahnestock, of New York and Washington, died unexpectedly here yesterday.

Mrs. Fahnestock recently came from her summer home in Newport, R. I., to arrange for the opening of her home at 2311 Massachusetts avenue, for the season. She was stopping temporarily at the Sulgrave Club, where she died.

Present at the time of her death were her son and daughter-in-law, Col. and Mrs. Snowden A. Fahnestock, and Miss Dorothy Sollers, a cousin of Mrs. Fahnestock.

Mrs. Fahnestock was the daughter of the late Gen. Richard Snowden Andrews, of the Confederate Army, and the late Mary Katherine Lee Andrews, of Baltimore. She was born in that city in January, 1862, and was married to Gibson Fahnestock, of New York City, June 3, 1884. Mr. Fahnestock died in 1917.

Their three children, all of whom survive Mrs. Fahnestock, are two sons, Col. Fahnestock, of Washington, D. C., and Mr. Gibson Fahnestock, who now is in China, and a daughter, Mrs. Henry Drummond-Wolff, of London, England. Mrs. Fahnestock also is survived by 12 grandchildren, a brother, Mr. Charles Lee Andrews, of Flushing, Long Island, and a sister, Mrs. Frederick L. Eldridge, of Ardsley-on-Hudson, N. Y.

Prominent in Newport, New York and Washington social circles, Mrs. Fahnestock was noted, too, for her interest in many philanthropic, religious and patriotic movements.

At the time of her death she was vice president of the Washington Home for Incurables, a member of the National Committee of Washington Cathedral and had served as an officer of the Daughters of the Confederacy and the Colonial Dames.

During the World War she was a leader in Red Cross and other relief activities and was a founder of the Woman's Naval Service and the National Service Schools for Women.

Mrs. Fahnestock had been for many years a member of the congregation of St. John's Episcopal Church, Lafayette Square.

Funeral services will be conducted at 3 p. m. tomorrow in the Washington Cathedral. Burial will be in Woodlawn Cemetery in New York.

Charles Cockrell Burial Set Today

Funeral services for Charles Brawner Cockrell, 85, Fairfax County flour and feed manufacturer, will be held at 2:30 p. m. today at his home in Fairfax County, on Duke street extended. Burial will be in Ivy Hill Cemetery.

Mr. Cockrell died Sunday at his home. A native of Prince William County, he had owned and oprated the Old Dominion Mill in Fairfax County for more than 40 years.

He was prominent in civic and church work and had served for many years as an election judge.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Margaret L. Cockrell; three sons, Charles, William and Walter Cockrell; a daughter, Mrs. Estelle Moltz; a brother, F. A. Cockrell, and two sisters, Mrs. May Tefft and Mrs. Myrtle Dawson.

Mrs. Lazenby, 77, Dies After Illness

Mrs. Rose P. Lazenby, 77, resident of Washington for more than 20 years, died Sunday at her home, 4411 Kansas avenue northwest, following a brief illness.

A native of Marshall, Va., Mrs. Lazenby was the widow of Richard O. Lazenby, meteorologist with the Weather Bureau for many years, who died last month.

Mrs. Lazenby is survived by five sisters, Mrs. Laura Anderson and Mrs. Florence Brown, of Washington; Mrs. Kate Gibson and Miss Molly Harry, of Marshall, and Mrs. Sally Alexander, of Bluefield, Va.

Funeral services will be held at 2 p. m. today at Tabler's funeral home, 4217 Ninth street northwest. Burial will be in Soldiers Home Cemetery.

Maj. Goodrich Dies.

Manila (Tuesday), Oct. 19 (AP).—Maj. John D. Goodrich, 59, died today in the United States Army Hospital of a heart attack. He had served in the Quartermaster Department in New York and Washington.

Dr. Morley's Rites At Baltimore Today

Funeral services for Dr. Frank Morley, professor emeritus of mathematics at Johns Hopkins University, who died at his home in Baltimore Sunday, will be held today at 3:30 p. m. at the Mitchell Funeral Home, 1900 Eutaw place, Baltimore.

Dr. Morley was the father of Felix Morley, editor of The Washington Post; Christopher D. Morley, the author, and Frank V. Morley, London publisher.

Greenwald Funeral Set for Tomorrow

Funeral services for William R. Greenwald, 49, who died at his home, 5300 Broad Branch road Sunday night, after an illness of three weeks, will be held at the residence at 8:30 a. m. tomorrow, followed by requiem mass at the Blessed Sacrament Church.

Born in Trenton, N. J., Mr. Greenwald had been a Washington resident for many years. He was a statistical technician in the Department of Commerce.

He took an active part in affairs of Washington Council, No. 224, of the Knights of Columbus, and also belonged to the order of Alhambra.

Survivors are his wife, Helen E. Greenwald; a son and a daughter, William R. and Kathleen Greenwald, and his sister, Mrs. Mary Leibel.

Col. Hogan Dies; Once Lived Here

Col. David D. Hogan, 53, Medical Corps, U. S. Army, died Saturday at the Army and Navy General Hospital, Hot Springs, Ark.

A graduate of Rush Medical Collgee, Chicago, he was on duty at the Army Medical School here in 1914. Commissioned a first lieutenant in the Medical Corps Reserve in 1898, Col. Hogan served as a reserve officer until 1915, when he accepted a commission in the Regular Army.

Col. Hogan is survived by his wife, Mrs. Dora Dean Hogan, of Fort Des Moines, Iowa.

Official Notices

HEALING ARTS PRACTICE ACT, District of Columbia, 1938. To Whom It May Concern: Notice is hereby given that an examination will be held beginning Monday, January 10, 1938, for applicants for license to practice Medicine, Osteopathy, Chiropractic, Naturopathy, or other systems of drugless healing in the District of Columbia. Examination will also be held beginning January 10, 1938 for license to practice Midwifery in the District of Columbia. Every applicant for examination, except for license to practice Midwifery, will first be referred to the Board of Examiners in the Basic Sciences for determination of his or her ability to understand and apply the sciences of Anatomy, Physiology, Chemistry, Pathology, and Bacteriology to the study and practice of the Healing Art. The examination before the Board of Examiners in the Basic Sciences will be held beginning Monday, December 27, 1937, and will continue two days. Only applicants who successfully pass the examination in the Basic Sciences will be admitted to examination before Board of Examiners in Medicine, Osteopathy, Chiropractic, Naturopathy, or other drugless healing, as the case may be for determination of his or her professional fitness. This examination will be held in the Franklin School Building, 13th & K sts. nw., Washington, D. C., and will begin promptly at 9 a. m. and last two days. Only such applicants as may be duly authorized by the Commission on Licensure will be admitted to any of the examinations. All applications must be in the hands of the Secretary-Treasurer of the Commission on Licensure not later than December 15, 1937. For further information address George C. Ruhland, M. D., Secretary-Treasurer, Commission on Licensure, Room 203—District Building, Washington, D. C.

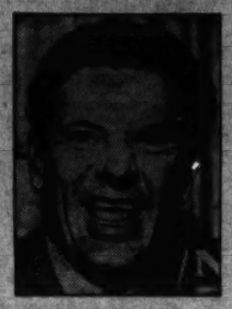
Bob Burns Says—



My Uncle Skinny Flint always figgered that when he got his fortune saved up it would be plenty of time to start lookin' for happiness. Finally, when he reached his financial goal, he started lookin' around to see what joys the world had'ta offer.

He picked out the "belle of the town" and started takin' her to ice cream socials and Saturday night picture shows and the first thing he knew he was in love. He didn't think there was any question about her marry'n him with all his money, so he didn't propose to her until the night he slipped the new engagement ring on her finger.

She turned on him and says "I wouldn't marry you if you was the last man in the world—I never want to see you again and I want you to take this ring back." Uncle Skinny says, "No, that's all right—you keep the ring—what's 75c to a man with a broken heart?"

HELLO, BUDDIE—WHAT ABOUT THIS GUY McCANN YOU JUST BEEN DELIVERIN' GROCERIES TO?
ALL I KNOW IS HE USE TA TRAIN PRIZE FIGHTERS
HE'S A SKINNY LITTLE BOZO WHAT DIDN'T USED TO EAT AS MUCH AS WOULD FILL A CAVITY IN A SARDINE'S TOOTH—BUT LATELY HE'S GOT ME BOWLEGGED CARRIN' ENOUGH GRUB TO FEED A WHOLE C. C. C. CAMP
HE SAYS HE'S LIVIN' ALONE—BUT I THINK—YOW!

MICKEY FINN By Lank Leonard

HEY KUCK'S ATTEMPT TO HUSH UP MICKEY'S "BRAWL" WAS THE FIRST KNOWLEDGE THAT LULU CARSON'S PAPER HAD OF THE AFFAIR!!
IT'S FUNNY WE WEREN'T TIPPED OFF TOO!
YEAH—AND THE DOVER CLUB JUST SAID LULU WAS THERE THROUGH IT ALL—SHE MUST BE SLIPPING!
TOO BAD YOU DIDN'T HAVE TIME TO CALL THE DESK, LULU!—OUR SHEET WILL BE SCOOPED, SURE!
WE'LL HAVE THE SCOOP, AL—IF THIS FELLOW LEADS US TO THE PARTY WHO PLANNED THE DIRTY TRICK!—LOOK! HE'S TURNING INTO THAT DRIVEWAY!!
AL—THAT'S DON DESIETT'S PLACE!!! —I'VE BEEN THERE A DOZEN TIMES—COVERING PARTIES!!
I'LL PULL PAST IT FAST SO THE GUY WON'T THINK HE'S BEIN' FOLLOWED—THEN WE CAN SNEAK BACK!
YOU FOOL! I TOLD YOU TO PHONE!
I COULDN'T GET WHAT I WANT OVER THE PHONE!

DIXIE DUGAN Another Touchdown! By J. P. McEvoy and H. J. Striebel

DID YOU SEE THAT ??!—THAT SCAMP ACTUALLY WENT THROUGH THE WHOLE LINE FOR A TOUCHDOWN!
BEGINNER'S LUCK!
RAH! RAH! GERALD! GERALD!
THE EXTRA POINT IS MADE, THE TEAMS LINE UP AGAIN FOR THE KICK-OFF
THE BALL GOES TO GERALD ON THE TEN YARD LINE—
—AND AWAY HE GOES 10—20—30—40—50—60—70—80—90—
